SETS UP CHARITY,
RESEARCH FUND;
EMPLOYERS PAYCompanies Contribute Under Terms of New Contracts — Joint Committee to Administer Project.Teamsters Union Local 688 is establishing its own charitable and research fund with money contributed monthly by employers, the Post-Dispatch was told today.Contracts negotiated with companies upon expiration of old agreements provide that management shall pay $1 or $2 a month into the fund for each union member in its employ.Harold J. Gibbons, executive vice president of the Teamsters international union and secretary-treasurer of Local 688, said the $2 payment was the sum sought in negotiations with prospering industries. The lesser sum is asked of those with less ability to pay, he said.
Gibbons said that no employer thus far has refused to accept the provision in his contract. He estimated that approximately 3000 of the union's 9000 members are working in plants where the new fringe benefit is in effect, and that $100,000 will have been accumulated in the fund by next January.Special Committee.
"No project can be undertaken until the fund approaches that figure," Gibbons said. "However, the local union and the employers have appointed representatives on the fund committee who are to choose a public member."The trustees of the fund, named "Teamster Labor-Management Charitable Foundation," will invite leaders in various fields in which the Foundation intends to operate to form subcommittees to recommend and direct research projects, he said.The trustees hope, for example, that outstanding leaders in the educational field will head the subcommittee directing research in educational field will head the subcommittee directing research in education and recommending scholarship awards," Gibbons said."Equally outstanding men in the field of medicine will be asked to serve on other subcommittees. Groups such as these will actually make the important decisions and carry out the foundation's work, with the management-union committee confining itself to administrative details."First Meeting Held.
Identity of the members of the management-union committee will not be announced until all subcommittees have been appointed, Gibbons said.
Three representatives appointed to the committee from the local and three from the employers held their first meeting recently, and shortly will choose the seventh or "public member," Gibbons said.The committee will also define the fields in which the foundation will aid research.
Gibbons said the statement of objectives would be flexible, and perhaps best described as "taking care of broad community needs."The foundation will also make lump sum contributions to United Fund and other community-wide charity fund-raising campaigns, Gibbons said."But our members working in plants covered by the foundation agreement thereafter

normal lows in middle 20s.MANHATTAN SOOT COUNT IS 107 TONS
A SQUARE MILE

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The average accumulation of soot in Manhattan last year was 107.3 tons a square mile each month. For the city as a whole, the average increased by four tons for each square mile each month, but the actual increases were only in Manhattan and Queens, while the average sootfall in the other three boroughs declined.Of the gases which pollute the air, the Department of Air Pollution Control said yesterday, carbon monoxide and oxidants increased but all others were either lower than or the same as in the previous year.
The dust count was the lowest since measuring started in 1956; 5.2 million particles a cubic foot.Smoke shade, a measure of the air's resistance to light, was lowest since 1955.PRESIDENT BACK AT WHITE HOUSE
AFTER VACATIONWASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (UPI).
—President Eisenhower returned to his White House desk today after a quasi-shooting holiday in southern Georgia.The President flew back ending a five-day visit on the estate of former Secretary of the Treasury George M.
Humphrey. The White House said he cut short the vacation by one day to take care of official duties.Mr. Eisenhower's only announced appointment today was with Gen. Nathan F. Twin-

KHRUSHCHEV PLEASE NOTE:
SHRIMPS WHISTLE LOUDLY© New York Times News Service WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—In a Kremlin speech Sept. 18, 1955, Soviet Premier Khrushchev advised those who might be waiting for the Soviet Union to abandon Communism to "wait until a shrimp learns to whistle."If Mr. K's scientists have not told him yet, shrimps do whistle. The Navy has the noise on tape. It picked it up when experimenting with submarine defenses. They whistle

Fogged by Meeting of FrontsWeather fronts from the southwest and northwest met in St. Louis last night. Warm, moist air from the southwest prevailed, creating a heavy fog that interrupted plane schedules and made driving hazardous at times.Lambert-St. Louis Field was "socked in" from 7 to 10 o'clock last night and again from midnight to 7 a.m. today.
During the blackout, planes bound for St. Louis were diverted to Kansas City, Chicago and other points.The fog was widespread through Missouri and Illinois.
It was so thick in some places that wise motorists stopped and waited for it to lift, state police reported.The Weather Bureau, which kept on the northwest front, had predicted snow and colder weather in early forecasts yesterday. But the temperature crept up into the low 50s this morning. A colder trend was expected later in the week.U.S. ANNOUNCES 34 OIL LEASES SCHOOL BUILDING IN MONTANA PROGRAM; KEEPS OBTAINED BY BUDGET INTACT FRAUD, U.S. SAYSWould Share Bond Cost at Elementary, High School Levels, Guarantee College Financing.By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The Administration proposed today a school construction program designed to assist needy school districts and colleges without disturbing President Eisenhower's balanced budget.It would do this in the case of elementary and high schools by agreements with the states under which federal and state governments each would pay half the debt service charges on bonds to finance construction, and in the case of colleges and universities by federal guarantees of principal and interest on non-tax-exempt construction bonds.Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Arthur S.
Fleming told reporters that one phase of the program would assist states to overcome the persistent shortage of public elementary and secondary schools by making it possible for them to initiate up to three billion dollars worth of construction in the next five years in communities that lack the resources to finance classroom needs.The other phase, he said, would over the same period make it possible for colleges to accelerate construction of up to two billion dollars worth of facilities.Similar to Mrs. Hobby's Plan.
Fleming acknowledged the program was "modest" and laughed off the suggestion in a reporter's question that it was a "gimmick." He agreed it was similar in some respects to a program proposed earlier in the Eisenhower Administration by former Secretary Oveta Culp Hobby.In forwarding drafts of proposed legislation to House Speaker Sam Rayburn and Vice President Richard M.
Nixon, Fleming said he had been advised by the Budget Bureau that the program "would be in accord" with that of the President. He said it did not expect the President would send an education message to Congress.Arrangements have been made to introduce the legislation in the House, Fleming said. He added in reply to a question that the Senate minority leader Everett M.
Dirksen was "handling" the matter.A reporter observed that two years ago Mr. Eisenhower proposed a school program that included $1,300,000,000 in grants to the states for a four-year period to help finance school buildings. He wanted to know what prompted the change embodied in today's announcement."We just think this is a better approach," Fleming said.Criticized as 'Banker's Bill'.
Fleming went out of his way in a prepared statement to note that critics already have labeled the program a "banker's bill." He said it was no more a banker's bill than the pending proposals to assist the schools by federal deficit financing. Only a fraction of federal and municipal bonds are held by banks, he said.Under the public school program, maximum annual federal payments would build up to $85,000,000 and under the college plan to $25,000,000. A reporter wanted to know whether Fleming did not consider the total of $110,000,000 "rather small.""You would have to multiply that by 25 years," Fleming replied. "If these measures are enacted, the federal government will be in a position to make very substantial contributions for the first time. Up to the present, no progress has been made in this area, despite a great deal of talk."The states have reported a current deficit in classrooms of more than 140,000. From 68,000 to 70,000 classrooms are being built annually. The new program, Fleming said, should stimulate the construction of about 75,000 rooms a year.Each state, Fleming said, will have to determine whether its laws will permit it to participate in the program. Some, he went on, may require an authorizing referendum and others may need a constitutional amendment. Either procedure would take considerable time after the enactment of a federal law.Four States Over Limit.
In four states more than 80 percent of the school districts have reached their statutory debt limits. They are Nevada and New Mexico, with more than 90 percent, and Alabama and Rhode Island with more than 80 percent.The department offered this theoretical example of how the public school construction phase would operate.

The state would prepare a

27,142 Acres Involved
— Interior Dept.
Names Wyoming Man, Cited Previously, and 19 Others.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (UPI).

The Interior Department charged today that 34 oil leases involving 27,142 acres of land in Montana were obtained fraudulently. The department asked that the leases be canceled.Robert Nielson, Montana state supervisor of the Bureau of Land Management, issued the complaint in Billings, Mont., on behalf of the United States.The action named Walter G.
Davis, Casper, Wyo., and 19 other persons. A similar action against Davis and 85 others was taken in connection with 86 Wyoming leases on Jan. 26.
Under the Mineral Leasing Act, no individual or company may hold more than 46,080 acres in federal oil and gas leases in any one state or more than 100,000 acres in Alaska.Until 1954, the limitation in any one state was 15,360 acres.
The complaint charged Davis attempted to get around the pre-1954 restriction by having other persons obtain the leases in their own names, while Davis actually held the controlling interests.Those named in today's complaint included firms and individuals. They were accused of assisting or conspiring with Davis in obtaining the leases, along with other persons who later acquired interest in the leases.Those cited will have 30 days in which to file an answer.
A hearing then will be held by a Bureau of Land Management examiner to determine the validity of the leases.CHIMPS CALLED
THAN PEOPLE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 9.—
The St. Louis Zoo's trained chimpanzees can drive automobiles better than some of the human beings who consider themselves qualified. George P.
Vierheller, director of the zoo there, said today.They are very accurate in their timing," Vierheller told the meeting of the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums. He was speaking of the monkeys, not the people.Vierheller explained that in St. Louis the chimps drive small, specially built cars in the zoo's summer animal show.
They are such good drivers, he said, that "we have to insist they hit another car, when the act calls for it."Those attend the meeting spent much of their time talking about possible trades in various animals. Vierheller examined Colo, first and only gorilla born in captivity. He remarked there was no point in trying to buy Colo. "She has no price," he said.MOUNTAIN SLIDE THREATENS SWISS
ALPINE VILLAGEVIEGE, Switzerland, Feb. 9 (AP).—A massive mountain slide today threatened a Swiss hamlet of Herbrigen and could cut the only supply route for more than 5000 tourists and villagers in the luxury resort of Zermatt.A Swiss pilot flying over the area noticed the slide moving slowly down the slope of 14-205-foot Nadelhorn mountain.
Geologists estimated the slide consists of more than 5,000,000 cubic feet of ice, earth and rocks.Officials of Valais Canton alerted police and working parties. Evacuation of Herbrigen has begun. This village of some 200 inhabitants lies in a deep valley on the Viege-Zermatt railway line.Authorities said Zermatt was in no danger. Dr. Walter Zimmermann, director of the hotel association, said Zermatt has ample food reserves. Zermatt is about 10 miles away from Nadelhorn mountain.

WEST AGREED ON ACTION
IF RUSSIA BARS ACCESS TO BERLIN, DULLES SAYS

Socialist Leaders

WILLY BRANDT (left), Socialist Mayor of West Berlin, talking yesterday with American Socialist party leader NORMAN THOMAS at a luncheon of the Washington chapters of the Socialist Party-Social Democratic Foundation and the Young Peoples Socialist League.AIR FORCE LIKELY BRANDT MEETS TO BE CUT TO 90 SENATORS AND WINGS IN 6 YEARS OTHER OFFICIALSImprovement of Both Aircraft and Missiles Is Reason, Rather Than Economy.WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).
—The Air Force probably will reduce its organizational size to fewer than 90 wings in the next five or six years—smaller since the wholesale demolition following World War II.These wings will include missile outfits as well as manned aircraft. Part of the cutback will be in B-47 medium bomber wings as more efficient weapons replace these planes.Economy seems to play only a small part in the trend, which began about two years ago. Improvement of both aircraft and missiles accounts primarily for the change.The nuclear firepower which can be delivered by 90 wings will be thousands of times that of the huge bomber fleets of World War II.The military budget now being debated in Congress says there will be a "modest reduction in the number of wings in the Air Force" from 105 at the end of the current fiscal year (next June 30) to 102 at the end of 1960.Postwar Peak Was 137.
The slow reduction in wing strength started after a peak postwar strength of 137 in mid-1945.The size of an Air Force wing varies from 45 big bombers to 75 fighters. Normally, a wing consists of three squadrons of planes.In missiles, the squadron designation is generally used.
A ballistic missile squadron will range from 10 weapons for an intercontinental ballistic missile outfit to 15 for an intermediate range ballistic missile squadron. Formation of such squadrons is just beginning.In the coming year, as the Air Force nears the 102-wing level, a wing of Atlas ballistic missiles will be included in the over-all count, along with the present wing of Matador guided missiles and probably a wing of Bomarc long range anti-aircraft missiles.Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy said last month that the Strategic Air Command will include 14 wings of bombers.

Visiting Mayor Calls
Berlin 'A Symptom
and Not the Reason for This Crisis.'WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).
—West Berlin's Mayor Willy Brandt, determined that his city will never become a part of Soviet-ruled territory, met today with State Department officials.The visiting mayor also had luncheon with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.Brandt, who arrived Saturday for a round of official talks, spoke yesterday to a meeting of the local chapter of the Socialist party-Social Democratic Federation a counterpart of his own Social Democratic party in Berlin.Speaking of the East-West crisis over Berlin, he said the divided city "is a symptom and not the reason of this crisis."Brandt said "we in Berlin have to face more difficulties, with a very limited possibility to influence events." He urged Western unity in dealing with the Russians and said no durable solution can be based on capitulation.The mayor declined to comment on what the West should do if the Soviet Union carries out its threat to cut off West Berlin from Western Germany next May and make it a "free city."He said what the Soviets call a "free city" is "not only a city free from Americans, free from contact with the West, but a city free from freedom."Brandt said his divided city "would not give in—even if connections (with the West) should be cut off completely.
We will go on as long as we can and never accept the inclusion of West Berlin in the Soviet-ruled territory."Brandt said in a television interview today that his city would be "squeezed like a lemon" by the Russians should the West accept the Soviet ultimate and withdraw its troops. He and his wife were interviewed when they had breakfast in West German Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe's residence.The mayor repeated his opinion that eventually a lasting settlement could be worked out between East and West.

HE AGAIN OFFERS TO TALK ABOUT
GENERAL EUROPE
SETTLEMENTReturns to Washington
After Visiting Allied Leaders — Plans to Report Immediately to Eisenhower.WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).
—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today the Western Allies have agreed generally on procedures to follow if Russia invokes "physical means" to block access to Berlin.At the same time he renewed the West's offer to talk about a general settlement.
"We are willing to talk with the Soviets in a sincere effort to reach agreements," he said.
Dulles returned to Washington this morning aboard a United States Air Force plane from talks at London, Paris and Bonn. He said he was reporting promptly to President Eisenhower.Unity 'Reconfirmed.'
In a prepared statement
Dulles said his talks abroad
"reconfirmed the unity and firmness of our position.""We do not accept any substitution of the Germans for the Soviet Union or its responsibilities toward Berlin and its obligations to us," he added.
"We are resolved that our position in, and access to, West Berlin shall be preserved. We are in general agreement as to the procedures we shall follow if physical means are invoked to interfere with our rights in this respect."Dulles did not elaborate on his statement. He gave no hint of what procedures the Western Allies have decided to follow if Russia tries physically to block the routes to Berlin, isolated 110 miles inside East Germany.In London, a British Foreign Office spokesman said the question of whether the Soviet Union "lies solely with the Soviet Government.""The Soviet government," the spokesman said, "should be in no doubt about the determination of the Western powers to maintain their rights in Berlin."Agreement on Concessions.
The spokesman also said Britain is in complete agreement with a statement by Dulles in Bonn yesterday that the Western Allies will make no concessions on Germany without counter-concessions from Russia.Dulles said leaders of the Allied nations will keep in close contact on the German situation."Their foreign ministers contemplate meetings as may be appropriate," he said. "Officers at other levels will be in consultation on specific questions."
Dulles said he returns from his six-day trip "encouraged by the unity, understanding and resolution in the three countries I visited.""We have had a useful exchange of views, primarily on the serious situation created by Soviet threats and repudiations concerning Berlin," he said."We discussed the whole problem of Germany. We exchanged views on the prospects for a foreign ministers meeting with the Soviet Union at which all aspects of the German problem can be discussed, not only Berlin and a peace treaty, as the Soviets propose, but also reunification and European security, as the Western powers have proposed."

Men Dulles Visited.

On his trip abroad, Dulles talked to the heads of government and foreign ministers of Britain, France and West Germany and with Secretary General Paul-Henri Spaak of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.In advance of Dulles's arrival officials said they were sure he had laid the groundwork for a speedup in Allied policy planning looking toward a spring foreign ministers' meeting with Russia.Dulles left Bonn, the last capital on his calling list, with a hint that some slight conciliatory move toward the Russians may be in the making, but only if Russia also is in a conciliatory mood.His series of talks last week, Dulles said at the Bonn airport, "will help to assure that we shall be united and firm for our rights. That does not

SENATOR SAYS IRAQ DISCLOSED SECRET U.S. BIDS TO SOVIET UNION

Tip-Off Enabled Moscow to Win 20 Choice Contracts, Butler Charges — Kubba Blamed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Senator John Butler (Rep., Maryland), accused the government of Iraq today of disclosing to Russia secret American bids on projects in that country. He asked the State Department to make an official protest.

The disclosure, Butler said in a statement, enabled Russia to cut its own bids by 20 per cent and win 20 choice contracts, including one for a tire factory to compete with a multimillion dollar American-built plant in Iran.

Butler said the American bids were revealed to Russia by Iraq's minister of economics, Ibrahim Kubba. He called Kubba "an ardent Marxist," although Butler said Kubba denies membership in the Communist party.

The development plan of Iraq contemplates an expenditure of about $1,800,000,000, the Senator said. "It is expected that 50 major projects will be awarded. Of this total the Soviet Union has already obtained 20."

"Obviously with a Soviet siege in the important post of minister of economics, American industry is at a complete disadvantage in competing with Russia. Of 10 trade contracts consummated, nine have been signed with Moscow."

SHAKEUP-SPEEDS
DRIFT TO REDS

George Weller has just returned to Cyprus from Iraq.

By GEORGE WELLER

The Chicago Daily News Post-Dispatch Staff Writer, who has been in Iraq since 1948, says that the shakeup of six cabinet ministers in Iraq's troubled republic has deepened the confusion in Baghdad and speeded the government's slide toward Communism.

Lacking any parliament and backed only by bayonets and his uncertain popularity, Iraq's leader, Maj. Gen. Abdul Karim Kassem, has been forced to choose between the pro-Communist army officers around him and the nationalist cabinet ministers advising him.

Kassem has chosen to ditch the nationalist civilians and appease the pro-Communists. Bloodless conquest.

With the triumph of the pro-Communist officers, Kassem is taking Iraq along the course that led to the bloodless conquest by Communists in Czechoslovakia.

Like Czech President Eduard Benes, Kassem is making piecemeal cabinet concessions, while the Communists are actively organizing an amateur militia under the army's name.

The weekend's "resolutions" have knocked out of office almost all moderate representatives of the Iraqi party, all rightists represented by the pro-Nasser Baathist party, and most neutralist middle-of-the-roads like the Columbia-educated Kurdish chief, Baba Ali, who controlled public works and communications.

In controlling the public opinion the Army's Communists are well ahead of the Czech timetable. Communist censorship entirely controls press, radio and television.

The Iraqi is dependent on hazy radio reports for straight-forward news. Communist army censors pose the threat of confiscation over newspapers failing to toe their line.

Red victories.

Four important victories gained by the Communists in this shakeout were as follows:

1. Through the fall of minister of guidance, Sadiq Shemsah, the Communists gained unchallenged control of all government means of communication. Shemsah, founder of the Iraqi party, formerly acted as a week checkrein on the Reds.

2. Iraq recently legalized trade unions and put them under control of stoutly anti-Communist Army Brig. Najib Talib as minister of social affairs. At the moment when Communist organizers are working hardest among the unions, the anti-Communist minister has been removed.

3. The scholarly foreign minister, Abdul Jabbar Jomard, has been opposing the farcical televised court-martials as degrading Iraq's name for the benefit of the Communists. Jomard has also been trying to check blanket recognition of Communist states, requiring 11 new embassies. Jomard, under Communist pressure, has yielded to ex-United Nations mission chief Hashem Jawad—the only experienced man among eight newcomers.

"No sir, out swimming," replied the Scout with water streaming down his face.

QUISADA CALLS FOR REDUCED U.S. AID TO AIRPORTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—An administrator E. R. Quisada of the Federal Aviation Agency called today for an orderly tapering off of the government's airport grant program, as recommended by President Eisenhower.

Mr. Quisada, speaking for the nation's airports, said the government's airport grant program, as recommended by President Eisenhower, is "a major step toward the development of a national airport system."

HONDURAS REPORTS THWARTING REBELS

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Feb. 9 (AP)—Government officials said the army routed a rebel force which temporarily seized the city of Santa Barbara in western Honduras today.

The rebels were said to have fled into the nearby mountains. The government said the army was in control of the entire country and remained loyal to the regime of President Ramon Villeda Morales.

Government sources reported the rebel force was commanded by Dr. Armando Rodriguez Valle and "Colonel" Maximo Bejarano and Pedro Iglesias.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 9 (AP)—Radio Liberator, a clandestine Honduran radio station, reported today that a revolt had broken out in the Honduran departments of Choluteca and Comayagua.

The broadcast, which was heard here by the newspaper Diario de la Tarde.

Santa Barbara is in northwestern Honduras on the Guatemalan border. Choluteca is on the Nicaraguan border.

The Mexican newspaper said Radio Liberator urged Hondurans to go on a general strike and predicted that Honduran army troops would defect to the rebels.

MITCHELL FINDS IT LABOR TO BE POLITE TO SENATOR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell and Senator Wayne L. Morse, who used to be a Republican himself, are on speaking terms, barely at a committee hearing the Senator with no trace of a smile.

Two hours later the two men found themselves waiting for the hearing. Morse, grinning, put out his hand and said, "Mr. Secretary, I'm going to give you a personal escort."

"Thank you, Senator," replied the Secretary, returning the handshake and smile with obvious pain. "But as Lincoln said, if it wasn't for the honor I'd rather walk."

Dr. Darbyshire was employed in the Feranti electronics works at Boston, outside Manchester. He was a physicist.

MOLOTOV NOT TO BE ENVOY TO NETHERLANDS AFTER ALL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—M. Molotov is not going to The Hague after all. That is the latest word in diplomatic circles.

Several weeks ago the Soviet government offered to send the former Premier and Foreign Minister as ambassador to The Netherlands. The Dutch government, it was reported, agreed to accept him. Then nothing happened.

Now it appears that the Dutch stalled after giving a tentative verbal acceptance. They wanted to see whether Molotov was still out of favor in Moscow. When the official attacks on him continued at the latest Communist party congress, the Dutch decided that the answer was "no."

British Scientist Working on Secret Data Found Dead

MANCHESTER, England, Feb. 9 (UPI)—Police today investigated the death of a research scientist engaged on secret work for the government.

The body of physicist Albert Darbyshire, 32 years old, was found yesterday. Police believed he died from cyanide poisoning. One theory was that he may have committed suicide.

Dr. Darbyshire was employed in the Feranti electronics works at Boston, outside Manchester. He was a physicist.

AID TO HOFFA GETS 3 YEARS FOR PERJURY

Officer of Detroit Teamsters Local — Judge Turns Aside Leniency Plea.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—Benjamin Franklin Collins, Detroit union officer and close associate of Teamster president James R. Hoffa, was sentenced today to three years in prison for perjury.

The case in United States District Court developed from a grand jury investigation of wiretapping and racketeering in Local 299 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. Collins, 48 years old, is secretary-treasurer of the Detroit local. Hoffa is president of the local as well as head of the entire union.

Collins was continued in $2500 bail pending an appeal from the sentence.

His attorney, Henry Singer, asked that Collins be placed on probation, calling him "just a clerk who worked hard all his life."

"The fact is," Judge John M. Cashin said to the defendant, "you did say things to the grand jury which the jury found to be perjurious. There must be a sentence here, and not a suspended sentence and probation."

Collins was convicted Jan. 21 of lying when he told the investigating panel that minutes of two of the local's meetings in 1953 were signed by him shortly afterwards. The government contended they were signed much later, and intimated alterations might have been made.

Toronto Teamster Local Revolts Against Hoffa

TORONTO, Feb. 9 (AP)—A full-scale revolt against the authority of Teamsters President James Hoffa erupted yesterday at a meeting of Toronto Local 938. The angry, shouting members suspended their local president and voted to elect a new one.

The 450 teamsters crowded into their downtown hall to take up complaints of collusion between the union executive and truck operators in the negotiation of a new contract last year. There also have been accusations of irregularities in the ratification vote.

The three-year contract, covering 7000 employees of 65 companies in eastern Ontario, provided a 21-cent-an-hour increase. Critics contend the rise was too small for the length of the agreement.

Because of the local's internal dissent, Hoffa had instructed the Teamsters' Canadian director, I. M. (Casey)

U.S. Army Using Koreans to Fill Ranks Depleted by Strength Cut

Manpower Shortage Is So Drastic That Half of 2-Division Force Is Comprised of Non-Americans.

By JACK RAYMOND
© New York Times News Service
WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—The Army has so few men that every combat unit in its two divisions in Korea down to squad level is using Koreans to fill the depleted ranks.

The exact number of Koreans integrated in the First Cavalry and Seventh Infantry Divisions is a secret, but there are indications that perhaps half of the two 14,000-man divisions are Koreans.

In addition, many Koreans are serving in supporting corps artillery units and a missile command that is armed with Honest John rockets.

The Koreans serving under the American flag are known as KATUSAs, for Koreans Attached to the United States Army.

"Financial Bargain."

The Koreans receive equal responsibilities with American troops. Sometimes there are language difficulties but these have been generally overcome.

The KATUSAs are a "financial bargain." An American private receives $78 a month to start and soon may be earning $85.50. A Korean soldier gets 15 to 30 cents a month.

Using Koreans for service in American outfits is not new. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, former Far East commander, authorized it in the Korean war. However, few of the Koreans then were integrated in the same units as Americans.

Army spokesmen at the Pentagon said they could not recall any other time in history when American units were filled out with non-Americans.

Manpower Reduction.

The situation in Korea, it was explained here, indicates why it is unlikely that the Army will attempt to retain 15 divisions in view of a manpower reduction from 900,000 to 870,000.

Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy has said that he would review the possibility of avoiding a cut to 14 divisions. Army sources said the only way this could be done would be to maintain divisions below reasonable strength.

As it is, at least two of the Army's four divisions in the Strategic Army Corps are substantially below normal levels. Thus the Army will attempt to maintain only three divisions in this corps. The Strategic Army Corps, or STRAC, was organized as a powerful mobile force that would be always ready for limited war missions. It was formed more than a year ago, but has never been trained and equipped to the satisfaction of its commanders.

By United Press International.

Meanwhile, Representative Frank Kowalski (Dem., Conn.), a retired Army colonel, charged that the armed services are wasting expensive manpower by using "thousands" of enlisted men as houseboys, maids and chauffeurs to serve senior officers.

Kowalski, a member of a newly created House Armed Services subcommittee directed to look into manpower problems, said he thinks the Pentagon "bureaucracy" is powerless to correct the situation and it is up to Congress to act.

Talk of Showdown.

Some Democrats in Congress, turning over manpower cuts President Eisenhower ordered last year in the Army and Marine Corps, are talking of forcing a showdown on an unsettled constitutional question—whether the last word about the size of the armed forces?

Congress might bring the issue to a head by writing mandatory minimums for one or more of the services.

Some lawmakers have complained that the President and the Defense Department flouted Congress's will last year. Defense appropriations for the fiscal year ending next June 30 included language saying it was the intent of Congress that an Army of 900,000 and a Marine Corps of 200,000 be maintained. Instead, the Army was ordered cut to 870,000 and the Marine Corps to 175,000. The language was not mandatory, however.

In another bill, a mandatory average of 400,000 for the Army National Guard was provided. The Defense Department, which had planned cuts here also, is observing the minimum.

The quarrel is much older than the present tension. Ultimately the question goes back to specific provisions of the Constitution.

One says "The Congress shall have power . . . to raise and support armies . . . to provide and maintain a Navy."

THIRD VIRGINIA CITY PREPARES FOR INTEGRATION

Alexandria Ready to Admit 9 Negro Children to Schools After Appeal Fails.

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 9 (AP)—Alexandria completes plans today for integration of its public schools. Tomorrow, the northern Virginia city will become the state's third locality within eight days to reluctantly admit Negroes to classrooms in previously all-white schools.

State and local officials have expressed hope that the admission of nine Negro children to the Alexandria schools will be accomplished as peacefully as was the entrance of 21 Negroes into Norfolk and Arlington schools a week ago.

While heavy police reinforcements accompanied integration at nearby Arlington's Stratford Junior High school last Monday, there have been no reports of special police preparations at Alexandria.

Local officials said they have no plans to appeal the integration order to the United States Supreme Court—a step taken by Arlington officials two weeks ago without success.

An appeal for a stay of the district court ruling was turned down Saturday by Chief Judge Simon E. Sobeloff of the United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals at Baltimore.

Another event tomorrow may preface a further breach of Virginia's traditional school segregation policy. At Harrisonburg, a federal judge will hear a plea that Warren County High School at Front Royal be reopened immediately on an integrated basis.

The school, with an enrollment of over 1000, was the first to be closed last September under the state's now-defunct massive resistance laws which decreed that a school under immediate integration orders be padlocked. Further closing affected eight schools in Norfolk and Charlottesville.

The reopening of Norfolk's six closed schools last Monday on an integrated basis followed rulings by state and federal courts declaring the massive resistance laws unconstitutional.

One says "The Congress shall have power . . . to raise and support armies . . . to provide and maintain a Navy."

Another makes the President "Commander-in-Chief" of the Army and Navy of the United States.

Warren county school officials said they felt it would be detrimental to the students to reopen the Front Royal school before next September. But Oliver Hill of Richmond, an attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said he would seek immediate reopening on an integrated basis at tomorrow's hearing.

MEDICAL SCHOOL OFFERS COURSE ON COPING WITH FAKE DRUG ADS

Class Studies Promotional Materials Sent to Doctors—Education Called Solution to Problem.

By HARRY WILENSKY
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Fakery in drug advertising has become such a problem that medical students are being given special training to help them steer through the "pharmaceutical fog" when they go into practice, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

Albany Medical College of Union University has incorporated in its pharmacology curriculum an eye opening study of drug advertisements. This new twist in education is creating a stir, and 16 other medical schools have sent for the material used.

Dr. Solomon Garb, associate professor who started the teaching project, explained that the flood of new drug products and the high-pressure advertising used to promote them make things difficult for the practicing physician.

Trained With Common Drugs.
"During medical-school training," he said, "the student learns about and sees used daily are proved items like morphine, digitalis, quinine, nitroglycerin, atropine and insulin. He has only a vague idea of the new drugs that will face him in later years."

"But when he opens an office, the picture changes. He is deluged with advertisements and called upon by salesmen who expound upon the special merits of their products. The old reliable are hardly ever mentioned. The resulting confusion makes the physician not to accept without much question the claims of the pharmaceutical manufacturer."

To teach his second-year students how to cope with this situation, Dr. Garb had all the drug advertisements that came in the mail saved for two months. These were piled into boxes—the volume of mail to doctors is staggering—and the students reached in and picked out an advertisement at random. This determined which drug product the student was to concentrate on.

More Data Requested.
After studying the advertisements and the references given, the students wrote to the manufacturers for additional information. The students were called in to give their sales pitch and answer questions.

Later the teacher supplied sets of references which presented the other side of the story by exposing undesirable features of the drugs. It was significant that in many cases the unfavorable references had been ignored by the manufacturer in answering requests for detailed information.

Students and faculty compared judgments about specific drugs. In conclusion, each student filled out an unsigned questionnaire showing his attitude toward the problem of drug evaluation.

The students believed the drug manufacturer had tried to exaggerate the value of his product at least half of the time, and 74 per cent of the time thought the exaggeration occurred 80 to 100 per cent of the time. When it came to minimizing undesirable qualities of products, 70 per cent of the students believed the manufacturer did this 80 to 100 per cent of the time.

Some Firms Co-operative.
Reluctance of many drug houses to give information on the hazardous side effects made a strong impression. On the other hand, it was noted that some firms were co-operative and frank.

"It would be unfair to interpret our studies as being a blanket indictment," Dr. Garb warned. "The students found several firms they considered comparatively good in their advertising. The companies that showed up well proved to be the ones most interested in improving their own methods as well as industry practices."

The class was critical of advertising copy appearing in medical journals. About 75 per cent thought the advertising in these publications did not give enough information about contra-indications and toxicity.

The students noted that some companies marketing new drug preparations asserted:

Missouri - Illinois Forecasts

Missouri: Freezing rain in northwest and extreme north with considerable glazing tonight and tomorrow; rain or drizzle tonight and showers and thunderstorms tomorrow in south and east central; not much change in temperature; low tonight in 20s north to 50s in southeast; high tomorrow near 80 in extreme north to 60s in south.

Illinois: Freezing drizzle and some freezing rain in extreme north early tonight spreading to northwest later tonight; cloudy and mild in remainder of state with occasional rain and scattered thundershowers tonight and tomorrow; low tonight in extreme north to near 50 in extreme south; high tomorrow in 30s in extreme north to low 60s in extreme south.

ed that clinical studies — the tests of actual use on patients — were in progress and would soon be reported. One of the students likened this to Alice in Wonderland: The verdict first, then the trial.

Requirements of Law.
The Federal Food and Drug Act requires that a new drug product be tested and found safe before it may be shipped in interstate commerce. If the product uses one of the major antibiotics, the law calls for tests on efficacy.

A report on the Albany study of drug advertising, which was started last year and is being continued by a new class of 61 students, was published in the New England Journal of Medicine and attracted international attention.

The Albany faculty advises students to prescribe drugs by official names only, but more than half of last year's class indicated on the questionnaire they expected to prescribe by trade names. The students believed one paramount advantage outweighs all the disadvantages here. They were convinced that the trade name insures that the patient will get the product of a known manufacturer which can be relied upon for purity and potency.

They were afraid that prescription by official names could result in substitution of inferior products.

Discussing drug advertising, Dr. Frank C. Ferguson, Jr., head of the Albany pharmacology department, said, "Our principal interest in this stems from the feeling that improper advertising leads to improper use."

Education Problem.
The primary problem is one of medical education, Dr. Garb told the Post-Dispatch. He believes drug manufacturers would never have gone to such extremes in misleading advertising had doctors been properly educated as to means of selecting new drugs.

"The new ways of dealing with the bad situation today occur to me," he said. "One involves voluntary co-operation and restraint by drug manufacturers. I wouldn't care to depend on that. Another is stronger Government regulation. Nobody is eager for this, but it remains a potential cure."

"The third course is better education of physicians. This I consider the only real solution, even if it is a long-range one. Just as soon as doctors refuse to be unduly influenced by advertisements and the manufacturers become aware of this, the abuses will stop."

Useful Data Welcome.
"Nobody objects to getting useful information from a drug manufacturer. Letters are welcome. The object is to come to a decision with a lot of fancy art work that talks down to the physician."

"I object to the unnecessary volume of advertising. In one issue of a medical journal I saw 15 times, and the ad contained no information other than the name of the product, its dosage and a slogan. They repeat slogans ad nauseam."

"I object to any attempt to gloss over undesirable side effects. Efforts to exaggerate therapeutic effectiveness likewise are objectionable."

"I don't like attempts to influence a doctor's judgment as to what is best for his patient by giving the physician small gifts. This is called 'remembrance advertising.' They send you a beautiful road map; it has nothing to do with medicine. They send a little pillow to place around your neck so you can sit with your head back. The ad is called 'relaxing socks' with the name of a drug product stamped on the hose; the idea is, when you relax in these, think how our wonderful drug product relaxes your patient."

"And I do not care for the favors some drug houses dish out in sponsoring a cocktail party at a medical society meeting or setting up a golf tournament for doctors and providing free prizes, drinks and a barbecue."

Dr. Garb was outspoken in his criticism of advertising in certain medical journals, contending that these publications should be more selective in accepting advertisements. "The ads I have in mind are not downright misleading," he said. "They just abandon logical discussion of the merits of a product and go off into the wild blue yonder. If I sent in an article with illustrations in four colors picturing my patient basking on the beach after treatment, it would never be accepted. The standards for the standards for articles submitted by physicians."

"The whole thing shows how insidious and how extreme the problem of pharmaceutical advertising has become."

TERMINAL SUGGESTS 4 CROSSING GATES

Installation of automatic gates with electric "flashers" and flashing signs at four crossings in north St. Louis at a cost of $104,000 was proposed by the Terminal Railroad Association today. The city would pay about $26,000 of the cost, the Missouri Public Service Commission was told.

The proposal was made as the commission began a hearing at the Civil Courts Building on adequacy of safety measures and crossing protection where Terminal tracks intersect East Grand, Adelaide, Carrie and Prairie avenues. The parallel streets link Broadway and Hall street and have carried a greatly increased volume of traffic since Hall was designated a traffic relief artery.

Lyman Bishop, Terminal counsel, outlined the safety improvements to Commissioners E. L. McClintock and William Barton, who are conducting the hearing. The city has agreed to pay one-fourth of the expenses, he said.

Glenn Evans, the commission counsel, said that with the opening of the Hall street trafficway, it is evident crossing protection at the four crossings and nearby Humboldt street "has become obsolete and wholly inadequate to handle the greatly increased amount of traffic." He said "the safety of the general public has become a critical issue."

George A. Schuessler, counsel for the Washburn Railroad, whose tracks parallel the Terminal's, urged that the Humboldt avenue crossing be closed. The only alternative, he said, was to build an overpass at prohibitive costs, unjustified by the sparse traffic crossing that crossing.

V. C. Hanna, Terminal Chief Engineer, said there are 63 train operations daily at the crossings, as compared with 98 in 1941. Daily vehicular traffic on the East Grand crossing is 6300 vehicles, compared with 1399 in 1941, he said.

Tower watchmen now manually operate crossing gates at East Grand and Prairie, he said. Adelaide and Carrie crossings are safeguarded only by "cross-buck" warning signs.

AUTO JUMPS CURB, BURNS
An automobile driven by R. A. Kammerer, veterinarian, caught fire in Forest Park early today after jumping a curb at Des Peres avenue.

Kammerer, who lives at 6660 Oakland avenue, told police the accelerator pedal stuck, causing him to lose control of the car. He called firemen who extinguished the blaze.

SCHOOL MERGER ELECTIONS TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Residents of nine St. Louis county school districts will vote tomorrow on proposals for consolidation into four districts.

Districts involved, respectively, are: Maryland Heights, Pattonville and Scudder; Hancock Place and Jefferson Barracks; Valley Park and Parkway Consolidated, and Jennings and West Walnut Manor.

Simple majorities of the combined votes in each of the four proposed consolidated districts are required for passage.

Polling places, mostly in schools, will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Voters need not be registered, but must have been a resident of the state at least one year, of the county 60 days and of the school district 30 days.

The four proposals, which if approved would reduce the number of county districts from 29 to 24, have been endorsed by the State Board of Education as well as by the county Board of Education, which submitted them. There is organized opposition, however, in each of the four areas in question.

U.S. TRYING TO FIND 800 TAXPAYERS TO MAKE REFUNDS

The Internal Revenue Service has refunds for 800 taxpayers in the St. Louis district but cannot find them, Ernest M. Flinn, director of the district, said today.

Refund checks for overpayment of 1958 income tax were mailed out, but they came back because addresses were incomplete or incorrect, Flinn explained.

Sometimes taxpayers put down the wrong address on original returns, Flinn said. Other times, checks were improperly addressed at the district office, he said.

In all cases, the director stated, the revenue service is anxious to make restitution. "Uncle Sam wants to make good," Flinn added.

3 ILLINOISANS ARE KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Man, Woman and Teen-ager Are Victims of 3 Separate Highway Crashes.

Mrs. Gertrude Mason of Pocahtons, Ill., was killed and another woman was seriously injured early today when two automobiles collided in heavy fog on U. S. Highway 40 near Highland, Ill., 35 miles east of St. Louis.

Mrs. Mason, 39 years old, was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, George Mason, who had only slight injuries. Mason's sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Dolvadelli, 60, also of Pocahtons, suffered serious head injuries.

The Mason machine, in which Mrs. Dolvadelli was riding, turned into the highway from a county road and was struck by a car driven by Raymond Ritzheimer of Highland, police reported. Ritzheimer was not hurt.

Ritzheimer was westbound on U. S. Highway 40. The injured were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Highland.

Victor A. Sears of Kane, Ill., was killed late last night when the automobile he was driving struck a concrete abutment on U. S. Highway 67A two miles north of Jerseyville.

Illinois State Police said Sears, who was alone in his car and was northbound, apparently was traveling at high speed. He was 22. Jerseyville is about 35 miles north of St. Louis.

Constance Vitale, 13, of Okawville, Ill., was killed and four other teen-agers of that locality were seriously hurt Saturday night in an automobile accident on Illinois Route 15 nine miles east of Mascoutah.

The Vitale child, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vitale, was a passenger in a car driven by James Bolter, 16, Illinois State Police said. Bolter apparently lost control on a straight stretch of road and struck a tree broadside.

Bolter suffered face and back injuries. Other passengers taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville were: John Schrage, 15, head injury; Carol Vitale, 17, sister of the dead girl, back and face injury; and Edgar H. Schuetz Jr., 17, head injury.

Police said young Bolter was driving a car belonging to the Edgar H. Schuetz family. Mascoutah is 30 miles east of St. Louis.

E. ST. LOUIS STORE THEFT

Cigarettes and candy valued at $55 were taken in a burglary at Ralph's Market, 4500 State street, East St. Louis, it was reported yesterday. Police found the door of the establishment broken at 7 a.m.

Ralph Barber, 240 Sunset drive, Belleville, the store's owner, said nothing else was missing.

ROBBER CAUGHT ATTEMPTING TO ATTACK WOMAN

Snatches Purse, Then Drags Victim Into Garage—Neighbors Call Police.

Policemen summoned by residents of the 5000 block of Page boulevard captured a robber who was attempting to criminally attack a woman he seized on the street Saturday midnight.

The prisoner, Willie Flunder, 22 years old, admitted, officers reported, that he struck the woman with a tire tool, grabbed her purse and then dragged her through a yard to attack her. Her screams attracted neighbors who shouted to the assailant to release his victim, and then screamed police as they began the chase.

Sgt. John Weingart and Patrolman Louis Mead found Flunder, a Negro, holding the woman in a garage. When he attempted to flee, the officers subdued him. The woman, 50 years old, said she left the home of friends and was walking toward a bus stop when she was struck from behind.

The assailant threatened to kill her when she began screaming, and she was treated for contusions of the scalp. Her purse was recovered in the garage.

Flunder, who gave an address in the 4700 block of Cupples place, was booked suspected of robbery and attempted rape.

Men booked as John A. Stewart, 5 North Ninth street, and Lonnie Baskin, 615 Walnut street, were held today suspected of beating and robbing a man who bought their breakfast yesterday. Police said both admitted the robbery and assault.

William Osborn, 66, of 4208 W. Farlin avenue, said he treated the pair to breakfast and was walking through an alley with them near Ninth and Market streets when he was knocked down, kicked and robbed of $29. The men threatened to kill him, Osborn related.

After the assailants departed, Osborn found a policeman and pointed out Baskin and Stewart on the street. Osborn was treated for contusions and a sprained shoulder.

A 200-pound safe containing $700 was reported stolen yesterday from St. Louis Motor Parts, Inc., 1600 South Kingshighway. The safe was moved from the office to a loading dock and hauled away, police reported. Entrance to the building was made by forcing a door on the loading dock.

Wedding Gifts Stolen.
Wedding gifts, luggage and more than $400 cash were stolen early yesterday from a station wagon parked at the scene of a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Merle Wunsch of 3646 Flad avenue.

The station wagon, belonging to David Carter of Ballwin, a driver, was threatened with a revolver and robbed of $35 by a passenger Saturday night. The man grabbed Treichel around the neck and held a revolver to his head after ordering him to drive into an alley at the rear of 1200 Barton street. The robber fled with a companion who had observed he wanted "no part of this."

WOMAN FALLS INTO CULVERT
Mrs. Claude B. Jordan, 3616 Adie road, St. Louis county, suffered a fracture of the right leg early yesterday when she fell into a culvert as she was walking home from a taxicab stand nearby. She was taken to Barnes Hospital.

The culvert is five feet deep. Mrs. Jordan, 66 years old, lay in it for about 30 minutes until someone passing heard her call for help.

BURGLAR SEIZED, ADMITS SERIES OF BREAK-INS

Arrested Hiding Behind Fake Closet Wall—Believed Active in West End.

Police planned to make a tour of West End homes with an admitted burglar today in the hope that he could point out additional places where he had made forced entry in recent weeks.

The man is Clifford Oden of the 900 block of School street, Kinloch. He is 27 years old.

He was arrested at his home Saturday after officers of the Page boulevard district found him hiding in a closet. He had made a curtain of oil cloth so that it resembled a back wall of the closet, and was behind it.

Oden, a former convict, who has served a term at the Alago Reformatory for burglary, told of about 25 burglaries in which he said he had taken part since early last month.

The value of the loot in all was estimated at about $5000. It consisted of jewelry, phonographs, clothing and furniture and money.

Oden was arrested by Special Officers John Kehoe and Joseph Murphy.

Another suspect, Wilbert McCullen of the 1400 block of Goodfellow boulevard, had told of being with Oden in about 10 burglaries. McCullen was arrested Jan. 2 after a burglary in the 1700 block of Cora avenue. Oden escaped.

POLICE ARREST 14 WOMEN, NINE MEN IN GAMBLING RAID
Fourteen women and nine men were arrested yesterday by Deer street district policemen in a gambling raid at 4850A Easton avenue.

The raiders reported they found 10 persons seated around three card tables, which had been pushed together. There were six decks of cards on the tables and $1.45 in a box.

Members of the group said they were having a card party. They contended that the $1.45 had been set aside for soda. All were booked suspected of gambling and released.

BURGLAR SEIZED, ADMITS SERIES OF BREAK-INS

DRIVER IN CHASE FACES HIDDEN WEAPON CHARGE

A warrant charging carrying concealed weapons was issued by the circuit attorney's office today against Willard Polson of the 5900 block of Cabanne avenue, who police said was carrying a revolver when arrested early Saturday after a police chase.

Polson, who identified himself as a deputy constable, had driven away from the scene of an automobile collision at Vandeventer and Natural Bridge avenues and traveled at speeds up to 70 miles an hour before hitting a utility pole at Vandeventer and Ashland avenues, police reported.

The circuit attorney's office said Polson, 23 years old, was not a deputy constable but had occasional employment as a special deputy, involving serving of legal papers in individual suits, at the expense of litigants. This employment did not entitle him to carry a weapon, it was stated. Court records show Polson is under a suspended sentence after he pleaded guilty last April 1 of assault with intent to kill.

FAMILY OF SEVEN MISSING MONTH, TOWN ALARMED

SILVER LAKE, Minn., Feb. 9 (AP)—All seven members of the Earl Zrust family, long residents of this small village, disappeared Dec. 29 and haven't been seen since.

The 600 residents of Silver Lake are worried over the whereabouts of the building contractor, his wife and five children. "It has shaken up the whole town," Mayor Joe W. Gehlen said today. "The Zrusts were our friends and neighbors. Earl had been on our village council the past five years."

Zrust is 30 years old and his wife, Caroline, 28. Their children are Sandra, 10, Susan R. Terry, 5, Douglas, 3, and Russell, 2.

There were some puzzling aspects. The Zrusts left without taking their new home only the automobile and some heavy clothing were missing; the rest of the clothes and all household furnishings remained. Utilities were not shut off.

The disappearance was discovered by a milkman who made a delivery to the home Dec. 30, then found on his next trip that the milk was still outside. Zrust's widowed mother, Mrs. Christine Zrust, said she had no idea where the family could have gone. Neither had the George Stachowiaks, parents of Zrust's wife. Sisters and brothers who saw the couple Dec. 29 could give no information.

At first, neighbors speculated that the Zrusts had simply decided, on the spur of the moment, to take a holiday trip. But concern mounted when the new year's holiday ended and school reopened. Sheriff Leon Odgaard learned the family had a winter fishing house on Lake Mille Lacs. Investigation showed, though, that no one had been to the shack.

Mayor Gehlen said it was learned Zrust had been to the Court House in nearby Glenwood a day or so before the family disappeared. He obtained copies of birth certificates for the entire family, but gave no indication of his plans or why he wanted the documents. Silver Lake is about 40 miles west of Minneapolis.

Employment

gains in productivity are used to support claims for exceptional wage increases, United States business will be in trouble again.

In testimony for the Senate-Economic Committee today, Robey said if these increased costs are passed on to the consumer they will be reflected in inflation. If they cannot be passed on, he said, the resulting squeeze on profit will restrict production and business expansion.

Another witness, Walter Reuther, contended that different governmental policies could have pushed national production more than 100 billion dollars higher in the last six years.

"This production that we have not lost could well have spelled the difference between an unchallenged continuation of United States world leadership and the threatened, uneasy position in which we find ourselves today," he asserted.

Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers and an AFL-CIO vice president, outlined an extensive program of government activities he said would assure employment and economic growth.

Views of U. S. C. of C.
Before the same group the United States Chamber of Commerce contended that government policies are the greatest single cause of inflation, exceeding acts of both business and labor in that respect.

The Chamber said possible inflationary effects of private market power, whether of business or labor, are insignificant when compared to the inflation generated by government spending, taxing and debt policies.

Views of the Chamber were presented by its assistant director of economic research, Walter Fackler.

Both the Chamber and the N.A.M. called for federal tax revamping.

The number of unfair labor practice charges filed against employers by unions or individual workers reached record high in the last three months of 1958.

*The National Labor Relations board reports the anti-employer cases totaled 2219 in the three-month period. This was a 61 per cent increase over the comparable figures for 1957.

exclude being conciliatory, but it does exclude merely making concessions for which there is no counterpart."

West German Chancellor Adenauer, with whom Dulles met there, was pictured by a German spokesman as opposed to giving something away in the negotiations without getting anything in return.

Both German and American spokesmen also said the Western powers are still far from agreement on a detailed policy on how to meet the Soviet challenge in Berlin. They indicated that progress was made in the talks, however.

Meanwhile Allied representatives have completed the drafting of a note to Russia, proposing that a foreign ministers' meeting be held to deal with a wide range of German issues.

The Western foreign ministers may meet two more times before assembling with the Russians. No date for such a full-scale meeting has been fixed, but early May has been suggested.

That would be well in advance of the May 27 date originally fixed by the Russians for turning over to East Germany their powers controlling Allied access to Berlin. Russia also has called for Allied abandonment of West Berlin.

Dulles Estimate.
Before he left for his European trip, Dulles told the House Foreign Affairs Committee he thinks the Russians will "keep the pressure on until the very last minute" in the Berlin situation. He called West Berlin a showcase of the free world which said unnerves the Communists.

He said in reply to a question that the Western Allies are in complete agreement "on the basic proposition of standing firm in Berlin and, if need be, risking a war rather than being taken out of Berlin."

His testimony, made public over the weekend, also forecast a tougher Soviet line in the cold war.

Dulles said he sees no split widening between Russia and Red China. He contended also this country has no way of pulling out of Quemoy and Matsu—target of Red Chinese shelling last summer—without losing the whole Far East to the free world.

In addition to preparing for a meeting with Russia, these other problems seemed likely to get quick attention from Dulles and perhaps to figure in his meeting with Mr. Eisenhower.

1. Russia's weekend denunciation of a tape recording which the United States said shows that Russian fighter planes shot down an unarmed American military transport last Sept. 2. A transcript of the recording was made public here last week. Saturday night the Soviet radio denounced it as a fake and "a sensational farce."

2. Reports of United States-British differences over how to meet a Communist blockade of West Berlin should that develop in May or June as a result of Soviet efforts to force the Western powers to withdraw from the city.

3. The possibility of an early breakdown of East-West negotiations at Geneva for a bar on nuclear weapons tests enforced by a world-wide international inspection system. Moscow charged late last week that the United States attitude on various issues before the conference made agreements impossible.

School Aid

plan (which would require federal approval) to identify a "needy" district. The district proposes a $500,000 structure. The district would be required to show that in the first year "a reasonable tax effort" would be enough to pay principal and interest on an additional $250,000 of indebtedness with a debt service cost of 5.7 per cent.

The annual service cost on the $250,000 that the district cannot handle would be $14,250. The Federal Government would assume $7125 of this cost and the state the balance. Each year for a period extending 10 years beyond the life of the bond issue the situation would be reviewed, and if a "reasonable tax effort" eventually produced excess revenues, the district would be required to pay some or all of the debt service or repay advances.

How Colleges Would be Aided.
The college program would operate in this manner: If a public institution borrowed $1,000,000 on a tax-exempt bond basis to construct a classroom building, the Federal Government would give a commitment for debt retirement assistance in the amount of $250,000 payable over 20 years.

If a private college borrowed $1,000,000 for the same purpose the Federal Government would guarantee the loan (which presumably would provide a more favorable interest rate on non-tax-exempt bonds) and make the same debt retirement commitment as in the case of the public institution.

No Cash During 1960.
Flemming emphasized that the Federal Government would not be required to make cash payments to school districts or colleges in fiscal 1960. He said, proposals recognized a "pressing need" for additional facilities and that the Federal Government should assist on an emergency basis only needy school districts and only colleges and universities that need to borrow to accelerate construction.

Furthermore, he said, the plans provide assistance in a manner consistent with Administration fiscal policies. He added he knew of no other proposals that meet all these criteria, and that he would do everything possible to persuade Congress to accept them.

When asked whether he thought they had a chance, he replied, "Sure."

RULING ON BARRACKS PROJECT AGREEMENT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 9—An agreement between the St. Louis County Housing Authority and the County Council, for services to the Jefferson Barracks housing project, was nullified by the Missouri Supreme Court today.

The agreement can be made only by ordinance, and not by resolution as attempted, the court held.

The case was sent back to Clayton with directions that the council and housing authority "be given a reasonable opportunity to enter into a valid agreement."

The agreement provided that the housing authority should pay the county 10 per cent of the net shelter rental in lieu of taxes in return for sewer and other services.

A suit attacking the validity of the agreement, filed by six persons living near Jefferson Barracks, was dismissed last March by Circuit Judge Michael J. Carroll at Clayton. The appeal was argued before the Supreme Court in September.

The housing authority has plans for a 288-unit development, to cost more than $2,000,000.

In another ruling today the court upheld the four-year prison sentence of Thomas G. Gilpin, a former St. Louis real estate dealer convicted of obtaining money under false pretenses, but it ordered a new trial in another case in which Gilpin received a two-year sentence.

Quadruplets Born in Mexico.
COLIMA, Mexico, Feb. 9 (UPI)—Quadruplet girls, born to Maria Guzman Thursday on an isolated ranch, were reported "doing well" today in incubators at a hospital here. They are the second quadruplets born in Mexico this year. Four infants were born Jan. 22 in Toluca.

should the two parties find a basis of "common interest."

Brandt said he was studying with great interest a theory put forth by the former United States Ambassador to Russia, George Kennan, that a limited withdrawal of both East and West forces might ease the German problem.

"I can't identify myself with the details," Brandt said. "I feel that a rethinking of European policy would be necessary."

Mrs. Brandt said the women of West Berlin were not frightened at all by Soviet threats.

"We have gone through so many difficulties before, we are not afraid now," she said.

Reds Say Willy Brandt Has Gone on 'Cold War Path.'

BERLIN, Feb. 9 (UPI)—The East German Communists said today West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt has gone on the "cold war path" through the United States.

They also criticized Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and his brother and sister.

The official Communist party newspaper Neues Deutschland berated Brandt for meeting in Washington with Mrs. Eleanor Dulles, sister of the Secretary and a State Department advisor on West Berlin. She retained her family name after her marriage.

It said the Secretary, his sister and their brother, Allan, are the three leading cold war fighters in the United States. Allan Dulles is head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The newspaper said no good for West Berlin could come out of Brandt's meeting in Washington.

Ignace Neumark Dies.
THE HAGUE, Feb. 9 (AP)—Conductor Ignace Neumark died in a hospital today after a brief illness. He was 70 years old. Born in Poland, he studied music in Warsaw and Leipzig, and conducted several German and Norwegian orchestras before World War I. He spent the World War II years in the United States, where he mainly devoted himself to composing film music.

ABRAHAM L. YEVELSON DIES; FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW
Funeral services for Abraham L. Yevelson, a retired baker, will be at 1 p.m. tomorrow at the Berger undertaking establishment, 4715 McPherson avenue. Burial will be in Chevre-Kadisha Cemetery.

Mr. Yevelson, who was 72 years old, operated the Yevelson Bakery in north St. Louis until his retirement in 1945. He died at Jewish Hospital today of a heart ailment. He was a member of Tipheris Israel Congregation, Ebn Ezra Lodge 47, B'nai B'rith, Warshaver Aid Society, and the Jewish War Veterans. He lived at 6320 Enright avenue, University City.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mollie Yevelson; two daughters, Mrs. Jake Cohen and Mrs. Morris Cohen, and a son, Bernard Yevelson, all of University City.

A Pointed Remark.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Representative Peter Frelinghuysen (Rep., New Jersey), has a modern definition of a Congressman: "The shortest distance between two years."

URGES INQUIRY IN HAGERTY AND FCC EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—Dr. Bernard Schwartz, former House committee investigator, said in New York yesterday that he believed there should be a formal congressional inquiry into communications between White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty and the Federal Communications Commission.

Schwartz explained his position after Hagerty denied on Saturday that he had sought to influence the regulatory agency. Hagerty asserted that the FCC had decided an Albany television case before he asked for information about it. He said: "Mr. Schwartz was either misinformed or was deliberately lying."

The sequence of events shows that: On Feb. 26, 1957, the FCC issued an order proposing to turn all television in the Albany-Schenectady-Troy area into ultra-high-frequency, UHF, operation, the rarer form of transmission.

On March 5, 1957, Hagerty wrote the commission chairman, enclosing a letter from William J. Embler, research consultant to the New York State Assembly's Republican majority. Embler said the Democrats were making political propaganda about the order, and added it would force 120,000 residents to convert sets or be deprived of television.

On June 24, 1957, the FCC reversed itself, made all television in the area a very-high-frequency, VHF, operation, the common form of commercial telecasting.

Schwartz, a New York University professor of administrative law, was asked to comment yesterday, but emphasized that he had not started the weekend furor.

He said he had been approached by reporters who had seen an advance copy of his book, "The Professor and the Commissioners," to be published by Alfred A. Knopf Feb. 17.

Case Listed in Book.
He said he had simply confirmed that the book listed the Hagerty case among others which he believed needed further investigation by some body, such as the House subcommittee on Legislative Oversight. He had been that group's chief counsel.

"It has always been my strong conviction," Schwartz said, "that any communication between members of the White House and the independent quasi-judicial agencies is improper."

"The forwarding of a letter from a 'personal friend' by a White House official would certainly appear to fall into this category."

"It is highly significant that this correspondence was kept in a secret White House file by the commission. The FCC, when approached by reporters on this in the past few weeks, refused to release any of the documents, and indeed refused to explain the very existence of this file to reporters."

Intervention by White House.
"The basic point is that cases in a commission should be decided solely on the record in the public interest. I have not charged that the decision in this case was based on anything but the record, but there was an intervention by the White House which had the power of appointment over the man who was approached."

Schwartz said, "The facts show that three months after Mr. Hagerty intervened the FCC did reverse its original decision."

The original February decision would have blocked an application by the Hudson Valley Broadcasting Co., which was operating on UHF Channel 41, for a more desirable VHF channel. Hudson Valley had been bought in 1954 by a group including Lowell Thomas, commentator, and Alger B. Chapman, a manager of Republican gubernatorial campaigns.

McConaughy Explains.
However, the General Electric Co. would also have been shoved out of its VHF Channel 6, and put into the UHF field. George C. McConaughy, then FCC chairman, explained to Hagerty on March 13 that the commission was making some areas all UHF and some all VHF, rather than continue mixing both types, which might force the UHF stations competitively out of business.

The February order was protested by all parties concerned. After hearings, the FCC reversed itself, and a June order provided for all-VHF operation instead. The Lowell Thomas group was awarded VHF Channel 10 in September.

In Albany yesterday, Embler said no one had asked him to act and "I didn't care whom it might be favorable to." He said his concern had been that 120,000 persons would be unable to use their existing television sets and might "blame the Eisenhower Administration."

"Jim is a person I know in Washington," he said. "If I wrote to the FCC, I don't know anybody there, and it would be just another letter received. I felt if this were true, that people were going to lose their television programs, he ought to know it, and they ought to take it into consideration."

"It all gets down to a simple question if by government order they can make sets obsolete. It looked to me like an obvious misuse of that power."

to the resignations of Sherman Adams, who was President Eisenhower's chief assistant, and Richard A. Mack, an FCC member.

U.S. Air Force

B-52 heavy jet bombers, two more than had been shown under previously announced plans.

B-52 to Remain.
The B-52 manned bomber is slated, under present plans, to remain an important part of the nuclear weapon delivery system at least to 1965 and perhaps longer, depending on the speed with which missiles and other unmanned weapons are perfected.

Defense Department officials said that one wing of the new, improved B-52G series can replace two wings of B-47s. The B-52G has longer range, without using aerial refueling, than the first B-52 series. More important, the B-52G will be armed with the Hound Dog missile—a device for sending the nuclear explosive into a heavily defended enemy area while the bomber itself remains several hundred miles away.

It is probable that by the time the 90-wing size is reached it will include units of the B-70 long range, heavy, supersonic bomber, which is still in the development stage.

Anti-Missile Missile Delay.
House investigators were told that the Defense Department decision may mean extended delay in producing an anti-missile missile.

Space Committee members said they will press Secretary McElroy to say exactly whose advice led him to overrule the defense department's early production of the Nike-Zeus anti-missile system.

There were signs the committee might recommend giving the Army the $700,000,000 service had vainly sought to intercept the missile on the Nike-Zeus into actual production.

The committee today questioned two strong proponents of the Army's anti-missile missile—Maj. Gen. William W. Dick, Jr., director of special weapons, and Maj. Gen. D. E. Beach, director of air defense.

Dick said the Army has achieved "several major technical breakthroughs" in the task of developing a weapon to intercept the ICBM's which fly at 18,000 miles an hour.

Notably, he said, the Army last August static-tested a full-scale engine for the Zeus that produced 450,000 pounds of thrust, "sufficient to launch the missile at a speed high enough to insure interception of the incoming enemy nose cone."

A new radar technique also makes it possible to spot large numbers of very small targets, he said.

Dick said McElroy had decided, however, the Nike-Zeus was not far enough along to justify starting production of some of the components requiring most time. This was the Army's recommendation, and still is, the general said, but "we abide by the decision."

Last week McElroy said it might be possible to decide within two years whether to manufacture the Nike-Zeus.

Missile to Go to Troops in Germany in Spring.
BALTIMORE, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Mace missile, which can deliver a nuclear payload at near the speed of sound and does its own map-reading, will go to United States troops in Germany in the spring, the Air Force announced yesterday.

The Martin Co., which made public the Air Force announcement, said the Mace will replace the Matador missile in the 587th Tactical Missile Group at Sembach Air Base. Martin built both missiles.

A prime feature of the Mace is that it has its own completely integrated missile system, Martin said. It includes launcher, prime mover, test equipment and ground handling equipment, all specifically designed for the Mace. Mace is a surface-to-surface tactical weapon with a range of more than 650 miles.

Amazing Herbold Pomade Tones Down Gray Hair Keeps Men's Hair Neat, Alive, Young
M. Herbold, Hollywood Chemist, noted Inventor of Herbold Pomade, tells men how to avoid Gray Hair.
If the years have stolen the natural color and oils from your hair, leaving streaks of dry lifeless gray—simply use Herbold Pomade instead of your regular hair dressing. Massage it in with fingertips. That's all there is to it!
This clean, easy-to-use hair cream adds color to gray, streaked or faded hair, so gradually, and blends it so perfectly with your own natural color. Your hair will look young and alive again, with the color it had before it became old and gray.
If you are completely gray, or have only a few gray hairs—if you were once blonde or brunette, this one and only Herbold Pomade will add just the right touch of lasting color for your hair. The improvement is so real, so gradual, no one, not even yourself, can tell you are using anything but a fine hair dressing—because the special oils in Herbold Pomade groom, condition and restore that lustrous, alive, neat young look.
Start using Herbold Pomade today. In 1 to 3 weeks you will have the assurance of looking younger, without gray hair.
Cream or Liquid
Use Creamy Pomade to condition dry hair. Liquid Pomade for thinning, oily or normal hair. Both tone down Gray Hair.

$400,000 IN GEMS STOLEN AT HOTEL
AT MIAMI BEACH

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 9 (AP)—A thief, perhaps a gem expert, stole a reported $400,000 in diamonds, emeralds and other jewelry from the hotel suite of a vacationing New York automobile rental magnate.

The theft yesterday was the biggest in the history of Miami Beach luxury hotels. The FBI, acting on the assumption the haul would be transported out of the state, immediately assigned 20 agents to the case. The jewelry was owned by Leon C. Greenebaum, chairman of the Board of Herz Car Rental Corp., his wife, and her sister, Mrs. Arthur Cole, also of New York.

Greenebaum told reporters someone either overlooked or chose not to take some of the gems.

Mrs. Cole interrupted the interview with "I do not want any of this in the newspapers." She and her husband operate Mr. Mort, one of New York City's leading dress houses.

Because some of the jewelry was not taken, officers theorized the thief was a professional, knew how to appraise gems and knew what he was after.

The largest piece was a $180,000 ring. The other pieces were mostly diamond and emerald bracelets and necklaces.

CYPRUS ACCORD

ZURICH, Switzerland, Feb. 9 (AP)—Greece and Turkey were reported near agreement today on a draft constitution for an independent Cyprus, with the Turkish minority to have a veto over matters of foreign relations, defense and internal security.

The tentative charter would give the North Atlantic Treaty Organization control of military bases on the British crown colony island in the eastern Mediterranean. It has not yet been agreed whether Greek or Turkish troops will replace those parts of the British garrisons to be withdrawn.

The question of the garrisons may be left for further discussions when Prime Ministers Karamanlis of Greece and Menderes of Turkey meet later with British Prime Minister Macmillan.

As far as constitutional arrangements are concerned, Britain is reportedly to have informed Greece and Turkey it will accept any solution they agree on. The conferees here are keeping London closely informed on progress of the talks.

Karamanlis and Menderes met privately today while Foreign Ministers Evangelos Averoff of Greece and Fatin Rustu Zorlu of Turkey continued their negotiations separately. The two Premiers had not met since the opening day of the conference Friday.

The draft constitution, agreed on in principle, would make the British colony an independent republic. It specifies that no part of the island would ever become a part of Greece or Turkey.

There would be separate parliamentary bodies for the Turkish minority of 100,000 and the Greek majority of 400,000,

Admirers at Party Rip Off Part of Jayne Mansfield's Dress

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 9 (UPI)—Jayne Mansfield, who was stripped to the waist by admirers at a Mardi Gras ball early yesterday, said today she will go to other carnival-season parties as a knight of old "if I can find a suit of armor."

Rio was a whirl of gaiety today as the three-day carnival that ushers in Lent each year picked up speed. Police said the celebration was quieter than usual—at latest reports, only 943 persons had been treated for injuries.

Miss Mansfield first set off an uproar at a dance in the Copacabana Palace Hotel when she arrived in an extremely low-cut gown. About 2 a.m., Miss Mansfield caused another commotion by climbing onto a chair to do a shimmy.

This time, the crowd gathered around her began snatching at the rosebuds sewed to her dress. Then someone pulled the zipper at the back of the dress, other hands grabbed, and the upper part of the dress disintegrated.

Miss Mansfield's husband, Mickey Hargitay, threw his jacket over her shoulders and forced a way through the crowd to the door.

Miss Mansfield said ruefully that her dress was not only ruined, but she collected a number of black-and-blue spots where pinchers had been at work.

"I'll go to the next party as a medieval knight. If I can find a suit of armor," she said.

Hargitay shrugged off Miss Mansfield's mishap as "spontaneous combustion."

RED CHINA CLAIMS TO HAVE SUNK
FORMOSAN SHIP

TOKYO, Feb. 9 (AP)—Communist China today claimed to have sunk a Nationalist gunboat off the Fukien coast at the northern entrance to the Formosa strait.

The Peiping radio said a Communist naval vessel sank the gunboat on Feb. 2 northeast of Pingtan (Haitan) island.

The broadcast said 11 "disguised" Nationalists were shot as spies and 12 others were taken prisoner, apparently meaning that the 23 had been aboard the gunboat and were picked up.

There were no further details.

MINORITY BARS FLUORIDATION, FLEMMING SAYS

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Washington Correspondent
of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (UPI)—A "militant minority" is blocking the extension of water fluoridation in the United States, Arthur S. Flemming, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, charged today.

He called for a campaign by a "militant majority" to promote the adoption by additional cities and towns of this measure to combat tooth decay.

Only one out of four persons in the United States has this protection, "although controlled fluoridation has been proved over and over again to be an inexpensive and completely safe means of preventing 65 per cent of dental decay," Flemming said.

He went on: "Moreover—and this is the most disturbing fact of all—the proportion of the population not benefiting from this remarkable health measure is actually increasing."

Flemming said intensive research for 25 years "shows conclusively that water containing a proper amount of fluoride reduces dental decay by about 65 per cent."

He added that equally conclusive research had demonstrated that "controlled fluoridation is completely safe, causing no bodily harm of any kind."

Lifetime protection costs only a few cents per person per year, he continued, and fluoridation is supported by the majority of persons informed about it, as well as by the American Dental Association and the American Medical Association.

Flemming said he had asked, in the light of these factors, why the extension of fluoridation had been lagging in the last two years.

He went on: "I have come to the conclusion that it amounts basically to this: The opponents of fluoridation are a militant minority; the proponents of fluoridation, as is so frequently the case with proponents of new health measures, are an unmilitant majority."

Flemming said he had concluded that what was needed was "a militant majority for fluoridation," adding: "I am convinced that fluoridation would be proceeding rapidly if the question were decided on its merits by informed people."

Conceding that some informed persons would continue to oppose fluoridation as a matter of principle, Flemming said such persons were not the main ones who blocked local fluoridation projects. "Some of the most vocal opponents of fluoridation are persons who have been charged by the Food and Drug Administration with making false health claims for nostrums and devices and thereby influencing their customers against seeking needed medical advice," he said.

Flemming issued the statement at a news conference. He noted that President Eisenhower had proclaimed this week National Dental Health week.

An accompanying background statement, by the Division of Dental Public Health of the United States Public Health Service, said 41,000,000 persons in the nation now were drinking water containing at least the minimum amount of fluoride, compared with only 8,000,000 in 1950. The gain has been mostly in larger cities, however.

3-YEAR TERM SUGGESTED FOR WOMAN IN HOLDUP CASE

A three-year prison term has been recommended for Miss Joan Casey, who pleaded guilty to a reduced charge after her conviction on a robbery charge had been set aside last Jan. 26. First Assistant Circuit Attorney Henry J. Fredericks said today.

A jury in Circuit Judge William E. Buder's court had fixed her punishment at five years, but the court ordered a new trial after it was disclosed that incorrect testimony had been given by a state witness.

Fredericks said the three-year term was recommended because the defendant is only 20 years old and has no previous convictions. She was identified at the trial as driver of a getaway automobile used in a drugstore robbery. Sentencing is set for Feb. 20, pending study of her request for probation.

URGES RIGHTS COMMISSION BE MADE PERMANENT BODY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—A proposal that the Federal Commission on Civil Rights be made a permanent agency with broadened powers was made today by Representative John D. Dingell (Dem.), Michigan.

Dingell said in remarks prepared for the House that giving the commission permanent status would prevent its enemies from stalling tactics until the commission goes out of business Nov. 9.

He said his bill would "broaden the duties of the commission to include investigation of denial of citizens of any right or privilege protected by the laws and Constitution of the United States." The commission now is confined to making broad studies and investigations of sworn complaints alleging denial of voting rights.

$240,000 in Platinum Stolen. LE VESINET, France, Feb. 9 (AP)—Five masked and armed men raided an optical instrument factory in this Paris suburb yesterday and fled with platinum worth about $240,000. The robbers overpowered four workers on duty at the Parnamontis plant.

House Unit Can't Even Get Data on Data It Can't Get

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (UPI)—The House information subcommittee today ran into trouble even getting some information about information from the White House.

Subcommittee Chairman John E. Moss (Dem.), California, sought for the second time to obtain Guidelines issued by the White House for release of information by the Pentagon—particularly about missiles and satellites.

A subcommittee spokesman said, "The least the White House can do is tell American citizens what kind of things it won't tell them."

The subcommittee's particular target is the White House's powerful Operations Co-ordinating Board, operating arm of the National Security Council. The subcommittee previously contended in a report that the board is "calling the signals on important information policies."

Moss first asked Board Chairman Christian A. Herter, Under Secretary of State, for a copy of Guidelines.

He noted that Assistant Secretary of Defense Murray Snyder, the Pentagon's chief press officer, had cited the Guidelines as the basis for determining what he would—and would not—tell the public about United States moon shots.

Gerald D. Morgan, deputy assistant to President Eisenhower, replied for Herter. The reply was: No—with "regret." "The Operations Co-ordinating Board is part of the National Security Council structure," Morgan wrote. "With the exception of procedural and organizational matters National Security Council papers have never been made available to committees of Congress."

Moss replied with a request that Morgan state "on what statutory or other authority he refused to send along the Guidelines."

The chairman also asked for an explanation of "how the public interest is benefited by withholding from Congress an official document stating the official policies of the Government."

Runaway Boy Found Dead.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 9 (AP)—An 11-year-old boy, who ran away from home after being spanked, was found dead yesterday in an abandoned building a block from his home. Homicide Inspector Walter Kracke said Charles Matthews apparently died of asphyxiation caused by an unvented gas heater.

METER THIEF IS ACCUSED OUT OF OWN MOUTH

Members of the police mobile reserve unit were puzzled for a while last night. They arrested a man they observed removing coin boxes from parking meters on Kingshighway, but couldn't figure out how he was doing it. The suspected thief had thrown nothing away when six policemen converged on him at Kingshighway and Euclid avenue. No device for opening the boxes was found in his clothing or in a truck he was driving.

Under the front seat of the truck, the officers found 14 coin boxes. This discovery seemed to convince the suspect that the jig was up.

The man, who identified himself as Andrew F. Wheeler, 29 years old, living in the 7000 block of Minnesota avenue, reached inside his mouth. He produced a key that fit the boxes. Police said he will be questioned about thefts from 200 other parking meters.

U.S. SELLS ARMS TO INDONESIA FOR 14,000 SOLDIERS

JAKARTA, Feb. 9 (AP)—The United States is selling Indonesia enough light weapons and vehicles to equip 20 battalions, or about 14,000 troops. It is the first major sale of American military equipment to the island republic in several years.

The deal also includes one navy ship of undisclosed type and other navy and air force items.

United States Ambassador Howard P. Jones informed Foreign Minister Subandrio last night that President Eisenhower had approved the sale. Jones did not announce the size of the shipment, but unofficial reports said it would be worth about $10,000,000.

The sale was taken as an indication that the United States has faith that President Sukarno's government will remain independent of the Soviet bloc as well as of the West in the cold war. It is certain to boost already-rising American prestige in Indonesia.

'No Strings' in Deal.
Premier Djuanda told newsmen the arms were coming with "no strings and are not military aid such as is given other countries."

Djuanda said the arms were being sold at a "special price" and would be paid for on a long term basis. The price and terms are to be negotiated later under an agreement made last August when Indonesia was promised arms for self-defense and internal security.

The arms, requested by Indonesia last November, are understood to be reconditioned machine guns, bazookas, grenades, vehicles and other supplies. They are for troop replacements or additions to a 200,000-man army in its campaign against the last of the rebels in Sumatra and east Indonesia. The government has defeated most organized resistance, but unofficial reports say some 4000 rebels still are at large.

Bought Red Arms.

The Indonesian government tried to buy arms from the United States early in 1958, but failed. Indonesian officers then arranged to buy arms from some Communist countries.

The increased United States confidence in the Sukarno government is said to have been brought about mainly by the head of the army, Lt. Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, who last year curbed the rebellion and then checked the disrupting influence of Indonesia's powerful Communists.

In Washington, United States officials said a training program for the Indonesian navy and air force is included in the agreement. They said the two governments agreed the arms will not be used for any purpose other than maintaining security and national self-defense.

By United Press International.

Djuanda said the United States did not ask for specific guarantees that the arms would not be used for an attack on West Irian. Indonesia has claimed West Irian (Dutch New Guinea).

Asked about the possibility of a protest by the Netherlands against the sale, Djuanda replied: "They are free to do so—they have done so often."

He expressed hope that the United States "gesture" would influence Australia's attitude toward Indonesia. He noted that foreign secretary Subandrio was leaving for Australia for talks aimed at improving relations.

FUNERAL TO BE WEDNESDAY FOR THEODORE S. SCHMIDT

Funeral services for Theodore S. Schmidt, owner of the T. S. Schmidt real estate firm in Clayton, will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the Lupton undertaking establishment, 7233 Delmar boulevard, University City.

Mr. Schmidt, 58 years old, died of a stroke yesterday at Barnes Hospital. He had been engaged in the real estate business in the St. Louis area for many years and was a former president of the St. Louis chapter, Institute of Real Estate Management. He lived at 18 Burroughs lane, Ladue.

Surviving are his wife; his mother, Mrs. Hans Schmidt of Sherman, Texas, and a daughter, Miss Judith Anne Schmidt.

DENNARD J. BAILEY DIES, AERIAL GUNNER HERO

BALTIMORE, Feb. 9 (AP)—A World War II veteran who once was listed among the top 10 aerial gunners of the Pacific theater, collapsed and died Saturday in a waterfront rooming house.

The proprietor of the place said Dennard J. Bailey, 49 years old, had held part-time jobs as a car washer and porter. The only personal papers found among the possessions of the often-decorated veteran was a Veterans' Administration letter attesting he had served his country honorably.

WOMAN SERIOUSLY BURNED WHEN CLOTHES CATCH FIRE

Miss Mary Hulda Justeson, 248 Buddie avenue, Calverton Park, was in serious condition at St. Louis County Hospital today with third-degree burns over much of her body. Her clothing caught fire Friday as she dropped a match when lighting a cigarette.

Her brother, Arthur, threw water on her and treated her at home, but later took her to the hospital.

RANCH IN MEXICO TURNED OVER TO 835 FAMILIES

CANANEA, Mexico, Feb. 9 (AP)—The huge Greene ranch just below the Arizona border, one of the last foreign-owned ranches in Mexico, was officially turned over to 835 Mexican families yesterday by President Adolfo Lopez Mateos.

The 847,000-acre property was expropriated last August after long negotiations for its sale to the government failed. The amount the Greenses will receive is still uncertain. The heirs of Col. William Greene, the founder, are involved in extensive legal disputes over their shares of the estate.

An elaborate program has been worked out by the government to divide the ranch into seven sections. Each will have separate managers and tenants who will operate their part as a collective. Most of the land will be used for ranching. One section, richer than others, will be used for farming.

FUNERAL WEDNESDAY FOR ALAN S. FULLER

Funeral services for Alan S. Fuller, retired president of the Seidel Manufacturing Co., will be at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Jay B. Smith undertaking establishment, 7456 Manchester boulevard, Maplewood. Burial will be in the Lake Charles Cemetery.

Mr. Fuller, 80 years old, died today at his home, 7363 Maple avenue, Maplewood, of a heart ailment. He retired in 1955 after serving as president of the company for 14 years. The firm, which represents manufacturers in the hardware business, is located at 2648 Washington boulevard. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Marie G. Fuller; a son, Jack Fuller; a daughter, Mrs. W. W. Bracken of Los Angeles, Calif.; and a brother and sister.

Sworn in as Housing Aid. WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Walter Rosenberry of St. Paul, was sworn in today as deputy administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

If it's a question of smooth skin...

Sardo — an entirely new answer to the problem of dry, flaky, old looking skin. Sardo — so different from creams and lotions that only hide wrinkles and roughness without really correcting the cause. Sardo — the proven formula that makes beauty more than skin deep; the wonderful magic liquid that brings to life the natural oils in your body... to give your skin the smoothness, the loveliness, that time would steal. Sardo — so easy to use that convincing yourself will be a pleasure. Just add a capful to your bath... then relax in the warmth of new confidence as your skin takes on the fresh glow of youth. Try it before you're a day older.

FORMER MISSOURI MODEL FOUND DEAD

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—An investigation continued today in an effort to determine how and why pretty Mrs. Bettie Davis, 30-year-old cafe society figure, died Friday night.

Mrs. Davis, blonde former model from Buffalo, Mo., and Sinclair Robinson, wealthy financier and lawyer, had taken out a marriage license Dec. 5 at Greenwich, Conn. A friend of Robinson said Robinson had called off the wedding.

Police have refused to confirm reports that a letter from Robinson telling Mrs. Davis of the broken engagement was found in the dead woman's suite. Robinson was reported to be at his home in Beverly Hills, Calif.

Mrs. Davis was found slumped over the side of an empty bathtub in her $40-a-day suite in the fashionable hotel Savoy Hilton.

An autopsy report said death was due to visceral (internal organ) congestion, but a chemical analysis of the vital organs was ordered to determine the precise cause.

Mrs. Davis reportedly had been married three times, once to a Col. Ed Davis. Robinson had been a long-time friend of Hope Hampton, former actress. He attracted widespread attention when he reportedly offered $7,500,000 for the Brooklyn Dodgers to keep them from moving to Los Angeles.

In Buffalo, Mo., Mrs. Davis's mother, Mrs. Lulu Quisenberry, made arrangements for funeral services there Thursday.

Pope to Fly N. More.

ROGERS STRUCK TOUGH PROVISION FROM RIGHTS BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—Virginia's peaceful acceptance of a few Negro children in white public schools had a significant impact on the civil rights program which the Administration sent to Congress last week.

Until the last moment the program included a provision to let the Attorney General bring school integration suits when individual citizens were unable to do so for fear of reprisal or some other reason. President Eisenhower had endorsed the proposal, and it was read to congressional leaders last week as part of the Administration program. When some of the leaders reacted negatively, Attorney General William P. Rogers took another look.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Mon., Feb. 9, 1959 9A

He decided that the pattern in Virginia argued against submitting anything that would look like what he termed "a strong federal hand" that might rearouse subsiding emotions. The President agreed, and the provision was struck from the program.

WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH
WHEN FIRE SWEEPS ROOM

Mrs. Anna Canaday, 84 years old, was burned to death yesterday in a fire which swept through her living quarters at 1103 North Channing avenue.

Firemen found Mrs. Canaday seated in a chair near an oil stove. They said the fire apparently was started because the stove was operating improperly.

The fire was confined to the room occupied by Mrs. Canaday. Damage was estimated at $600.

TO SEEK AID ON CRIME RECORDS

A move to enlist county-wide support of a plan to establish a joint St. Louis-St. Louis County central criminal record system will be made at a meeting tomorrow of the St. Louis County Law Enforcement Officers Association. It was announced today.

Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell of St. Louis indicated today that the city was ready to co-operate in the plan after he received a letter soliciting his comments. The county would pay for extra clerical help needed to keep the records.

The central records system was first proposed about a year ago by members of the North St. Louis County Municipal Police Association. Preliminary discussions have been held with St. Louis police.

Use of facilities at St. Louis police headquarters would make unnecessary a proposed county police tax to finance a county system. The tax has been suggested by County Supervisor James H. McNary.

Chief O'Connell today received a letter from Police Chief Brown Hargrove of Overland asking whether he considered some sort of central record system feasible. Hargrove, who also is president of the north county association, requested suggestions for establishing the system.

Hargrove's group represents 42 communities in the northern half of the county.

O'Connell said he will study the proposal.

will not participate in any United Fund drive or other systematic solicitation stopping or impeding production," he said. Local 688 is comprised of warehouse and distribution workers, warehouse clerical workers, and some industrial workers.

Such lump sum contributions will be beneficial to all parties concerned, Gibbons said.

More Money Expected.

"We anticipate that United Fund and other charitable organizations will get more money through the foundation than they would by solicitations in the plants," he said.

"Many workers don't like being solicited on their jobs and will be glad to avoid it, and management will be tickled to death to keep production going."

The new procedure will not prevent companies from making their usual corporate gifts to charities, and union members desiring to make contributions as individuals will be free to do so, Gibbons said.

At the outset of operations by the foundation, the subcommittee probably will recommend projects to the management-labor committee, he said. The committee would then decide how the funds available should be apportioned among the various groups.

"It is hoped that some sort of a formula can be evolved for divisions of funds among the various groups after the foundation has been operating for a while," Gibbons said. "No local union, or even an international union, has attempted to establish its own foundation, so far as we can learn, so there are no experience patterns to guide us."

Obligation to Community.

Asked if the $2 monthly payment into the foundation by an employer did not come from the total sum management had available for payment of wages direct to the worker, Gibbons said:

"We admit that immediately. But the question of what a labor union local owes to the community and community projects was fought out a long time ago in Local 688."

The average wage of the local's members working in warehouses was estimated at $2.12½ cents an hour, with fringe benefits representing an additional 23 cents an hour. About 50 to 55 per cent of the local's members are in the warehouse group. Because of varying economic conditions in businesses in which other members are employed, union statisticians said it was difficult to fix an average figure that would have meaning.

Gibbons was host at a Teamster luncheon yesterday for Gov. William G. Stratton of Illinois at the Park Plaza Hotel. Stratton appeared yesterday on the union's television program, "Labor Views the News," on station KTVI.

FEPC-Type Bill Planned.

Stratton said a bill sponsored by his administration to establish an agency to move against job-discrimination practices would be introduced shortly in the Illinois Legislature. The agency would be patterned after the Fair Employment Practices Commissions in other states, he said.

The Governor said he plans also to appoint a separate study commission to examine social and economic problems involved in hiring practices, including those of racial discrimination.

Stratton said he would seek the co-operation of Illinois business and labor leaders in enactment of legislation that would permit the period of state unemployment benefit payments to expand or contract with fluctuating employment conditions.

About 20 business men, union representatives and political leaders attended the luncheon for the Republican Governor. The politicians, however, were all Democrats: Mark R. Holman, Democratic national committeeman from Missouri; St. Louis County Supervisor James H. J. McNary, and State Senator Robert Pentland of the First District.

A Teamster spokesman said Republicans would have been invited, but none had arrived home from the Lincoln day rally Saturday in Kansas City.

ADM. FELT SAYS U.S. FORCES
STAND READY IN PACIFIC

KUALA LUMPUR, Feb. 9. (UPI)—Adm. H. D. Felt, commander in chief of United States Pacific forces, said today that the Navy, Army and Air Force are "completely prepared for all contingencies in the western Pacific."

Felt said on arriving in Malaya that the United States' prime concern is the maintenance of international security and peace in the western Pacific and any loss of the United States position would "give confidence to the Communists, as they usually probe for soft spots wherever they can find them."

"My task is to make sure... they will find no soft spots," Felt said, commenting on a statement yesterday by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles that the defense of Quemoy and Matsu islands is vital to the whole question of peace in the Pacific.

MEETING SET TO DISCUSS PROPOSED 3-TOWN MERGER

A public meeting to discuss the proposed merger of Ladue, Frontenac and Huntleigh Villages will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Horton Watkins High School, 1201 South Watson road, Ladue. It was announced yesterday. A citizens committee is sponsoring the meeting.

Mayor William R. Bascom of Ladue and Ladue's six councilmen have been invited to attend. Mayor Bascom and four of the councilmen, A. Lee Shapleigh II, Edmund T. Allen, Willis T. Engle and Thomas S. McPheeters Jr., favor the merger. Councilmen Karl R. Spencer and Harry D. Gaines are opposed. The public is invited to attend.

KREMLIN QUIET ON DOWNING OF
PLANE, U.S. SAYS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The State Department said today that despite the Moscow radio's cry of forgery, the Kremlin has been officially silent on United States charges that Soviet jets shot down an unarmed American plane.

Department Press Chief Lincoln White said the Soviet Government has "studiously avoided" telling the Russian people about the American charges.

White renewed the United States offer to play for Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov a recording the department says is the conversation by radio among the Russian pilots as they shot down the plane Sept. 2.

Last week the State Department disclosed it had tried to persuade Menshikov to listen to the records but that he declined on the grounds that he was not familiar with aviation technology.

"Now, Radio Moscow in various languages other than in Russian, can yell 'foul' and 'perjury' until it is blue in the face," White declared. "The facts speak for themselves."

White said the United States Information Agency's Voice of America radio is broadcasting the recording into Russia. However, the Russians maintain elaborate jamming equipment to garble Voice broadcasts.

White told reporters: "We have no official communication from the Soviet government on this subject. We hope we will."

He said the United States Government still hopes to receive some information from Moscow on the 11 American crewmen missing since the plane went down Sept. 2 in Soviet Armenia. Six bodies were returned by Russia, which has maintained it has no further information. White refused, as he has all along, to say how the recording was made. He also refused to say whether it was made by United States or other allied agents.

Under questioning White said, "We are convinced of the authenticity of the recording."

BALKS AT CONGRESS'S
DIVESTATORY POWERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Jessica Weiss (Rep.), New York, a new congresswoman, tells this story about her first day in Congress: As she walked on to the floor, a House attendant suggested she remove her hat. She complied. As she was about to slip into her seat, someone else suggested that congresswomen do not wear gloves. Slowly, Mrs. Weiss removed her gloves, and then announced: "If they tell me to take off just one more thing, I'm going to fight."

Don't let
run away

IT!

Inflation can easily become a runaway horse.

Inflation is caused by a lot of things. But one of the most important is rising labor costs without a corresponding increase in the nation's productive efficiency. The reason: 75 percent or more of the cost of what you buy is for labor.

It's kind of a chain reaction. With each round of wage and price increases, our dollar loses another chunk of purchasing power.

If things keep on this way another twenty years—or ten—or five—what will happen to your savings, your insurance, your pension plans, your children's education? Inflation robs you of your future security. Isn't it time to stop this senseless spiral?

Some people think they enjoy a little inflation—at least temporarily when they get a few more dollars in pay

For a while they have more dollars to spend and everything is rosy.

But, too soon, comes the day when rising costs force prices up so high people don't have enough dollars to go around.

Nobody likes inflation then.

The American Iron and Steel Institute brings you this message from the steel industry because Inflation robs us all

ARE YOU TREATING
THE WRONG COLD?

What you call a "common cold" may be symptoms of 3 so-called colds Virus... Flu... Sinus

Check your doctor—what you call a "common cold" may actually be symptoms of one of three so-called colds: (1) Virus; (2) Flu; or (3) Allergic Sinusitis. Since the symptoms often overlap, only your doctor can tell which one you have.

Aspirin compounds just were not made to relieve the symptoms of all three. Ordinary cold remedies don't provide enough relief.

But now there is a new guided cold medicine, specially formulated to relieve symptoms of all three of these cold-like illnesses. Thorexin Cold Capsules speed more total relief because each capsule contains five clinically tested ingredients compounded in an exclusive new way: (a) Acetylsalicylic Acid, (b) N-Acetyl-p-aminophenol, (c) Trimethyl Xanthine (Caffeine), (d) Chlorpheniramine Maleate, (e) Phenylephrine Hydrochloride. Compared with aspirin and ordinary cold remedies, here's how Thorexin Cold Capsules work on each type of cold:

FAA PUTS CURBS ON LANDINGS OF ELECTRA PLANES

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Federal Aviation Agency today imposed nation-wide restrictions on bad weather landings by Electra turboprop passenger planes following the death of 65 persons in an Electra crash last Tuesday.

Operated by American Airlines, the plane crashed into the East River just before midnight while approaching La Guardia field on instruments. Eight of the 73 persons aboard survived.

A spokesman for the Government agency said the restrictions will be in effect "while the investigation is going on as to the cause of the accident. The restrictions are temporary, voluntary on the part of the airlines, and the airlines have accepted the restrictions so that the order is in force now."

1000-Foot Ceiling.
The FAA order forbids a pilot to land an Electra in the cloud ceiling over an airport is less than 1000 feet, and when daytime forward visibility is less than a mile. The visibility at night must be at least two miles.

Previously the minimums were 400 feet and a mile visibility day or night. At the time of the crash the ceiling was 400 feet and visibility two miles.

Under the new restriction, the plane must continue in a "holding pattern" above an airport until weather improves, or it is sent elsewhere to land.

The government agency says landings by instruments alone—so-called "blind landings"—never have been permitted for commercial planes.

There is always a point during any landing at which the pilot starts to fly visually, and he lands visually, after instruments have brought him down to a certain point, an FAA spokesman said.

The agency spokesman explained that the effects of today's ruling is to increase the minimum visual requirements now in effect throughout the country for Electra planes.

An American Airlines spokesman said "we're happy to cooperate" with the order, even though it may force cancellation of some Electra flights. American operates four Electra planes.

Eastern Air Lines, which operates about 10 of them, said that Capt. John H. Halliburton, vice president in charge of operations, notified all stations of the new restriction last night.

The Electra is manufactured by Lockheed Aircraft. In the last month it was placed in service by American and Eastern Air Lines. Eleven other lines have the plane on order.

The Electra is powered by four Allison turbine engines. The engine is similar to that used in some all-jet aircraft, but in the Electra the turbines drive propellers.

Instruments Studied.
The FAA said the new restrictions were drawn up in Washington last night. Investigators meanwhile were closely scrutinizing the instrument panel of the plane which fell into the East River.

The nose section and cockpit of the plane were recovered Saturday night. Civil Aeronautics Board experts began studying the instrument panel yesterday.

A CAB spokesman said the whole cockpit, including the panel, was in excellent shape. He said a clock on the panel was still running when the front end of the airliner was pulled from the water. The plane plunged into the water Tuesday night with the loss of 65 lives as it approached La Guardia field. There were only eight survivors.

The retrieved cockpit yielded the trapped body of the veteran pilot, Capt. Alfred De Witt, 59 years old, of Decatur, Mich.

Three more bodies were recovered yesterday. They were identified as Dr. Robert Emerson, 55, of Urbana, Ill., research professor of Botany at the University of Illinois; Benjamin Weinstein, of Great Neck, N. Y., president of the Judd Valve Co. of Long Island City, Queens; and Robert David Willem, 33, of La Grange, Ill., a department manager for the brokerage firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith.

The bodies of 32 victims are still missing.

SEVEN ST. LOUISANS EARN CAPS AT NURSING SCHOOL

Seven St. Louis area students at St. Louis University School of Nursing received their caps in ceremonies yesterday at St. Mary's Hospital. They now become eligible to begin clinical courses.

Receiving caps were: Miss Carolyn Caputa, 1948 Berra court; Miss Arlene B. Fonnag, 6415 Heege road; Affton; Miss Margaret R. Jarboe, 9627 Midland boulevard, University City; Miss Veronica Meyer, 9352 West Pine avenue, Brentwood.

Miss Mary Janet McGovern, 6220 Rosebury drive; Miss Dorothy Mae Schulte, 568 Andrews avenue, Kirkwood; and Miss Harriet Wlenke, 54 Kingsbury place.

BOY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT WHEN HUNTING RABBITS

William R. Beinke Jr., 15 years old, of Chesterfield, was accidentally shot and wounded with a shotgun yesterday when hunting rabbits with his father and his brother, Gerald, 14.

A rabbit jumped up between the boys and both fired. The pellets from Gerald's 12-gauge gun struck William in the neck and right leg. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Kirkwood.

The accident occurred on Wild Horse Creek road, near the Benkes' home.

U.S. TEAM TAKES LEAD IN WORLD BRIDGE TOURNAMENT

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—The United States leads Italy and Argentina at the end of two days of round-robin play in the nine-day tournament for the 1959 world contract bridge championship.

The Americans won yesterday's match with the Italians, 3-2.

defending world champions and European title-holders, by a score of 16 International Match points to 10. To take a 37-34 lead, The United States team tied Argentina, 22 to 22, and now leads the South American champions, 54 to 43. In the third daily match, Argentina defeated Italy, 22 to 20, but still trails the defending champions, 33 to 49.

Nearly 500 spectators followed the play-by-play on a lighted board.

The use of I.M.P.s in the tournament scoring differs from the usual American system, in which total points are counted. Some American team tournaments, however, have adopted the I.M.P. method. Under this system, total points are converted into I.M.P.s according to a formula which makes small differences on a single hand more important

MOVE TO PUNISH 8 CUBANS HIDING IN EMBASSIES

HAVANA, Feb. 9 (UPI)—The revolutionary government has denounced eight military refugees as common criminals in an effort to block their escape from Cuba by the device of "diplomatic asylum."

Army commandant Maj. Camilo Cienfuegos said two brigadier generals, a captain, three corporals and two privates now sheltered in various Latin American embassies here are guilty of such offenses as desertion, conduct unbecoming an officer or embezzlement.

Cienfuegos urged the government to seek their expulsion from the embassies so they can be dealt with by "revolutionary justice."

The ambassadors, already at odds with the government for its infringements on the traditional Latin American right to diplomatic asylum, are expected to insist on the refugees' right to leave the country under safe conduct.

At Odds With Precedent. Traditionally, the right of asylum is extended only to political offenders rather than common criminals. Under the rules, however, criminal charges are not considered unless they are filed before the refugee reaches the embassy.

Later charges must be thrashed out between the courts of the countries concerned after the refugee has his safe conduct and has left the country.

Two "war criminals" were executed by rebel firing squads over the weekend, and a number of others were sentenced to death. The two who died were army Capt. Evelio Mata and Hector Figueredo, a policeman. The appeal of another policeman, Ariel Lima Lago, against the death sentence was rejected, but his execution was delayed until he has a chance to testify for the prosecution in another man's case.

Two Commutations. The appeals court commuted death sentences in the cases of Lt. Julio Fernandez and Sgt. Pedro Cueto, sentencing the officer to serve 30 years in prison and the sergeant to 20 years.

Maj. Dermidio Escalona, commandant of the post in Pinar Del Rio province where Fernandez and Cueto were sentenced, protested the extension of clemency to "such known assassins."

The constitution which will govern Cuba until elections are held—probably in about 18 months—has been signed into law by President Manuel Urrutia. It is similar to the 1940 constitution repealed by ousted ex-President Fulgencio Batista except that it authorizes the death penalty.

Smith Recalled to Permit New Start, Dulles Says. WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles says Ambassador E. T. Smith was pulled out of Cuba to allow the United States a fresh start with the Castro government. He said Smith had done an excellent job in Havana.

"We hope to have good relations with the new government," Dulles told a congressional committee in testimony made public today.

He expressed hope that the new Cuban regime will be more responsive than past ones to the people's hope for freedom and stability. But Dulles said it's too early to predict how it will turn out.

A new United States envoy is being sent to Havana to replace Smith, accused by some Castro supporters of being too friendly with the ousted Batista regime.

HIGH SCHOOL SITE TO BE CLEARED SOON

Bids for clearing the site of the proposed northwest high school, where a number of vacant homes have been damaged by vandals, will be opened Feb. 19. Harold E. Dessau, acting commissioner of school buildings, said today.

Residents of the area have complained that the buildings are hazardous for children who wander into them and also constitute an eyesore. The Board of Education began acquiring property there more than a year ago.

Windows in most of the vacant homes have been broken, interior walls damaged and fixtures ripped out.

Dessau was given authority to prepare specifications for bids on clearing the site. Under the specifications, bidders may clear the site either by razing the structures or removing them intact.

Occupants of some of the homes have indicated they would like to move the buildings to another site.

Board Member Donald L. Carpenter has complained on several occasions that the board was losing money by allowing the buildings to deteriorate, since some persons have said they would pay the board if they could remove the buildings. The northwest high school site is at Riverview boulevard and Lillian avenue.

RUSSIAN RADIO CENTENARY. LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Soviet Union last night announced centenary celebrations for the man the Russians say invented radio—Alexander Popov.

Although Popov was active at the same time as Guglielmo Marconi, Western records show the Italian scientist took out the first patent granted for radio telegraphy on electric waves.

BLAIR URGES SCOUTS TO AID PROBLEM BOY

Gov. James T. Blair called on the Boy Scout movement today to consider broadening its program to bring in as many neglected, underprivileged boys as possible and expose them to Scouting's strong and effective influence for good.

Addressing the fifth annual

Eagle Scout recognition day luncheon at Hotel Statler Hilton, Gov. Blair stated that one of Missouri's most serious problems is the boy from the bad home environment. The boy with limited opportunities often turns out badly because he has not had a chance to participate in wholesome, character-forming group activities, the Governor said.

"This is the kind of boy whose present trouble causes our serious problems of juvenile delinquency and whose trouble in later life adds up to vagrancy or crime or imprisonment," the Governor asserted.

He said penal institutions cost the state $7,000,000 a year in addition to costs to county and local governments and costs of crime in terms of life and property.

Gov. Blair offered to call a conference in Jefferson City of representatives of all Scout councils in the state, government officials and civic leaders. They would discuss what the Scouting movement could do in years ahead with a broader basis of public support and an active state-wide plan for gaining support.

Speaking directly to boys who attended the luncheon, sponsored by the Eagle Scout Association of St. Louis, he said there was always need for leaders in business and public life who have formed from boyhood the settled habit of excellence.

He told more than 500 persons at the luncheon that Missouri and politics needs able men. Independent voters, he continued, do not fully exercise their rights of citizenship. "They do not have the voice and influence they could have if they worked faithfully within the framework of their chosen party, be it Republican or Democrat," Gov. Blair stated.

A total of 155 boys who became Eagle Scouts since last June received certificates of honor at the luncheon. Eagle Explorer David Hager of Troop 102, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Wasley H. Hager, 6374 Waterman boulevard, University City, spoke briefly on the program. He will represent Gov. Blair at the Lincoln sesquicentennial celebration at Springfield, Ill., in April.

The Eagle Association luncheon was one of the activities of Boy Scout week, which started Sunday.

LABOR GROUPS HIT AT 'UTILITY GIANTS'

A charge that "utility giants" are backing the campaign to block repeal of the King-Thompson public utility anti-strike law in the current session of the Legislature was made today by two Missouri labor groups.

The Missouri Utility Workers' Legislative Conference and the Missouri State Labor Council, AFL-CIO, in an "open letter" to members of the Legislature, said the utility companies were "turning their heaviest propaganda barrage on the rural area."

"They are seeking friends today in the same sections of the state which they once tried to do to go power-less," the letter stated. The legislative conference group includes numerous unions in the public utility field, such as the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers, Communications Workers, Streetcar and Bus Drivers Union, Operating Engineers, Machinists, Utility Workers and International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

"The same utility giants who argue that the King-Thompson Act should not be repealed are the same companies who fought as long and as hard as they were able to block expansion of electrical service to the rural areas of our state," the letter said.

It stated the utility propagandists were attempting to win support of rural areas by "painting a picture of disaster on our farms if electric power should fall through a work stoppage." Yet, the letter added, no one who testified before a legislative committee recently had been able to cite a single instance of a power shut-off on a farm or in a city due to a work stoppage before or since the passage of the King-Thompson Act in 1947.

The repealer is expected to be called up for passage in the Missouri House next Tuesday.

in the Army Transportation Corps in Europe. Maxwell, 43 years old, is married and has three children. He was named to his new position by the Terminal's board of directors.

SCHOOL BOND ELECTION IN HAZELWOOD DISTRICT

A school bond issue of $1,000,000 will be voted upon by residents of the Hazelwood School District tomorrow.

The proposal is for construction of additions which would provide 31 elementary school classrooms. It also would provide money for equipment and furniture for a new junior high school, which is to be ready by September. The plans are for completion of the new classrooms by then as well.

Approval of the issue would not require an increase in the debt service portion of the district's $2.90 tax levy. Superintendent Clifford R. Kirby said.

Feudal Patterns of Ethiopia Shifting as People Feel New Nationalism Stirring Africa

Accra Meeting Has Given Momentum to Realization That Their Government Belongs to Another Age — Emperor Seems to Be Adding to Discontent.

Seventeenth of a series of articles by Donald Grant of the Post-Dispatch staff on political and economic conditions in Africa and on the status of the peoples struggling toward self-determination.

By DONALD GRANT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
ADDIS ABABA, Feb. 9.

ETHIOPIA IS BECOMING a part of Africa. Implications of this fact are nothing short of revolutionary. The oldest independent state on the continent has never really been a part of Africa. The ruling tribe, the Amhara, speak of themselves as a race apart and have various insulting names for the "Africans."

African nationalism, however, has reached this mountain kingdom. It is a force changing the feudal patterns and stirring the polyglot peoples who through the market place here in Addis Ababa.

His Imperial Majesty Haile Selassie I, still wields absolute power. He still feeds his pet lion with his own hand every day. When he walks or motors through the streets of Addis Ababa, it is still a penitentiary offense not to bow to him.

The United States still clings to the Emperor as one of the chief pivots of its African policy, but increasingly Ethiopia is an anachronism in Africa—and increasingly the Ethiopians know it.

This feeling began in earnest in April of last year when delegates from Ethiopia attended the conference of independent states in Accra, Ghana. What was all that talk about freedom and democracy? Young, educated Ethiopians suddenly began to realize that they enjoyed neither.

They became aware of the fact that most of their people had no shoes, that fewer than 10 per cent of the children of school age were in school, that intestinal parasites and other diseases even more horrible were rampant in all Ethiopia, and that, in fact, Ethiopia was one of the most backward areas of the most backward continent in the world. They began to understand why the Emperor had some of the slums of Addis Ababa covered with corrugated iron when Vice President Richard M. Nixon visited this city in 1957.

Hidden from Nixon's view were some of the worst places of prostitution paying rent and tribute to the Emperor.

The security police, which sends spies among the Ethiopians to report any criticism of the Emperor, suddenly seemed more oppressive to the people in the light of the fine sentiments of the Accra conference. Last December, when delegates from all over Africa and from other places in the world as well gathered in Addis Ababa for the meeting of the United Nations Economic Commission for Africa, the welling but still suppressed feelings of discontent increased.

Emperor's Strange Course. Loyalty to the Emperor still is a mighty force in Ethiopia—but in a strange way the Emperor himself seems almost deliberately to be adding to the feeling of discontent that exists alongside it. In efforts to "modernize" Ethiopia, he has created a sham parliament which only serves to emphasize the police state absolutism of the country. He also has instituted a system of provincial governors replacing the traditional tribal chiefs. This serves further to break up the old feudal designs.

The Emperor has even begun a modest educational program and has brought members of tribes other than the ruling Amharas into the government—all of which inevitably changes and distorts the absolutism he still strives to maintain.

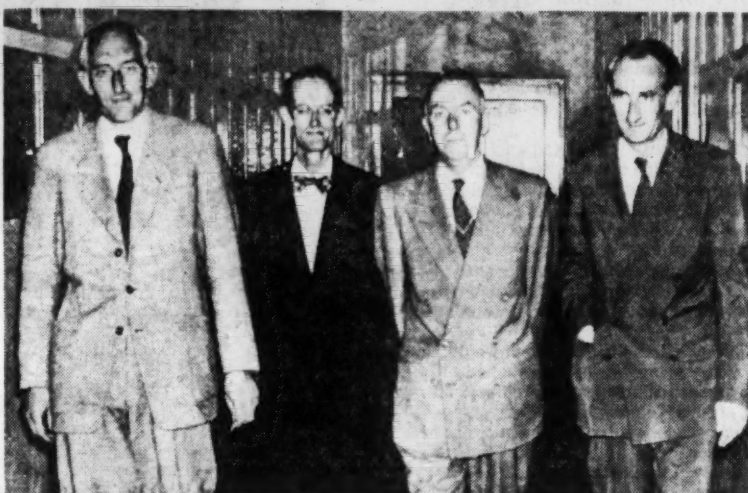

How long can the hot winds of modernism and the cold fact of absolutism coexist in Ethiopia? Obviously a number of people are wondering. As this is being written, President Josip (Tito) Broz of Yugoslavia is in Addis Ababa and his off-duty bodyguard—tough Yugoslavs who brought their machineguns with them—are in a room across the hall in this hotel drinking and singing lustily. Cardinal Eugene Tisserant has just returned to Rome. Another visitor last week was United States Assistant Secretary of Defense John N. Irwin II. A group of Russian Orthodox priests from Moscow is still here, and King Paul and Queen Frederica of Greece are due this week.

It is not just idle curiosity that is bringing these visitors to this admittedly curious place. Whither Ethiopia has become a burning and immediate question.

The official American diplomatic answer to this question is a complacent one, to say the least. It is the American view that the feudal absolutism of Ethiopia can last at least another 10 years and we are doing our best to shore it up by training and equipping the Ethiopian army.

In the process, of course, the United States is alienating itself from the possible future nationalist leaders of Ethiopia and is assuming a posture in Africa that may well prove embarrassing among the less feudal states. The official American justification for this policy, however, is that we must support "stability." Three Americans are serving in key posts as advisers to the government here, the United States has a

Soviet Role in Industrial Growth Of Red China Likely to Diminish

By TILLMAN DURDIN
HONG KONG, Feb. 9.

THE SOVIET ROLE in the industrial growth of Communist China will diminish in the future but continue to be of basic importance. This appeared here to be one significant aspect of the new five billion ruble economic agreement signed in Moscow Saturday between representatives of the Soviet Union and Communist China.

Experts on Chinese-Soviet relations here said the new agreement provides for less Soviet participation in industrial construction on mainland China than in the past. It is recognized, of course, that there may be deals later for still further Soviet materials and technical advice that would supplement Saturday's agreement.

The new agreement involves the equivalent of $1,250,000,000 over a period of nine years, using the rate of four rubles to $1 provided in the original 1950 Communist China trade agreement with Russia. The annual Soviet expenditure under the agreement will thus be somewhat less than $139,000,000.

Less Than 9-Year Total. The amount involved in the new agreement is less than the total of Soviet loans under project agreements for economic development in the first nine years of Communist government in China. Informed sources here believe this total is more than 10,000,000 rubles. The first gesture of Soviet economic support for Communist China was a $300,000,000 loan in 1950, the equivalent of 1,200,000,000 rubles. This was followed in 1954 with a 5,600,000,000 ruble agreement for as the United States has given to other countries.

Military equipment specialists from the Soviet Union to Communist China are, of course, another matter. Little has been revealed as to the arrangement under which military co-operation has been carried out but the evidence indicates Peiping has also paid for military equipment and services.

Communist China's exports to the Soviet Union for last year have been estimated at 3,600,000,000 rubles ($900,000,000) and imports from the Soviet Union at 2,400,000,000 rubles ($600,000,000). This would have given Peiping a trade surplus of $300,000,000 with which to pay for Soviet supplies and technical advice.

Despite Peiping's claims of tremendous increases in production of agricultural and other products last year, Communist China's exports to non-Communist countries in the last two months have dropped sharply. At the same time information from China mainland indicates supplies of food and other necessities are meager in many parts of the country.

Possible Explanation. One explanation advanced here is that Communist China has stepped up exports to the Soviet Union and other Communist bloc countries to pay for Soviet industrial supplies and technical advice.

The Peiping radio report on the new economic agreement said the Soviets would aid in construction of 78 big metal-

Israel's New Port Town of Eilat Booms

Population Only 5000 Now But 50,000 by 1970 Is

EILAT, Israel, Feb. 9.

THINGS are cooking here in Eilat (Elath), Israel's port town of 5000 people, lying at the point where Egypt, Israel, Jordan and Saudi Arabia meet.

When Israeli troops first reached here after the armistice with Egypt in March 1949 they found nothing but a British police station. At the time of the Sinai incident, in October 1956, there were 1200 inhabitants, mostly north of here. The Sinai blitz wiped out Egyptian gun positions which had prevented shipping from passing freely through the Gulf of Aqaba on its way to Eilat. Since then Eilat has been growing.

Local boosters, who make Florida promoters of the '20s look like sportsmen, will tell you that Eilat is going to have a population of at least 50,000 by 1970.

They picture it as a new gateway to the East which will allow Israel to do a two-way business with the undeveloped countries of East Africa and Southeast Asia, importing their raw materials and more than paying for them with finished manufactured goods.

New buildings are going up, most of them handsomely designed and arranged in accordance with a careful plan.

Great new harbors are being started.

Five hotels are already up. A high school was opened last September and two more schools are being built. The 5000 residents include 1200 children.

One-half the present population consists of new immigrants. Two hundred families with 800 members will be moved into new homes within the next three months. Another 500 immigrant families, plus 300 families from elsewhere in Israel, are expected before April 1960.

An 8-inch oil pipeline now connects Eilat with Beersheba, 150 miles to the north. A 16-inch pipeline runs thence to a refinery at Haifa.

London Favors Airlift If Reds Block
Convoys to Berlin — Business-as-Usual Attitude by U.S. Military Men.

By JOSEPH ALSOP

WASHINGTON.
SECRETARY OF STATE JOHN FOSTER DULLES has been asking our Allies to agree to meet any Soviet challenge at Berlin headon. Under the Dulles program, for instance, a challenge of the Allies' right to use the land routes to Berlin would be answered by sending an armed convoy.

This program demands the will to fight a big war—an H-bomb war—for the defense of Berlin. Neither a single tank column nor all the Western divisions in NATO, can possibly open a road to Berlin against the opposition of the massive Soviet armies in East Germany. Hence, humiliating retreat or a big war would be the only way out if a convoy was sent and halted.

The thesis of Dulles and his strong supporters, the American Joint Chiefs of Staff, is that the Kremlin will not risk a big war for Berlin. Therefore, the thesis continues, the Kremlin will not press its Berlin claims to the utmost if we show that we prefer to run this risk rather than surrender.

Britons Reluctant. At least until Secretary Dulles's visit to London, the British government was unwilling to accept the Dulles-Pentagon thesis. There was a strong impulse in London to base the Western plans for Berlin on dodging a direct challenge, by resort to an airlift. The American pressure for acceptance of the Dulles-Pentagon thesis was meanwhile met by a British counter-demand that the whole problem be "stuffed out" in careful detail.

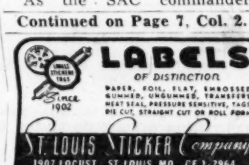

A leading planner from the British War Office staff was sent to Washington to conduct preliminary staff talks with the planners attached to the Joint Chiefs of Staff. This high-ranking officer kicked his heels here for a week and then went home after accomplishing nothing. One therefore suspects that the proclaimed accord between Secretary Dulles and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan took the form of agreement by Dulles to open staff talks after all, and a statement by Macmillan that the British might accept the Dulles-Pentagon thesis after satisfactory staff talks.

It is this suspicion is correct, the British may also reject the Dulles-Pentagon thesis at the end of the staffing out process. But at least one point is already clear. Dulles will hardly secure final Allied agreement for his "contingent" plan for Berlin while the Pentagon carries on business as usual.

In this respect at least, there is no logical answer to the British doubts about the Dulles approach. In brief, it is plainly inconsistent with business-as-usual at the Pentagon. The whole Dulles approach depends on convincing the Kremlin that the West is in deadly earnest and will fight a big war, if need be.

In these circumstances, there are certain practical measures that plainly need to be taken without much further delay. If an armed convoy is planned, some reinforcement of the divisions in Germany is surely essential—if only to prove that the plan is serious. For the same purpose, rather special preparations and training exercises are needed to show that the West's engineering troops can surmount any purely physical obstacles to the convoy, such as broken bridges.

SAC Must Be Ready. Above all, however, adoption of the Dulles approach imperatively demands bringing the Strategic Air Command to a state of full readiness. At present, despite the widespread impression to the contrary, SAC maintains no air alert. Experiments with an air alert were made in the autumn. It was found to be practical to keep a high proportion of SAC's planes always in the air and always ready to attack their targets. But this way of keeping a substantial striking force beyond reach of enemy attack was also found to be costly. Hence, a 15-minute ground alert plan was chosen. As the SAC commander,

Letters from the People

For a Greater St. Louis

Reader Henry F. Chadeayne cast a hearty vote for the proposed city-county merger. I wish to follow his good example.

Families are rapidly leaving the city to live in the county. Consequently they lose their vote in the city government, although they maintain their businesses within the city; use Forest Park, the public library, Art Museum, Kiel Auditorium, are subject to the city's traffic laws and to myriad regulations about which they have no say.

When "Mr. Jones" from Webster Groves is asked by a New Yorker to name the outstanding features of his city, he naturally answers: Forest Park, the Zoo, Municipal Opera, the Cardinals. It wouldn't occur to him to name the Webster Groves Library, or the local sandlot team or the local gazette. Yet, legally St. Louis is not his city.

As Mr. Chadeayne said, "The citizens who live in the county have just as great a stake in seeing this city healthy as those who live within its present boundaries." We rise and fall together. If the merger were accomplished, Jennings and University City would not lose their individuality or their own names any more than Carondelet or Baden have lost theirs.

Instead, they would gain a great deal in unity and in a more even distribution of tax money. Although the county would make immediate sacrifices, it would profit just as much from the city's resulting growth and prosperity.

If St. Louis hotels and theaters deteriorate, won't the people in Affton and Clayton suffer?

The alternative, the Metropolitan District, which the Post-Dispatch is simply settling for the less good, knowing the Metropolitan District might be more acceptable at the polls?

If this is so, wouldn't it be more glorious not to take the defeatist attitude and instead, to attempt to achieve legally that unity which already exists in reality?

Gail P. Porter

In Favor of a CCC

I was glad to read Leonard Hall's column about the proposed CCC bill, which seems to me a wonderful idea.

Many of the trails and campsites in the national parks and West which we enjoyed during the thirties—thanks to the work of the CCC boys—were falling into sad shape when I last saw them five years ago.

We shouldn't have to wait for a terrible depression before we start in again to build up and preserve our national playgrounds.

Medicine for the Doctor

Physicians are by no means in a class by themselves in that they have "obtained their education by long and arduous study, working for years at a pliance while obtaining their training."

I am trained in a branch of science. I spent seven years in college, three years of which were spent in graduate school on a $30 a month assistantship.

The four years in undergraduate school were paid for by back-breaking summer employment.

One must admit the present-day physician spends many long hours at his job. This, however, must be his own desire, or the desire of the American Medical Association, since each year innumerable applicants are turned away from our nation's major medical schools, not because of lack of ability, but because of restrictions which insure a continuing shortage of physicians which guarantees those doctors already practicing more patients than they can efficiently handle. Here is a closed shop which makes the labor unions' activities pale in comparison.

Walnut Park Complaints

It has been brought to the attention of the Walnut Park Improvement Association that houses that have been left empty by the Board of Education are very dangerous to North St. Louis residents. Too many things have been happening in these vacant houses that would never be happening if the board had not been in such a hurry to push the people out of their homes.

The board had plenty of opportunity to make money renting out these homes until it was time to start the school project, but they wanted to do it the fast way and get rid of the people.

Some of our members reported that they were told they could stay in their homes if they paid $5 a day, but who can afford that kind of rent? Why didn't the board rent them at a reasonable amount like $50 a month and make some money instead of having a bunch of hoodlums using them for hangouts and wrecking this good property? Charles R. Finninger

Time for Traffic Safety

This Missouri Legislature is apparently prepared to make distinct reforms in our traffic safety laws. Gov. Blair recommended a six-point program to help reduce accidents and fatalities, and more than a score of safety bills have been introduced.

The first reform on the Governor's program concerns the state driver's license. This would logically be the first reform on any safety program, because the driver's license is much more than a means of testing drivers before they are allowed on the highway. It is also a means of testing their conduct on the highway, and of getting them off the road if they prove dangerous.

Senator Omar H. Avery of Troy has introduced a bill to establish a point system for the guidance of the state in suspending or revoking licenses. For example, any moving violation would put two demerits on a motorist's record; speeding would add four demerits; leaving the scene of an accident in which someone was injured, or drunken driving or other serious violations, would add 12 demerits. And a license would be revoked if 12 points were accumulated within 12 months.

Fifteen other states and the District of Columbia already use the point system. They report that it provides a fairer and more scientific appraisal of a driver's record than previous, more haphazard methods. And such a licensing law deters unsafe driving. It should be adopted by Missouri.

A second group of bills deals with drunken driving. A New York State safety study showed that drinking drivers were responsible for 37 per cent of all traffic fatalities in 1956. Nobody approves of drunken driving, yet in Missouri it is often difficult to get convictions. Did the defendant only have "a couple of beers," as he insisted, or was he dangerously intoxicated?

One Avery bill, prompted by the Governor, would permit use of chemical tests of a motorist's blood or breath and states that if there is 0.15 per cent or more alcohol by weight in the blood, the defendant is presumed to be under the influence of an intoxicant. The evidence in this case is scientific; it is also presumptive, which means that it may be rebutted and is not conclusive.

Most important, use of the chemical tests would be voluntary. A motorist would have to acquiesce in the test before police could use it. More than two dozen states have such voluntary test laws, based on the Uniform Vehicle Code. Their experience has been that few drivers refuse the tests, and the results add a definite scientific standard for judging drunken driving.

Another bill would make this same offense a graded misdemeanor instead of a felony. Felony convictions are difficult to obtain in traffic cases. The new bill provides for increasing penalties for the first two offenses, making the third offense a felony.

Finally, there is a bill dealing with juvenile motorists. This measure would take 16-year-olds out of the jurisdiction of the juvenile courts and place them, along with adults, in the magistrates' courts. Such a law would be discriminatory, since it would deal with motorists as a special class, and more important, it would set a dangerous precedent in treatment of juveniles.

Instead of trying to make juveniles into adults for driving purposes, it would make a little more sense to raise the driving age to 18 years, as Gov. Blair suggested. But the notion that 16 and 17 year olds are particularly dangerous drivers is not borne out by fact; the 18-to-25 group has a worse accident record, and nobody proposes removing their driving privileges.

The Legislature can avoid final action on some of the less essential traffic safety legislation such as this. But the bills involving a point-system driver's license and drunken driving ought to have highest priority.

Persecution in Tennessee

The silly season has broken out in Tennessee, where the Legislature has voted an investigation of the Highlander Folk School on grounds that it is "subversive," since it both advocates and practices racial integration. Highlander, a non-profit school of adult education, modeled on the Scandinavian folk schools, has served churches, labor unions, and other groups, and served them well; since the day it opened it has been subversive of the un-American doctrine of race segregation. So quietly constructive have its efforts been that in recent years mountain Tennesseans around Monteagle, who first were hostile, have come to accept it and even, in their own way, to approve.

Recently, segregationists have discovered in Highlander an opportunity to combine Faubusism with old-time McCarthyism and train a double-barreled attack on it with their propaganda posers. Promoting this effort is Karl Kershaw of Nashville, described as "a rich man's John Kasper with a Cadillac."

The Chattanooga Times and the Nashville Tennessean both call the attack on Highlander "a witch hunt," which it is. But it is more. It is an ugly and uninformed bit of persecution, pretending to be a defense of democratic ideals, and in actuality aimed at destroying a humble but useful institution which has had the temerity to practice those ideals.

Swiss Ladies Turned Down

Switzerland remains the only country in Europe which denies women the right to vote. The men of the tri-lingual republic made sure of that when they defeated a constitutional amendment which would have allowed women to vote in national elections and to hold national offices.

The vote went most heavily against the women in William Tell's own canton of Schwyz, 11,960 to 1968. There the men evidently agreed with an anti-feminist poster which asked: "If a woman is happy, what does politics mean to her? If she is unhappy, will politics make any difference?" Of course, the wise men of Philadelphia who drew up the United States Constitution also saw no essential connection between women's suffrage and the pursuit of happiness; but they lived in the eighteenth century.

Still, it was not an altogether black Sunday for the Swiss ladies. After 25 rejections of women's suffrage on the cantonal level, they won in the canton of Vaud, 32,947 to 31,252. That was close, but henceforth they may participate in the politics of the canton and its principal city, Lausanne. Geneva and Neuchâtel, voting only on the first national women's suffrage proposal, gave it their approval, so votes for women soon may be sanctioned in those cantons. And that could be the start of a Swiss avalanche. Frankly, it would be interesting to see if, after giving women the vote, Switzerland got into trouble just like the rest of Europe. We doubt it, but a test is a test.

YES to County School Mergers

Judging by educational standards recommended by Dr. James B. Conant, president emeritus of Harvard University, each of the school district consolidations to be voted on Tuesday in St. Louis county deserves to be approved.

Dr. Conant recently completed an 18-month survey of public high schools. He is convinced that a high school with a graduating class of fewer than 100 pupils cannot provide a comprehensive curriculum. Nor can it employ the time and efforts of administrators and teachers as economically and efficiently as could be. In other words, it is an expensive luxury providing a less than first-rate education.

The Hancock Place district, which would be merged with Jefferson Barracks, had 102 pupils in twelfth grade last September; J.B. does not even have a high school.

Parkway Consolidated, with 90 seniors as of last September, ought to be consolidated with Valley Park, which had only 27.

Pattonville, with 110 twelfth-graders; Maryland Heights with 30 and Scuddey, which does not have a high school, also ought to merge.

Jennings with 114 seniors and West Walnut Manor with 89 also would be far better off financially and educationally if they would join forces.

In each of these cases a vote to consolidate would create a stronger district and improved educational opportunities for the children. If the more affluent districts refuse to take in their less-well-off neighbors, chances are a future consolidation that would submerge them in a much larger district will be the alternative. Do they prefer that?

To Incur Poverty

Tippling is widely regarded as a form of generosity. As more and more wage-earners who depend largely upon tips come up for social security, however, they are beginning to wonder whether the tipping system is not a grievous disadvantage to them.

The Internal Revenue Service has ruled that tips may be counted as wages for social security purposes only if the employer requires from the employee an accounting of the actual or estimated amount. Most tips are taken without any such accounting, and the recipients may then receive social security payments only on the basis of their actual wages.

Bar tenders and taxi drivers are estimated to earn about half their living from tips, service captains and doormen about two thirds, waiters up to four fifths. All told, some 2,000,000 Americans are believed to depend on tips for much of their livelihood.

As old-age benefits are extended to provide more and better coverage, the problem of tipping, and its effect on the security of so many workers, is bound to come up again and again with increasingly urgent demands for a better answer.

Fairness for Migratory Workers

The continuing story of the sorry plight of migratory workers, especially those Mexicans who "follow the crops" in the United States, is being told again before the National Advisory Committee on Farm Labor in Washington. But Labor Secretary Mitchell now has made some practical suggestions for the relief of these people, suggestions which might even put a full stop to their exploitation. Said Mr. Mitchell:

It is my conviction that the migrant farm worker will never take his place as a fully useful citizen, and will never be able to successfully resist exploitation until:

Federal legislation guarantees him a decent minimum wage upon which he can build a decent and independent life; he has fairly continuous employment; he receives the equal protection of all federal and state laws, such as enforced housing codes, enforced safety codes, accessible health service, and protection for his person in the form of compensation for injury.

Some of these conditions are contained in an agreement between Mexico and the United States covering workers who come from below the border. Yet the few individuals, mostly churchmen, who have taken an active interest in migratory workers, Mexican and American, report that the rules are broken as often as not. So adequate legislation with adequate provisions for its enforcement is essential. Like other workers, these people should have a floor under their wages.

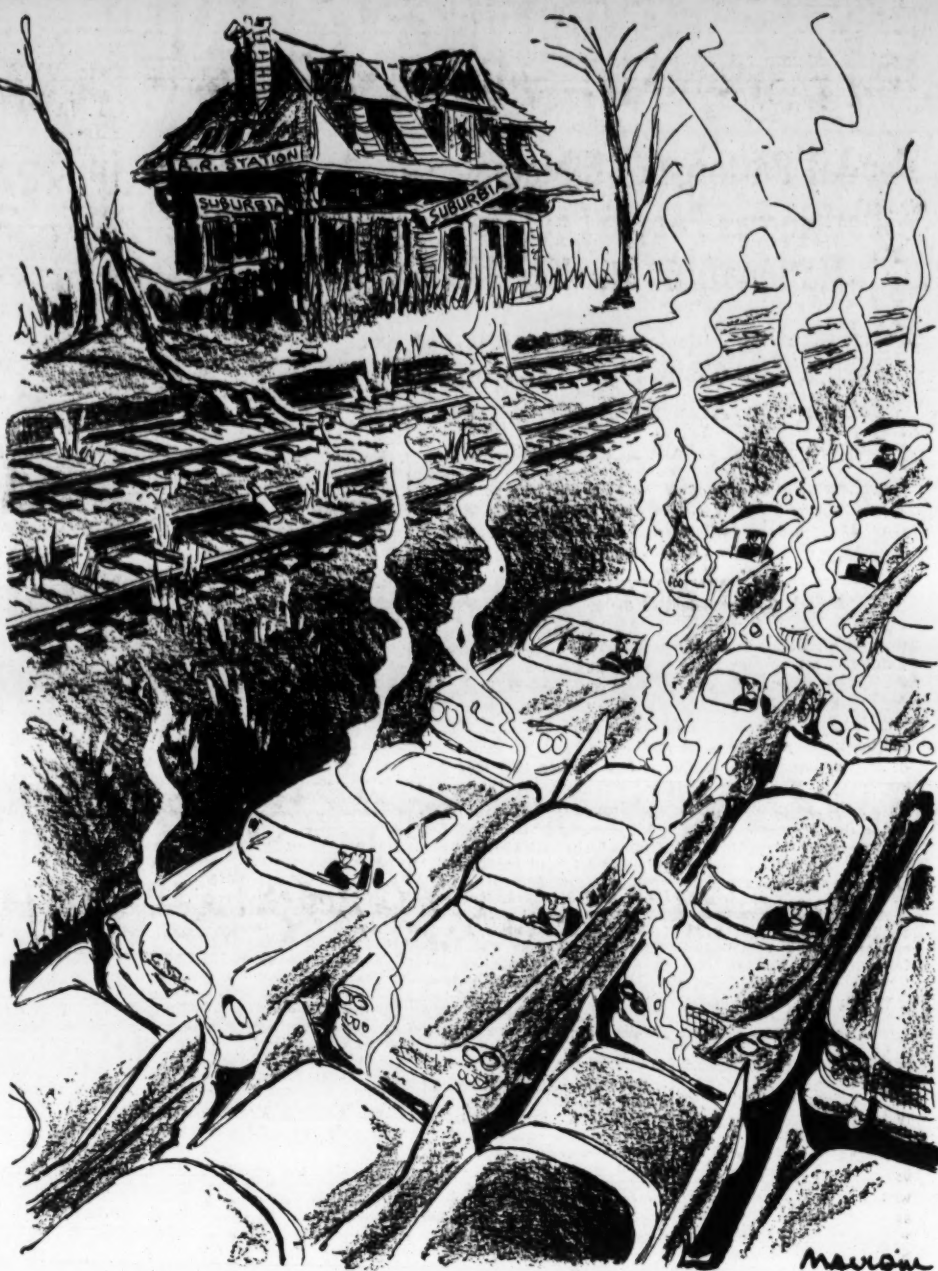

There is much about migratory farm work that is undesirable. Some even hold that it is uneconomic, that it would be better to have crops handled by permanently settled workers. Whatever that might mean for the operators of the big factory-farms, especially those in California, it certainly would be a great social gain for the workers. It would mean, above all, better schooling for their children. Meanwhile Secretary Mitchell's program is a humane minimum. He plans to submit it to Congress. It should be adopted.

Land Reform in Cuba

Although Fidel Castro was sometimes described as a "leftist" in the American press, land reforms were about as far to the left as he proposed to go. That is not very far to the left, since land reforms have been directed by moderate democratic governments from Italy to the Philippines. Now Castro is putting his plans in readiness.

To begin, the new Cuban government hopes to grant 67-acre plots to some 22,500 families in eastern Cuba. Much of this land will come from public tracts and some from unused private holdings which the government will pay for in time. Castro hopes to build schools, homes and roads to accompany the development of small farms. He also wants to restore some of Cuba's badly depleted forests. Eventually some 200,000 farmers may get land.

Such small land-holdings do not always improve farm production, and Cuba does not need greatly improved farm production in any case. The real purpose of the Castro program is to satisfy "the cardinal longing of our people" for land. Land hunger is an old cause, men have fought for it before, and many of Castro's men fought for it. Out of the reforms many rural Cubans should be enabled to lead a more prosperous and independent life.

THIS IS PROGRESS?

What to Do About General Motors

'Economic Birth by Division' Urged As A Remedy for Over-Concentration

From a Speech by George Romney, President, American Motors Corp.

How can we continue to have the benefit of at least five competing passenger car companies? I think there are only five possibilities:

1. Through the ability of each of the remaining companies to escape economic failure. In light of earlier competitive history, this would appear to be a mathematical impossibility.

2. The restraint of competitive effort to permit the survival of weak competitors. As far as I am concerned, this practice exists, it deprives our nation and individual consumers of the benefits of genuine competitive effort, and may lose for us the struggle for international leadership. We cannot afford competitive slowdowns.

3. Government action to subsidize weak competitors. As far as I am concerned, this approach is unthinkable as a matter of national policy. It leads to "statism."

4. Some form of government regulation. This approach would involve arbitrary government action to preserve marginal or sub-standard producers or lead to industrial concentration and monopoly. It, too, is "statism."

5. Provision for economic birth as well as economic death. This approach I would like to develop by specific example and recommendation.

Some people argue that we don't need to be concerned about plenty of competition in the automobile industry and other major industries. I do not agree. To the contrary, I believe the competitive principle has operated in the automobile industry and other industries to the point where excess concentration exists.

Not only has General Motors dominated the industry for the past twenty years, but in the absence of an adequate and effective anti-trust policy, its competitors have existed because of the pursuance by General Motors of policies that permitted them to exist.

General Motors has the power to eliminate some other companies from the automobile industry. Evidence of this ability is contained in its profit level. If General Motors should decide to operate at a satisfactory average of loss and profit for all industry, of say 6 per cent, there would be fewer companies left in the automobile industry in a short time.

Now, because of their tremendous contribution, General Motors is entitled to much more than an average profit, just as Floyd Patterson is entitled to more than the average purse of the average heavyweight. To provide incentive and competition, the champion in industry should expect and receive a champion's reward.

The key question raised by the UAW collective bargaining strategy is, "Are General Motors profits too high?" This question must be answered to the satisfaction of the American public. Finding the right solution to our national labor policy, our national anti-trust policy, and indeed, to the current concern over the wage-price spiral depends on arriving at the right, true answer.

I think the question of whether a particular company is making too much money depends on whether that company lacks adequate competition.

In each of our major basic industries, we need the certainty of an adequate number of competent competitors to insure the public that whatever profits are being earned are being earned as a result of adequate stiff competition. We should fix the tolerance on the side of too much rather than too little competition.

Preservation of the competitive principle in America is dependent upon its complete development by provision for economic birth as well as economic death in our major basic industries. Before the Kefauver Committee I made these specific recommendations pertaining to degree of market domination in such industries:

When an individual company engaged in only one basic industry is doing more than 35 per cent of the business, or, when a company engaged in more than one basic industry is doing more than 25 per cent of the business, such companies should be required to submit their own programs for reducing their percentage of the particular business involved.

An obvious way for them to do this would be through the creation of more than one company from the old company. In other words, by the process of division, or economic birth.

Adherence to such percentage figures guarantees the future existence of four or five companies in each basic industry. They do not require the breaking up of General Motors, or any other company, into more than two companies even on the basis of General Motors' present position.

While some seem to think that this is a radical idea, basically, it isn't new at all. The basic idea is identical with that used in the anti-trust laws to break up an unlawful monopoly. The best known example of this was when the old Standard Oil Co. which was broken up into what has become 38 companies, of which four are among the 20 largest American companies. The basis of that break-up was decided by the Government.

In principle, the proposal I have made is substantially the same except that the company involved would be permitted to determine the basis of the division or birth. Only if it failed to act within a reasonable time, would the Government determine the basis of division or divestiture.

This proposal would reward, not penalize General Motors for being successful. It would give us the advantage of two companies with the potential competence of General Motors, instead of one.

Adoption of a birth policy would, I believe, change the attitude toward industrial growth without enactment of new laws but simply the modernization of the old. Building a company to the point where it became the source of more than one company could become a recognized achievement of the highest order.

Fashion Comment From the Wall Street Journal

Devastating comments on current women's fashions have pretty well exhausted the inventiveness of comedians. But a sober court ruling in a federal tax case caps them all. A fashion expert for a shoe concern, who dressed in the most advanced styles for business reasons, claimed the cost of this wardrobe as a deductible expense. Her clenching point, with which the court readily agreed, was that it had to be a business item because she would not for a minute wear such stuff by her own choice!

Between Book Ends Goals of Our Schools

PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND MORAL EDUCATION, by Neil Gerard McCluskey, S. J. (Columbia University Press, 275 pgs., $6).

The purport of one of the questions President Eisenhower was asked at a recent televised press conference was, "What are the goals of our schools?" The President answered that he was just getting ready to appoint a committee to find out.

This will not be the first committee to seek the answer to this hard question. A footnote in this book reminds us that one member of a committee given this job in 1951 was Dwight D. Eisenhower himself. Among the findings of this committee (the NEA Educational Policy Commission) was "that the public schools have a highly significant function in teaching moral and spiritual values."

The commission also found that the schools "can have no part in securing acceptance of any one of the numerous systems of belief regarding a supernatural power and the relation of mankind thereto."

Dr. McCluskey believes that these findings accurately reflect the thinking of the agencies now running the schools and that this was derived from the philosophies of three men: Horace Mann, William Torrey Harris and John Dewey. Mann believed that a non-sectarian Christianity could (and should) be taught in the schools.

Harris, a leader in the "St. Louis Movement" and Mann's successor as a formulator of educational philosophy, was against teaching religion in the schools, though he thought children should learn it in church. John Dewey was against teaching a belief in the supernatural anywhere.

Dr. McCluskey examines the philosophies of these three educators and their effect on the modern public schools. He concludes that the net effect has been such that it is impossible for the schools to perform the major function expected of them by the people. "They have charged the common school with the responsibility for character education," he says, "but they do not have a common view as to what this entails." He finds, in fact, that the area of agreement on this point is lessening.

Dr. McCluskey is a Jesuit priest and is called "Father" McCluskey on the jacket of his book, but his scholarly and unbiased approach to his subject makes his academic title (he is a Ph.D.) seem more appropriate in a discussion of it.

Catholics have a legitimate interest, incidentally, in moral education in the public schools. According to a quotation from Cardinal Cushing cited by the author, more than half the Catholic children in America attend public schools.

Senate to Probe Drug Prices

A FORTHCOMING INVESTIGATION into high prices of so-called ethical drugs is running into a hot drumfire from retail druggists who profess to see in it an attack on fair trade laws. Estes Kefauver, chairman of the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee, announced months ago that such an investigation was in the works.

The reaction of the retail druggists, who along with the doctors have taken much of the heat for high drug prices, has come as a surprise. The subcommittee's proposed investigation has nothing whatever to do with the fair trade laws which the druggists for years have been seeking on a federal basis. The pharmaceutical industry does not have many grass roots of its own of the kind that can be turned to political account.

It was a triumph of public relations on the part of the drug manufacturers to persuade the druggists, omnipresent in America, to believe that the investigation of high drug prices was somehow aimed at them.

Opposed by Customers.

Independent retail druggists for years, through their associations, have sought a federal fair trade law intended to give them protection from price-cutting chains. There is little likelihood of such a law being passed now.

Fair trade laws in a number of the states, which passed them at the peak of their popularity as an economic panacea, have crumbled under legal attacks. More and more manufacturers have decided that the effort to police fair trade prices is more than it is worth. Yet some trade associations, particularly those of the druggists, seem to find it profitable to keep such agitation alive.

Antibiotics Price Probe.

The druggists have now put themselves in the uncomfortable position of being defenders of high prices. It is an unenviable state, since many of their customers will be on the other side of the issue.

Labor organizations, for example, which tend to align themselves with the consumer interest in such matters, are strong for the investigation.

The Federal Trade Commission is currently carrying out an investigation of complaints about price-fixing of antibiotics. The Senate hearing will be concerned with a greater variety of drugs, including vaccines, steroids, and vitamins.

A hearing such as Senator Kefauver proposes into a complicated industry will require extensive preparation. How soon it will be scheduled he does not say.

But he does say that it will come this year in this session of the Congress.

PALSY ASSOCIATION BEGINS VOCATIONAL TEST PROGRAM

A program to determine the vocational potential of adults who have sustained brain damage has been started by the Youth and Adult Center of the St. Louis Cerebral Palsy Association, it was announced today.

The project is patterned on one developed by the Institute for Crippled and Disabled in New York. It involves comparisons of results of tests given with standards needed in industry. The complete series of tests takes seven weeks, five days a week from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Headquarters for the project here are in the Buder Building, 707 Market street. It is sponsored by the federal Office of Vocational Rehabilitation and the Missouri Section of Vocational Rehabilitation, as well as the cerebral palsy group.

'WILD BILL' DONOVAN DIES; HEADED OSS

General Was Hero in Both World Wars—Set Up Intelligence Agency.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Major Gen. William J. (Wild Bill) Donovan, who directed the Government's daring intelligence operation in World War II, died yesterday. He was 76 years old.

Death of the former director of the Office of Strategic Services was attributed to a heart ailment. He had been in Walter Reed Army Hospital here for some time.

Gen. Donovan won the Medal of Honor for leading the famed "Fighting Sixty-ninth" Regiment of the Rainbow Division in World War I, fighting prowess became a legend of the war.

The OSS operations Gen. Donovan headed in World War II were world-wide in scope. The organization conducted important research at home and daring exploits abroad, many of them behind enemy lines.

The shadowy army also fostered resistance movements and made possible the escape of some 3000 members of the armed forces who had been shot down or trapped behind enemy lines in various theaters.

Decorated Often.

President Harry S. Truman in 1945 decorated Gen. Donovan with the oak leaf cluster to the Distinguished Service Medal he received in World War I. President Eisenhower in 1957 awarded Gen. Donovan the National Security Medal.

Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, paid tribute to Gen. Donovan yesterday as "the father of central intelligence in the United States."

Today, Mr. Eisenhower issued this statement: "In the passing of Gen. William J. Donovan, the nation has lost a truly fine American and I have lost a close personal friend. Mrs. Eisenhower and I extend our deepest sympathy to his family in the great personal loss they have sustained."

Gen. Donovan's wife, the former Ruth Rumsey, along with a brother, the Rev. Vincent Donovan, a Dominican priest, were at his bedside when he died. Surviving with his wife and brother are a son, David, of Berryville, Va., and five grandchildren.

Gen. Donovan spent the greater part of his life in his country. He had a talent for handling men and acting decisively.

He acquired his nickname in World War I when he was chiding his men for looking tired after a rigorous day of training. A plaintive voice from the ranks replied, "We ain't as wild as you, Bill."

Between the wars, Gen. Donovan was an assistant attorney general, a leader in the Republican party and a globe-trotting diplomat who helped awaken this country to the menace of Hitlerism.

In recent years he had devoted his spare time to the cause of European federalism and to warning about the peril of Soviet imperialism.

Gen. Donovan was successful at everything he tried except politics. He ran for lieutenant governor of New York in 1922 and for governor in 1932 on the Republican ticket, but was defeated both times.

In 1924, he was named assistant attorney general by President Coolidge and in the next five years gained prominence for prosecuting violations of the anti-trust statutes.

Toured Europe in 1940.

Sensing the growing menace of fascism, Gen. Donovan kept in close touch with European developments in the thirties. In 1940, he was asked by President Roosevelt to make an extended tour of the Balkans and Great Britain as an unofficial observer. Gen. Donovan concluded that American information-gathering services were inadequate, and he so reported to the President. His appointment as co-ordinator of information followed soon afterward, and in 1942 he was named director of the OSS.

He returned to the practice of law after the war. President Eisenhower named him ambassador to Thailand in 1953, when Communists were threatening that country.

ART RICHES FOUND IN EGYPTIAN SHRINE

6th Century Byzantine Icons Discovered in Monastery Near Mt. Sinai.

(Pictures in Everyday Magazine)

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 9 (AP)—A wealth of Byzantine art treasures 1400 years old lies in an isolated monastery near Mount Sinai in Egypt, an international research team said today.

The Sixth Century shrine at the Monastery of St. Catherine, visited last summer, holds material the team calls unsurpassed in quantity and quality in Byzantine art history.

Princeton University, the University of Michigan, and the University of Alexandria, Egypt, jointly sponsored the expedition to the monastery 150 miles southeast of Suez.

The church was founded by the Byzantine emperor Justinian on the reputed site of Moses' burning bush, close to the mountain where tradition says Moses received the Ten Commandments.

St. Catherine's, the oldest existing Greek Orthodox monastery, also is holy ground for Moslems. The camel on which Mohammed is said to have ascended to heaven is thought to have left a footprint in the rocks of nearby Mount Sinai.

Among the treasures uncovered and photographed by the expedition are 1200 or more icons. Prof. Kurt Weitzman of Princeton's art and archeology department, says the collection is the world's richest.

The icon masterpieces include a representation of St. Peter, depicted as young and strong with a closely cropped head, holding the keys to heaven and a staff.

The team photographed thousands of manuscripts in Greek, Syriac, Georgian, Arabic and Slavonic—many of them illustrated by miniature paintings.

It also made color photographs and architectural drawings of well-preserved frescoes, mosaics, wet-plaster paintings, and Crusader coats of arms decorating the dining hall.

The research team, first to make an extensive study of the monastery, brought along two tons of equipment and a three-month supply of dehydrated food.

Field notes, photographs and drawings are now being studied by team members. They plan to publish a complete report.

SATIRIST LAYS LOW HIGHBROW MUSIC

Large Audience Enjoys Anna Russell's Irreverent Treatment of Classics.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN
Comedy is said to be the difference between what you are and what you think you are. Working on this principle, Miss Anna Russell managed to convince a large audience at Kiel Auditorium Opera House yesterday afternoon that Wagner's "Ring of the Nibelung" was one big laugh.

As many people are convinced that opera of any kind is inherently ridiculous, the difference between pretensions and the realities of Wagner's yelping demigods is particularly inviting to irreverent treatment.

Miss Russell, by talking and singing, paid her respects not only to Wagnerian opera but to other types of highbrow music as well and she was assisted at times by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra with Harry Farman conducting. One of these was the Handelian kind of oratorio in which the soloist sits impatiently waiting for her entrance and then vocalizes acrobatically on three or four words. In another, "Anæmia's Death Scene," she made it clear that a fatal disease never affected the lungs of an operatic heroine.

Her discourse on the "Nibelungen Ring," however, was her greatest success of the afternoon, possibly because it needed very little overemphasis. Actually her paraphrase of the plot was almost literally exact. Siegfried fell in love with Brunhilde, she said, because she was the first woman he had seen; later he succumbed to the charms of Gutrune, who was the first woman he had met who wasn't his aunt.

In burlesque—which is a better name for Miss Russell's broad style than satire—the plot was being parodied most effectively. Miss Russell knew her "Ring" well enough—she played a number of its motifs on the piano to give a dead serious appreciation course at one conservatory.

The audience enjoyed the entertainment hugely, including the straightaway, no nonsense performances of the "William Tell" and "Meister-singer" overtures.

WILLIAM J. McLAUGHLIN, RETIRED FIREMAN, DIES

William J. McLaughlin, a member of the St. Louis Fire Department for 47 years before retiring two years ago, died of a cerebral hemorrhage yesterday at his home, 4015 Nebraska avenue. He was 76 years old.

Mr. McLaughlin had been assigned to Engine Co. No. 4, 4425 South Compton avenue, during his entire service with the department. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Katherine Betts-McLaughlin, and four sons, Melvin J., Clifford W., Clinton D. and Vincent P. McLaughlin.

Funeral services will be at 9 a.m. Thursday at St. Thomas of Aquin Catholic Church, 3953 Iowa avenue, with burial in Resurrection Cemetery.

LINCOLN U. CHOIR HEARD IN CONCERT

Organization Shows Decided Skill in Appearance at Sheldon Memorial.

By MANUS SASONKIN
The Lincoln University Concert Choir of Jefferson City presented a recital yesterday afternoon at Sheldon Memorial Auditorium. O. Anderson Fuller conducted the 41-voice choir in a long and varied program.

Fuller is a thoroughly comprehensive conductor, and there are no weak links in his technical chain. Consequently, it is hardly surprising that, for its level, the organization shows decided skill. It is not quite of professional caliber, and since it does not pretend to be, this is certainly not to be held against it. Attacks tended to be precarious; the balance throughout the concert favored the men's voices, and pitch was sometimes a bit rough.

But the over-all impression was a pleasurable one. Fuller displayed an acute sense of dynamics, a sensible concept of tempo (and tempo adjustment), and an ability to control his forces without resorting to violence. Moreover, he elicited spirited readings from his singers. Not one of the fourteen selections offered by the choir ever lagged or coasted. The mood, with its appropriate tension, was invariably sustained.

I could take issue with Fuller over a number of very minor mannerisms. It seemed to me that several dynamic effects, notably crescendos and accents, were exaggerated. And Fuller, in his altogether justifiable concern with the conduct of inner parts, allowed them, now and then, to dominate the over-all texture. But in the main, the conductor's concepts were as lucid as his realizations were accurate, and my enjoyment is not to be put off by mere details.

A number of soloists and accompanists were active, primarily during the moments given over to the Opera Workshop. There were too many of the former to be listed individually, but they all showed promise.

ST. LOUIS U. ALUMNI FUND COUNCIL ELECTS CHAIRMAN

Richard T. Stith Jr., an insurance executive, was named chairman of the Alumni Fund Council of St. Louis University at the annual meeting for council members at Henri's restaurant last night. He succeeds William A. Gavin.

Contributions to the Living Endowment program totaled $850,864 last year, an increase of 15 per cent over 1957. Twenty-six per cent of the university's graduates contributed to the program, which supports teachers' salaries.

Certificates of appreciation were distributed to members of the Alumni Fund Council by the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert S.J., president of the university.

MEYER BERGER, WINNER OF PULITZER PRIZE, DIES

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—Meyer Berger, Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter and columnist for the New York Times, died yesterday. He was 60 years old. Mr. Berger suffered a stroke Wednesday at his Manhattan home.

In his column, "About New York," Mr. Berger wrote in a quiet vein about out-of-the-way happenings and out-of-the-way people of his favorite city, but he was also the master of the dramatic story—disasters, trials, bank robberies.

It was his account of the murderous rampage of Howard Unruh, an insane veteran who shot 13 persons in Camden, N.J., which won him a Pulitzer prize in 1950. Mr. Berger interviewed more than 50 persons for six hours while he retraced Unruh's steps, then pounded out 4000 words in two and a half hours.

FUNERAL TO BE WEDNESDAY FOR DR. WALTER PIERCE

Funeral services for Dr. Walter Pierce, a dentist, will be Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the Math Hermann undertaking establishment, 2161 East Fair avenue, with burial in Valhalla cemetery.

Dr. Pierce, who was 64 years old and lived at 1525 McCausland avenue, died yesterday of Cancer at Jewish hospital. He was graduated in 1924 from Washington University School of Dentistry and had offices at 4326 West Florissant avenue for 27 years.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mabel Walker Pierce, and two sons, Donald H. and Walter Pierce, Jr.

COL. LLOYD C. GRISCOM DIES

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Feb. 9 (AP)—Col. Lloyd C. Griscom, newspaper owner-publisher and retired diplomat, died yesterday at Archbold Memorial Hospital. He was 86 years old.

Mr. Griscom, who bought the Tallahassee (Fla.) Democrat 30 years ago, was board chairman of the company which published the newspaper. He had served as ambassador to Italy, ambassador to Japan, and minister to Brazil, and was author of the book "Diplomatically Speaking."

Hawks Go East Again With Hope of Clinching Flag This Week

Warriors Defeated; St. Green Hits Well

By Harold Flachsbar

There was a lot of fog, a little good-natured grumbling over the heavy National Basketball Association schedule and determination among the Hawks, as they took off in their leased plane for Philadelphia last night, to clinch the Western pennant as soon as possible.

On this flight, unlike several last week in the East, the Hawks at least had a victory to talk about. And they needed only four more wins in a busy schedule this week or four Minneapolis defeats, or a combination of each, to nail down their third straight divisional flag.

Their eighth Kiel Auditorium victory in succession was a 100-93 decision for the Hawks over the Philadelphia Warriors yesterday afternoon. And the best Sunday crowd of the season, 8526, including 1500 autograph seekers, gave St. Louis Green the most applause.

Tonic the Hawks Needed. Green, the 6-foot-2 jumping jack acquired from Cincinnati a month ago in a deal including Med Park, had his first extended stint in a Hawk uniform and came through with a performance that gladdened troubled Coach Ed Macauley.

With the Hawks beginning to play better and some of the players growing at each other, and maybe once or twice at the coach, Macauley spotted Green's play as the highlight of a much-needed victory. It was the St. Louis champions' twentieth decision in 23 games at Kiel this season.

Playing 21 minutes, Green handled himself with the finesse that was associated with his college days at Duquesne, and most important, he scored four straight field goals for the Hawks at a time they needed the buckets—and the shot in the arm.

"It was a pleasure for me, too," said Green in his soft-spoken way, "to be able to get in there and help out at a time the game wasn't out of hand and for either team. I'm sure glad to wear this Hawk uniform and I want to help the team."

Green wound up with 10 points and latched onto six important rebounds with his nimble and springy legs. Macauley, a leader who had tried to coax his players out of a slump with individual conferences instead of a mass clubhouse meeting, said of Sihugo, "He played better than I dared hope."

"No doubt about it, Green and Hagan made a big difference in that third quarter. Easy Ed added. And Dugie Martin also played an inspired game."

16 Points for Martin. The box score shows Martin, who teamed neatly with Green when Si was his backline mate and sometimes up front, too, played 47 minutes, and eight assists, seven rebounds and scored 16 points. Hagan had 18 of his 20 points in the second half and Bob Pettit, basketball's leading scorer, came within a fraction of his 28.9 season's average with 28 big ones.

Pettit dropped below his season's average during a four-game Eastern swing last week. There were a couple of technical fouls called against sharp-tongued Capt. Charles Share, and whereas the first one cost the Hawks four points and the second only one point, it was on the call of the second one that there was obvious discontent in the ranks.

Pettit gritted his teeth. Macauley shook his fist in his open hand, and the loss was Charles' ejection from the game. The team lost a good blocker for Pettit and a strong rebounder.

Tonight's game in Philadelphia is against Syracuse and then a meeting follows with the Pistons at Detroit Tuesday before an open date Wednesday. New York will be at Kiel Thursday night.

If Minneapolis were to lose a couple the next two nights—and every club is scheduled this Monday night—the Hawks could wrap up the division pennant by tomorrow night. A more likely "shooting date" is Thursday here against New York or Saturday at Kiel in a key game with Minneapolis.

32-Year-Old Swim Record Bettered. ALAMEDA, Calif., Feb. 9 (AP)—An American record Johnny Weismuller set 32 years ago was bettered twice at the Alameda Naval Air Station A.A.U. swim meet.

Gary Heinrich of the Bay-O-Vista Swim Club in San Leandro, Calif., and Hal Coulston of the Fresno, Calif., Y.M.C.A. both beat Weismuller's 2:01.2 time for the 200 yard senior men's freestyle set in Detroit in 1927. Heinrich was timed in 2:00.1 and Coulston in 2:01.0. The pool is a 50-yard tank, the same length as the pool Weismuller swam in 32 years ago.

Sanford-Brown, Pastoris Play Tonight. The Pastoris (11-0) of the Independent Basketball Association and Sanford-Brown (0-7) of the Sherman League will meet tonight at 8:30 o'clock at Ritenour High.

Pastoris, made up of former St. Louis U. players, is the lone unbeaten senior basketball team in the district. Sanford-Brown, which lost to S.I.U. (Alton Branch) Saturday night, 66-64, has lost four games this year by a basket.

Two Points, One Way or Another

CLIFF HAGAN (16) of Hawks was fouled on this attempt to score from under the backboard in the Sunday afternoon game at Kiel. Hitting him, as they say in basketball, was TOM GOLA (15) of Philadelphia with hands upstretched. Hagan made both free throws, enabling him to total 20 points in the 100-93 St. Louis victory. Others, at left, are JOE GRABOSKI (9) of Philadelphia and, at right, CHARLEY SHARE (13) of Hawks and WOODY SAULSBERRY of Warriors.

Macauley May Sign Only a 3-Year Pact

Amid speculation that Ed Macauley might accept a new contract as coach of the Hawks Wednesday, Club Owner Ben Kerner said today he would hold a press conference in his downtown office next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

"As far as I'm concerned," said Kerner, "the only thing that will happen Wednesday at the Basketball Writers' luncheon is that we'll hear from top pro and college coaches like Fuzzy Levine, Chuck Orsborn, John Benington and, if he arrives from Detroit in time, Macauley, too."

Friends of Macauley had speculated that, offered a five-year $100,000 contract by Kerner some time ago, Easy Ed would accept two or three years and might make his announcement Wednesday.

Kerner's counter-announcement today indicated that a decision had been reached by Macauley, but that it would not be made public until the weekend.

The Hawks won't be back in St. Louis until about 3 a.m. Wednesday morning, after their Tuesday night game with Detroit, contest No. 12 in a 15-day period.

Against Philadelphia the Hawks trailed most of the first half, then rallied behind Green's and Hagan's spurts in the seven-point deficit. They ahead were briefly at 72-71, lost the edge but took charge after a 78-78 tie with 8:12 to go in the fourth period. . . . Jon Mars Is Third in Title Meet

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 9 (AP)—If it had not been for Jon Mars, St. Louis would have drawn a horse collar in the North American speed skating championships concluded yesterday at McCarty Park in nearby West Allis.

Skating against United States Olympians Tom Weisel of Whitefish Bay, Wis., and Ed Rudolph of Chicago, in the intermediate boys division, Jon rang up a total of six points and finished third. No other St. Louis skater was able to pick up a point during the two-day meet.

Jon finished second to Weisel in the 440, raced in the record-equating time of 36.4 seconds. Young Mars wheeled Weisel, the division champion with 23 points, all the way. Rudolph scored a total of 15 points for second place in the meet.

Mars grabbed another point for a fourth-place finish in the 3-mile event. Of six races, Mars failed to get a point in only one, the two-mile.

Other St. Louis skaters were Dave Mars and James Chapin, senior men; Jerry Van Mill, intermediate boys; Dennis Stanford, junior boys; John Hicks, juvenile boys; Karl Van Mill, midjet boys; Joan Kristof, intermediate girls; and Donna Wilke, junior girls.

Gene Sandvig of Minneapolis and Keith Meyer of Chicago, members of the 1960 United States Olympic team, tied for the senior men's title. A third Olympic skater Los Angeles' Dick Hunt, finished third, one point behind. Sandvig and Meyer finished with 12 points apiece. Hunt rallied yesterday to win the five-mile race and finish second in the mile.

Sandvig, the first day's leader, had a third in the 880 and a second in the five-mile, while Meyer captured the 880 and took third place in the five-mile.

Other Olympic team winners were Jeanne Omelenchuk of Detroit, in the senior women's division and Barbara Lockhart of Northbrook, Ill., in intermediate girls.

Five more records fell, but because of a wind in excess of 13 miles per hour it is doubtful any of them will be sanctioned.

Three of the questionable records were set in the 220. Dave Arends of Cedar Rapids, Ia., was tied in 18 seconds flat in the senior men's division; Mrs. Omelenchuk in 20.1 seconds and Sandra Danielson of Minneapolis in 25.8 seconds in the junior girls' class.

The others were a 2:53.8 effort by Bob Busse of Madison, Wis., in the junior boys' division mile and a 46.8-second time by Vicky Gutgesell of Wausau, Wis., in the midjet girls' 440.

Divisional champions included Busse; Roger Capan of Champaign-Urbana, Ill., and Dan Petzold of West Allis, juvenile boys; Ray Novak of Chicago, midjet boys; Miss Danielson; Renee Garvin of Minneapolis, juvenile girls, and Miss Gutgesell.

"not for sale" and he definitely intended to go through with his deal with Mrs. Rigney.

Comiskey has filed a three-pronged court petition aimed at spiking sister Dorothy's sale, but it nevertheless appeared that even if the court ruled favorably toward Comiskey, the situation's lone change would be the date on which Veeck takes over possession. Currently, it appeared he would assume the helm before April 4.

It was questionable, however, if Veeck ever could actually get running control of the club without buying Comiskey's shares.

For Comiskey, the choices appeared clear: He could either sell out to Veeck or begin a lengthy series of dubious court battles.

The White Sox have been in the control of the Comiskey family ever since the American League began in 1901.

Veeck at one time controlled the Cleveland Indians, then later moved to the St. Louis Browns. A baseball showman, who boasts of never wearing tie, Veeck spurred the Indians' attendance into the millions and slipped in a midjet to bat for the Browns.

Grandelius New Coach At Colorado

BOULDER, Colo., Feb. 9 (UPI)—Everett (Sonny) Grandelius, backfield coach at Michigan State University, was named head football coach today at the University of Colorado.

Grandelius, 29 years old, succeeds Dallas Ward, who was fired by the board of regents last month after 11 seasons here.

No salary was announced. Ward was paid $11,800 annually plus $1000 per year for expenses.

Rigney's Auto Crash Forces Giants to Change Camp Plans

WALNUT CREEK, Calif., Feb. 9 (UPI)—Bill Rigney, manager of the San Francisco Giants, today faced the prospect of spending the opening days of spring training in bed, recovering from painful injuries suffered in an automobile smashup.

Rigney and his wife, Paula, were hospitalized here yesterday for surgery after their car went out of control and crashed into a power pole in Berkeley, across the bay from San Francisco.

The 41-year-old baseball manager suffered a badly smashed lower jaw and a broken collarbone. Mrs. Rigney's hip was fractured.

A hospital spokesman said both were in good condition. According to the police report, Rigney apparently fell asleep at the wheel of his 1955 model coupe about 4:30 a.m. while the car was traveling at moderate speed. The machine veered over and plowed into the power pole.

The report noted that both Rigney had been drinking, but no citations were issued.

Asleep at the Wheel. "The accident was caused by Rigney falling asleep at the wheel," the report read. "Both William and Paula Rigney had been drinking."

Rigney's physician, who asked not to be quoted by name, said four hours of surgery were required to wire the manager's shattered jaw together.

"There was no evidence of concussion or internal injuries," he said. The physician said the fracture in the collarbone "was not a bad break."

"Rigney suffered some face cuts and contusions," he said, "but they were not serious."

The doctor said Rigney will be hospitalized for about 10 days and will have to spend another week in bed recovering. In this case the manager will not be able to lead the Giants into their Phoenix (Ariz.) spring quarters.

A group of selected veterans arrive Thursday at the Buckhorn Spa at Mesa, near the regular Giant camp at Phoenix. This is basically a conditioning camp. A second early camp for rookies and farm club prospects begin Feb. 17.

Parker May Fill In. The training season opens officially Feb. 23. The first exhibition game is against the Cleveland Indians at Tucson March 7.

Coach Francis (Salty) Parker was expected to fill in for Rigney until he is ready to climb into uniform. However

Celts Set One Mark, Equal Two

BOSTON, Feb. 9 (UPI)—The Boston Celtics, who are eight and one-half games in front of the second-place New York Knickerbockers in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association, posted an easy, 136-117 triumph over the Cincinnati Royals last night.

The Celtics set one record and tied two others on the way to the victory.

When they scored 20 field goals in the third period, the Celtics wiped out the old league mark of 19 they set during the 1956-57 season and tied by the Detroit Pistons last season.

Tommy Heinsohn, who scored 36 points in all, hit for 10 baskets in the same period to tie a record shared by Cliff Hagan of St. Louis and Dick Garmaker and George Mikan of the Minneapolis Lakers.

The second record they equaled came when they scored 48 points in the third period, matching the old mark set by the Baltimore Bullets in 1952.

The Syracuse Nationals ended New York's string of nine straight victories over them by defeating the Knickerbockers, 113-104, in the nationally televised game of the week and the Minneapolis Lakers zipped to a 115-103 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

Dolph Schayes and John Kerr had 25 points each to pace the Nationals, who whittled New York's lead over them to four and one-half games, while Rookie Elgin Baylor was the Lakers' big man with 27 points.

Mexico Soccer Tourney MEXICO CITY, Feb. 9 (UPI)—Guadalajara came from behind in the second half to gain a 1-1 tie against Dukla of Prague, in a pentagonal soccer tournament game witnessed by 100,000 fans here yesterday.

Guadalajara will play Leon and Santos of Brazil faces the America club in Thursday's games.

BILL RIGNEY

Giants' owner Horace Stoneham was quoted in Phoenix last night as saying no decision had been made on Rigney's temporary replacement.

Of the two Mrs. Rigney's injury was the more serious. The physician said the compound fracture of her hip had to be reduced by surgery and she has been placed in traction.

"She may not be able to use that leg for six months," he said. "It was an ugly fracture."

"The Rigney received emergency treatment in Berkeley and were later transferred to Kaiser Hospital here for surgery and confinement."

They have three children and make their home in Walnut Creek, about 25 miles east of San Francisco.

Bradley Game Here Wednesday a Key Match in Billiken Season

Revived Bears Go On Road

By Robert Morrison
John (Old Dad) Benington, now the father of seven with the birth of his fifth son Sunday morning, turned his attention back to basketball today as his St. Louis University team faced one of the top games on an interesting area schedule this week.

Paul Louis Benington obligingly arrived during a nine-day gap in the Billiken schedule. The Bills and Old Dad, who is 37, will try to oblige Paul Louis with a thirteenth consecutive victory at Kiel Auditorium Wednesday night.

It probably won't be easy. The opponent is Bradley U. of Peoria, one of the most thoroughly competent, well-rounded teams in the country, currently ranking eighth just ahead of St. Louis.

The game is a key to St. Louis hopes of staying in strong contention in the Missouri Valley Conference title race. Bradley has a 17-2 overall record, 6-1 in the league—compared to St. Louis's 14-2 and 5-1. Both teams trail the league leader Cincinnati, which is 16-2 and 8-0.

While this game occupies the center of the college basketball stage here, there are several other situations of unusual interest.

Stalcup-Iba Duel.
Missouri (3-14) will try to break of its 11-game slump when Sparky Stalcup faces his old coach, Hank Iba, in a game with Oklahoma State (8-9) tomorrow night at Columbia.

Washington U. (8-10), with new-found spirit after an overtime 55-51 victory over Indiana State Saturday night, is ready to face a series of road games which start Wednesday night against Wabash (9-7) at Crawfordsville, Ind.

The Bears, upset by the death of their veteran coach, Blair Gullion, 11 days ago, could yet finish with a winning season by surmounting severe odds and winning their last four games in the next two weeks. It seems too much to expect.

In addition, Concordia Seminary will try to erase the memory of its 91-48 loss to Indiana State when the Preachers play highly regarded Lincoln U. of Jefferson City Friday night at Concordia. Lincoln is one of the top-scoring small-college teams in the country with an 82.2 average, which is twenty-first in the latest national list. Lincoln won 10 of 13 games during that period.

Illinois Faces Toughie.
Sagging Illinois meantime, meaning tonight, will take its 8-8 record to Indiana where the Hoosiers (9-6) may go to the Big Ten lead by winning their sixth league game in eight.

Billiken Coach Benington, touched perhaps by the optimism attending all new fathers, permitted himself to admit that his tall Billikens would not be outmached individually by Chuck Orsborn's Braves.

But that was as far as Old Dad would go.

"We'll have an edge in height but it won't offset Bradley's speed, shooting ability, quickness and smartness," said Benington. "They're well coached with a lot of experience and they can do almost anything—play the zone or the press or man-to-man on defense, and on offense they have one of the best delay games in the country. They move and cut and handle the ball well."

It has been six seasons since St. Louis last lost to Bradley on the Billiken court, but victory here has been difficult particularly the last two seasons during which Orsborn has been the opposing coach.

Steadiness Can Win.
Bill Gullion, Blair's son who is sharing coaching duties with Vince Vento at Washington U., credited his coaching teammate with making the defensive adjustments that enabled the Bears to hold back fast-breaking Indiana State.

Even though they weren't hitting too well, the Bears stayed steady against the Sycamores, Gullion noted.

"This should give us a lot of confidence for the remaining games," said Gullion who with Vento will take the Bears to Beloit Saturday after their mid-week journey to Wabash. Wabash, said Bill, is sparked by a "Cousy-type" guard, 5-9 Tom Bennett. Bennett scored 27 points last year at Wabash beat the Bears here, 58-47.

George Pruitt, a three-year veteran who is averaging about 23 points a game, is the star of the Lincoln team that will meet Concordia. It's a running, jumping team that likely will give the Preachers trouble.

Olympic Soccer Candidates Deep in Their Work

Mud Gums Up Trials For Olympic Soccer

By Dent McSkimming
Under ideal weather and field conditions it is not an easy matter for one soccer player to outshine all other rivals in a gathering of more than 100 players. When the playing surface is ankle deep in sticky mud and there is a bone-chilling fine mist blowing across the field, the most skillful player may well flunk the test.

So, it is obvious that the committee charged with selecting 60 players from the 12 lineups that played at Fairground Park yesterday will surely have to fall back on prior performances. Playing conditions were so bad that 20 or more of the nominated players did not even put on uniforms. However, lineup vacancies were filled by stout-hearted individuals who volunteered their services for two or more of the abbreviated games.

When the selection committee meets tomorrow night it certainly will be generous in its appraisal of talents. No one could play genuinely good football, not even courageous and ageless Joe Provazek, whose every mud-covered move was cheered by the small crowd. The question among the fans regarding Joe was not whether he will win a place on the Olympic squad, but "How old is he, really?" Joe's shiny, bald pate and his many years of service are deceptive. He's not nearly as old as Satchel Paige.

Heavy Ball Fells Cook.
Just three goals were scored in a full afternoon's play, but at least half a dozen goal shots rolled to a stop right on the goal line, halted only by the mud. The player who headed that heavy ball was jarred all the way down to his heels. Elwood (Butch) Cook got in the way of a teammate's hearty shot and was knocked right out of the clubhouse.

A more serious casualty was Dick Zurmuehlen. This very promising young back suffered a twisted knee and was carried from the field. He walked after treatment, but may well miss next Sunday's second series of trials.

Bill Eppy pulled up a heavy foot leaving his shoe deep in the mire. Goalkeepers, diving heedlessly into the gloop that served as a playing pitch, were real heroes. All played well above the day's average.

Since the outcome of the games played no part in the selection of Olympic survivors, the scores meant little. It is worth mentioning for the record that George Endler, Jim Davis and Bill Looby were the only scorers, each with one.

Some pleasant surprises included Vern Swoboda, Tom Trost, as a forward; Bob Eck, Dolph Kraus, Marion Trost, George Vlasak, Bill Rudge and

Fred Calcaterra. Many others performed well; in fact, all the players of proved ability were up to par, so far as the mud would permit.

Group Meets Tomorrow.
Some of those who are dropped will probably feel that they did not have a fair chance to appear at their best, and the committee will agree that the stage setting was very bad. But the pressure of a full calendar has made postponements out of the question.

The selectors, meeting tomorrow, are: Syl Raferty, chairman; Walter Giesler, national chairman; Bob Guelker, Jim Moore, Tom Molloy, Joe Carezza, Marty Clarke and Pete Garcia.

All the game officials donated their services for the trials.

On an adjoining field, C.Y.C. senior teams All Saints and Nativity played a 1-1 overtime tie. They were trying to break their tie for the championship of the Bishop Byrne league.

Only the champion will be eligible for the upcoming John Marre Trophy tourney. Other results: St. Paul won the Juvenile division title with a 2-0 victory over St. Philip; St. Edward won the Juvenile consolation tourney, defeating Holy Rosary, 1-0.

C.Y.C. Volleyball

St. Philip Neri defeated Perpetual Help, 23-17, 19-17 to win the C.Y.C. senior girls volleyball championship. SS. Mary and Joseph won from St. Augustine, 45-13 and St. Philip Neri trimmed St. Aloysius, 28-24, in two overtimes to enter the final in the junior competition.

Littler's 268 Wins Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 9 (UPI)—Gene Littler, labeled only five years ago as the probable successor to Ben Hogan's golf crown, but a flop as a winner for the last two years, is back on the beam.

The San Diego links star annexed the Phoenix Open championship yesterday for his first major tournament victory since early 1957.

His putting game is back and a slight change in his swing has given the three-time winner of the Tournament of Champions the confidence he needs to be a big winner again.

Gene had a closing round of 71 to go with early performances of 67-63-67 for a 268 total—12 strokes under par for the distance on the Arizona Country Club course. The win was worth $2400. But Gene nearly blew it with some of the most erratic final-round play in the major tourney history.

He had only five pars on the 18 holes yesterday. But he got a fat eagle on the fourth when he sank a five-iron shot. And just when it appeared he was going to blow the lead entirely on the late holes, he came back with birdies on the twelfth and thirteenth holes.

Meanwhile, Art Wall was making a powerful stretch run as he closed out with 66 for 269, good for $1700. This brought Art's take from the gold rush so far this year to $13,600.

Wall drew within one stroke of Littler on the sixteenth hole and had a chance to tie by getting a birdie on the comparatively easy par-five eighteenth. But his chip shot to the pin was 18 feet short and his putt was a couple of inches off line.

There was a three-way tie far back of the leaders at 275 for third place between John McMullin, Alameda, Calif., Marty Furgol, Lemont, Ill., and Jimmy Clark, Huntington Beach, Calif., each collecting $1,133.34.

From here the touring professionals go to Tucson for the $15,000 Tucson Open.

United States Hockey Team Gains Victory

GENEVA, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Cleary brothers, Bill and Bob, from Cambridge, Mass., got together for a pair of goals as the United States hockey team defeated Switzerland, 5-2, for a sweep of a two-game series en route to the world championships at Prague.

Bob Cleary took a neat pass from brother Bill for a score that capped a three-goal outburst and overhauled a Swiss lead in the second period. It proved the winner, giving the United States club a 3-1 lead. The Clearys also teamed for the final score, with Bill taking Bob's pass.

Decision in Aragon Case in a Week

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9 (AP)—The State Athletic Commission is expected to render a decision in about a week on the circumstances surrounding the Jan. 31 Aragon-Charley Sawyer fight here.

Aragon knocked out Sawyer in four rounds after the referee had urged the loser to put up a better fight.

Purses of both fighters were held up pending the commission probe.

Veteran Referee Tommy Hart told the commission Saturday that he "felt as though it (the fight) was rigged for the first round" and that Sawyer "did not give his best efforts."

Judge John Thomas said that after the first round, "I didn't see too much wrong."

Aragon, who is seeking release of his $8000 purse, testified that he had put forth his best effort. "I have no opinion as to whether Sawyer died," he added.

Said Promoter Jackie Leonard: "It was the worst mismatch of the last 10 years."

The commission refused to release the fighters' purses until it has completed its investigation.

Gernert Signs

BOSTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—With the receipt today of Dick Gernert's signed contract, the Red Sox totaled 20 players who have agreed to terms for the coming American League season.

Gernert, a right-hander who compiled a .492 average as a pinch hitter last season, plays both first base and left field. His overall average last season was .237. He hit 20 homers, 15 of them at Fenway Park.

Joe Brown Is Favored Over Busso

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 9 (AP)—Joe Brown and Johnny Busso polished off weeks of training for their lightweight championship fight with final workouts today while trainers in both camps said they didn't have a worry in the world.

Odds-makers had Brown favored at 5-7 over the weekend. "Everything is bunk dory," titlist Brown's veteran trainer Bill Gore said. "How can you worry when you're doing everything right?"

Gore said Brown was much farther along "than he was at this time before the (Kenny) Lane fight," which Brown won on a decision here last July with a strong finish.

"Joe is in a great frame of mind, real great," the silver-thatched trainer emphasized. "Joe is in great shape—we have no problems."

Brown will make the sixth defense of his title in a 15-round bout with Busso in Sam Houston Coliseum Wednesday night. He lost a decision to Busso in a non-title fight in Miami Beach last November.

Busso's trainer, Chickie Ferrara, was in a similar frame of mind, saying his boy could do no wrong. Busso weighed about 137 yesterday and planned a workout today to make sure he would get down to the 135-pound limit.

The challenger seemed to be holding back as he worked three rounds with Ray Portilla and two with Al Bouldin.

Gore said Brown would work four or five rounds today with Candy McFarland and take tomorrow off. The champion and McFarland tore into each other in sparring sessions yesterday with Brown looking better than he had all week.

A crowd of 8000 is expected to bring a gate of about $50,000. The fight will be televised nationally (ABC).

Quincy Trims Loras

QUINCY, Ill., Feb. 9 (AP)—Quincy College fought off a second half rally by Loras to score at 75-71 basketball victory. Quincy led 45-34 at the half, but the Iowa school managed to get in front in the second half. Quincy finally forged ahead 62-61 to remain in the lead. Don Cabbes led Quincy with 16 points, but scoring honors went to Loras' Bill Rhomberg with 20 points.

1134 St. Louis Teams to Compete in A.B.C. Championship Event

Belleville Enters 70 Quintets

By John J. Archibald

There is still a chance for bowlers who missed the entry deadline to compete in the upcoming American Bowling Congress tournament. Because visiting teams often need a man, particularly for doubles partners, a waiting list is being compiled and bowlers in all average ranges are urged to contact Joe Smolen, manager of A.B.C. entries, at Franklin 1-3450.

The Fifty-sixth annual A.B.C. meet will open Saturday at the 138th Infantry Armory. There will be squads of booster teams from various parts of the nation rolling from noon on, but the formal opening ceremonies will be at 6:30 p.m.

There are 1134 teams listed from the City of St. Louis, although many members of these teams live in the suburbs. A ticket office has been opened at the Armory, with hours from noon until 6 p.m. daily. All tickets are general admission, priced at $1 for day-time competition and $1.50 for the night session.

Persons holding advance tickets must exchange them at the box office for tickets bearing the desired date, if they wish to watch a night session. There will be no extra charge for this exchange.

Those wishing to see a day session need not exchange their tickets in advance.

25 Ferguson Teams

Ferguson proved to be the hottest bowling community in the suburban St. Louis area as far as A.B.C. entries, with 25 teams enrolled. The second best represented community will be the relatively small city of Mehlville with 16 teams. Maplewood has 15 and Kirkwood 14. No others are in double figures.

Belleville was far ahead among nearby Illinois cities with 70 teams entered. Next came East St. Louis with 49 and Granite City with 26. The final official entry total was 5482 teams, with 2888 in the open division and 2594 booster teams (with averages of 850 or less). The booster total was the fifth highest in A.B.C. history.

A total of 17,019 men paid the extra $3 fee to compete for the all-events prize money.

New Leaders In Women's Tenpin Meet

Mrs. Beulah Donovan, with a total of 1682, took first place in the all-events of the St. Louis Women's Bowling Association tournament on the Sports Bowl lanes. The Sunnys, aided by a handicap of 300 pins, moved into first place in the Class A team competition with 2721.

Mrs. Donovan rolled 511 in the team event, 576 in doubles and 595 in singles. The Sunnys had scratch games of 788, 826 and 793. Bernice Schneck paced the squad with 508.

Mrs. Jimmy Kuhlmann, 645, took second in singles and Betty Trueblood and Mary Ann Oswald, 1192, for second in doubles.

Junior Billikens Move in Senior Style

BILL NORDMANN (35) was the marked man as C.B.C. players met St. Louis U. High, Sunday afternoon, but in this case little WILLIE PONTELLO (4) was the player who took the shot. Nordmann finished up with 17 points, high for his team as the Junior Billikens won, 67-50. At left is GARRY GARRISON (34) of C.B.C., and at right JERRY STRANGE. It was the second victory for the Junior Bills over their cross-town rivals.

U.S. Sled Third to Italians

LONDON, Feb. 9 (UP)—The touring United States amateur hockey team and a pair of New York-born bobsledders turned in impressive performances before European audiences during the weekend.

The American hockey players, warming up for the world championship in Czechoslovakia next month, scored three goals in less than five minutes in the second period to defeat Switzerland, 5-2, in an exhibition game at Geneva.

In the world two-man bobsled championship at St. Moritz, Art Tyler, a native of Rochester, N. Y., who now resides in Weston, Mass., and Tom Butler of Saranac Lake, N. Y., finished third behind two Italian sleds.

Eugenio Monti and his brakeman, Renzo Alvera, finished first with a record clocking of five minutes, 23.86 seconds for four runs down the treacherous Olympic chute. Sergio Zardini and Luciana Alberti finished second with an aggregate time of 5:24.55. Tyler and Butler were clocked in 5:24.62.

The United States No. 2 sled, steered by veteran Stan Benham of Lake Placid, N. Y., and braked by Chuck Pandolph of Saranac Lake, N. Y., wound up sixth in the field of 17 teams from 11 countries. Benham and Pandolph were timed in 5:28.98.

Both Tyler and Butler were nursing injuries, so their third-place finish was considered remarkable. Tyler underwent two operations recently for the removal of a steel splinter from his right eye and still has not regained full vision. Butler competed with a strained leg muscle.

Karl Schranz of Austria won the Alpine combined trophy in the 24th Hauswirth ski meet at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany. Bud Werner of Steamboat Springs, Colo., wound up far back in the field after trying for seventh place in the slalom.

Du Bourg Defeats Laboure

By Robert Morrison

Du Bourg came within one game of taking the Catholic Athletic Association basketball title and St. Louis University High downed C.B.C. to prolong a long-standing jinx in top prep games yesterday.

The Cavaliers romped over Laboure, 64-48, and the Junior Billikens took an early lead and went on to trip the Cadets 67-50. It was the second time this season that the U. High (12-4) has beaten top rival C.B.C. (16-4) this season.

In other games McBride triumphed 61-52, and St. Mary's downed DeAndreis, 71-23, in C.A.C. contests. Assumption whipped Duchesne, 49-41, in a non-league game.

Bill (Moose) Nordmann led St. Louis U. High with 17 points. Three other Junior Billikens players—Pat Farris (14), George Fitzsimmons (10) and Rich Heidenry (10)—hit in double figures.

Lorenz Pointer Wins Shooting Dog Stake

Boy's Lucky Strike, a male pointer handled by its owner, Fred Lorenz of Belleville, won the St. Louis Field Trial Association's shooting dog stake at the Busch Memorial Wildlife Area at Weldon Springs.

Boy's Lucky Strike, one of 16 dogs in yesterday's second half of the stake, handled one bevy of birds excellently, then found a single that he took care of perfectly.

Pussy Willow Lou, a female pointer owned and handled by Roger E. Lord of St. Louis, found and handled two clusters of birds in good style to take second place. Colonel Fast Delivery, which led the 16 dogs in Saturday's run, finished third.

Its handler and owner is Harry Story of Belleville.

Ronnie Biggerstaff and William Doll, both of Wood River, were the Judges.

DEBRE UNABLE TO CALM ALGERIA COLONIALISTS

ALGIERS, Feb. 9 (AP)—Young Algerian colonialists greeted French Premier Debre today with open hostility.

"You've sold out," shouted some in a crowd of more than 2000 who watched Debre place a wreath on the monument to Algiers' war dead.

It was at the same ritual three years ago that Socialist Premier Guy Mollet was showered with tomatoes, invective and garbage. Mollet's government from that moment showed extreme tenderness toward Algerian right-wing opinion.

Debre moved calmly through the ceremony and drove off quickly without getting pelted. His automobile was heavily guarded and troops lined the public square.

He came to Algeria to quiet right-wingers incensed at President De Gaulle's refusal to endorse integration of Algeria into European France's political system and his clemency to imprisoned Algerian nationalists.

"Hang Ben Bella," the crowds at the public square, mostly young men, shouted. "You've sold out! Algeria is French! Hang Ben Bella!"

The latter referred to imprisoned Algerian nationalist leader Mohamed Ben Bella, an ex-sergeant in the French army who is now deputy premier of the Algerian nationalist government in exile. De Gaulle last month ordered him transferred from a Paris prison apartment to more comfortable quarters in a military fortress.

After the ceremony, Debre received local officials and leaders at the summer palace, the residence of the French governor. He repeated his promise made at the time he took office that France would fight on in Algeria and said the big North African territory would always remain under French sovereignty.

Debre said that "the only road to salvation" is through De Gaulle's appeal for a ceasefire to permit operation of his plan for improvement of the Algerian economy.

No Magic Formula.

"I say to you and I affirm it from the bottom of my heart that no one can count on our growing weary. The truth is that Algeria is a territory under French sovereignty. There is no key word or magic formula to solve the problem," he added in an obvious reference to the insistence of the French colonialists on "integration."

French military authorities reported that 47 rebels were killed in scattered operations south of Oran Saturday. The biggest clash occurred near Saïda, where infantrymen supported by planes killed 30 rebels.

STATE HEARING SET ON RISE IN AUTO INSURANCE RATES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 9.—A public hearing will be held here Feb. 26 to determine whether recent automobile liability insurance rate increases should be permitted to stand. Gov. James T. Blair announced yesterday.

Blair last year urged C. Lawrence Leggett, state superintendent of insurance, to investigate new rates of the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters to see if they meet requirements of state laws.

Firms writing automobile liability policies can increase their rates, but the increases are subject to review and investigation by the state. A bill pending in the Missouri Legislature would force the companies to obtain approval of the insurance superintendent before they could become effective.

on a 16-inch line from Eilat. When it is completed the present 8-inch pipe will be used for carrying water down to Eilat.

The town now lives on water from six good wells.

Six ships—two German, two Dutch, one Swedish and one Israeli—now call regularly at Eilat. Tonnage handled increased from 30,000 in 1957 to 50,000 in 1958 and is expected to hit 100,000 this year.

Four tankers feed the pipeline with oil. The present pipeline has a capacity of 1,000,000 tons yearly.

A 20-minute ride northward over a good macadam road takes you to another show-spot of the Negev—the copper-mining center of Timna, 13 miles from Eilat.

A smartly designed German-built mill now produces the equivalent of 7000 tons of copper a year. It is found in the form of copper sulfates which contain only 1.6 per cent of metal but are economic to exploit because they can be mined from the surface.

After processing here, copper is exported for final treatment in Germany and France in the form of copper cement which runs 80 per cent copper.

Gen. Thomas Power, has clearly pointed out, the 15-minute ground alert offers no protection at all against a Soviet missile-strike. The air-missile warning system is not yet complete, and it will not be completed for some time to come. The warning time for a missile-strike will be zero. With zero warning time, SAC's planes on the ground would be destroyed by any successful missile-strike whether there was a 15-minute alert or no alert at all.

HOUSE UNIT OK'S TAX RELIEF ON OLD-AGE SAVINGS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (UPI)—The House Ways and Means Committee today overwhelmingly approved a special tax relief program to help self-employed persons save for their old age.

The measure was approved by voice vote despite opposition from the Treasury. The Treasury said it would cut Government revenue about $360,000,000 in its first year.

The bill would permit self-employed persons such as doctors, farmers and business proprietors to defer payment of income taxes until age 70 on up to 10 per cent of their annual income if they put this income in special retirement funds.

There would be a limit of $2500 a year and a lifetime limit of $50,000 on the amount of income on which taxes could be deferred.

The measure appeared certain to pass House approval, possibly next week.

picked bodyguard of 7000 men. Another 25,000 are employed in the police force. The security police is an unknown and greatly feared quantity.

Attempts to unionize workers are stopped immediately. In a shoe factory here children are employed in the equivalent of 25 cents a day.

Newspapers in Ethiopia are either government owned or strictly controlled.

Even motion pictures are censored and whole sequences may be eliminated. An amateur production of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" was halted by the police because it suggested the idea of assassination of a monarch. American aid also helps train the police.

But the winds of change are blowing over Africa and Ethiopia's long history of isolation is ending. Tom Mboya, the nationalist leader in Kenya, has been here twice and each time he has spoken to large and attentive audiences. He may not be invited back but the ideas inherent in the second half of the twentieth century have reached the mountain kingdom.

The agreement said the Soviets would provide technical services and some equipment but that Communist China itself would manufacture a major part of the necessary equipment for the enterprises stipulated in the agreement.

The agreement provided that Communist China will supply commodities to the Soviet Union in accordance with existing Chinese Soviet trade agreement to compensate for equipment and technical assistance provided by the Soviet Union.

The new agreement is further evidence to downgrade speculations of disagreements between Communist China and the Soviet Union.

INJUNCTION AGAINST TESTS FOR PLUMBERS SET ASIDE

An injunction, which prevented the Plumbers and Drainlayers Examining Board of St. Louis county from holding examinations last Saturday, was set aside today on a petition filed by county officials named in the injunction. Circuit Judge Fred E. Mueller set Feb. 18 for a hearing on an order to show cause why a temporary restraining order should not be issued.

An ordinance setting up the examining board under the plumbing code has been in dispute between plumbers, pipefitters and plumbers' laborers. It has been argued that the ordinance requiring examinations for both master and journeymen plumbers and drainlayers is restrictive and could increase building costs in the county.

The officials, including Supervisor James H. J. McNary, who asked that the injunction be set aside, contended that Circuit Judge Virgil Poelker exceeded his jurisdiction in granting the writ.

HAIR STYLISTS OBSERVE BEAUTY SALON WEEK HERE

About 300 professional hair stylists and beauticians began stylists today to 20 hospitals, homes for the aged, orphanages and corrective institutions in observance of National Beauty Salon Week here. The stylists will give free personalized beauty care to residents of the institutions.

As part of a recruitment program, members of the St. Louis Cosmetologists' Association will lecture on cosmetology as a career at O'Fallon Technical High School during the week.

The association will present individual awards to the St. Louis Hawks basketball team Thursday between halves a game with the New York Knickerbockers. The Hawks were chosen as the best groomed athletic group in St. Louis.

AD MAN PRESSES FOR EDUCATIONAL TV

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (UPI)—The head of a New York advertising firm asserted today that Madison Avenue should make an all-out effort to promote full-scale educational television for the American people.

John P. Cunningham, chairman of the board of Cunningham & Walsh, Inc., envisaged a system which could make a college degree available to everyone.

In a speech at a lunch of the Advertising Federation of America, Cunningham said: "Only when television is finally well harnessed to the march of the national mind can we in advertising relax comfortably among our ratings, our Westerns, our quizzes and our jobs of entertaining the masses."

He commended the advertising business for what has been done in the field of entertainment on commercial television, but said criticism of shortcomings in the educational phase is justified.

In pointing out the tremendous teaching advantages TV could bring, Cunningham commented: "The great immediate thing that television can do is to make a college degree available to every single American. The only action required of the television student would be to go to a central place in his city four times a year to take an examination."

Cunningham said such courses could be taught by creating a 24-hour-a-day educational channel that would reach "every single farm, tenement and garret." He pointed out that too much of the present educational TV programming comes at a time when most people are at work.

He urged also that sessions of Congress and the Supreme

In addition, the committee will be available to assist the freeholders in any way they wish, he said. Garnholz is a former county prosecuting attorney and Meyer is a former president of the county bar association.

MAN WATCHING TV KILLED WHEN AUTO HITS 'HOUSE

SURRATTSVILLE, Md., Feb. 9 (UPI)—Clifford Simmons, 42 years old, the father of four, was killed yesterday when an out-of-control auto smashed through his living room and struck him while he was watching television. His wife and two of his children were in the kitchen when the car owned by Joseph P. Hall of Clinton, Md., hurtled into the house.

Simmons was driven through a wall and into a side yard by the speeding auto which careened off the highway after colliding with the rear of another car. Police said it struck a telephone pole, jumped over a fire hydrant and rolled 200 feet before smashing into Simmons's house.

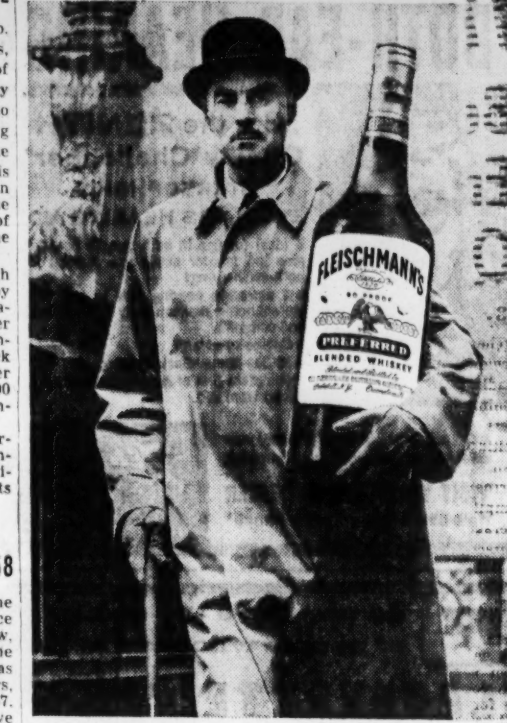

Hall, a carpenter, was arrested on charges of manslaughter, driving while intoxicated, speeding and four counts of reckless driving.

M.A.T.S. ACCIDENT RATE HIT RECORD LOW IN 1958

Aircraft accidents in the Military Air Transport Service in 1958 set a new record low, it was announced today. The command's accident rate was 3.05 per 100,000 flying hours, as compared with 3.90 in 1957. The rate has declined for five consecutive years, Lt. Gen. William H. Tunner, commander of MATS at Scott Air Force Base, said.

The command's special missions last year included movement of personnel and cargo to the Middle East and Formosa, an "airdrop" of about 900 tons of material to remote South Pole stations and airlift of missiles to Cape Canaveral and Britain.

Another MATS project included 500 trips furnishing support for Operation Hardtack, a five-month series of nuclear bomb tests at Eniwetok.

How many new houses can you build for an extra billion dollars?

The new homes of tomorrow are built from the increased earnings of today. New housing acts, increased mortgage money are all spurs to new home sales. But unless the family man and his wife have the necessary down payment, and see their way clear to assuming long-term mortgage debt, new houses cannot be sold.

1,250,000 steelworkers with their families are a vast home market. Besides that, wherever steelworkers live, wherever they buy from full pay checks, the entire community benefits, resulting in ever increasing prosperity.

AFL-CIO Peace Move Under Way To Prevent Bolt by Carpenters

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—An intricate peace move was under way today to prevent a bolt by the big United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners from the merged labor federation.

Maurice A. Hutcheson, president of the 850,000-member union, was reported drafting a letter designed to persuade labor's high command that no misuse of union funds was involved in a series of cases criticized by Senate rackets investigators.

Unless a last-minute snag develops, the letter will go to the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations in time for its mid-winter meeting at San Juan, Puerto Rico, next week.

Hutcheson, a federation vice president, is not expected to attend the session, despite an official request to be present. However, the letter is intended to cover the questions the council planned to ask him about charges of corruption involving him and his union.

Walkout Authorized.
Until the peace move developed, it had appeared likely that the federation would oust Hutcheson from his vice presidency. The Carpenters Union had authorized a walkout of the whole organization if punitive action were taken against its chief.

Other craft unions in the building and metal trades had indicated their readiness to follow the Carpenters out of the merged body. This would have raised the danger of a rival federation, in which James R. Hoffa, president of the outcast International Brotherhood of Teamsters, would have played a pivotal role.

Informed sources said Hutcheson had decided to prepare his letter after he had held private talks with George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, and Al J. Hayes, chairman of its Ethical Practices Committee.

In advance of the letter's actual submission, it was impossible to appraise accurately the reception it would receive. Nevertheless, the indications last night were that a majority of the council would favor shelving action against Hutcheson if he gave assurance that no funds had been misused.

New Bitterness.
The federation's desire to avoid open warfare with the Carpenters is heightened by a new upsurge of bitterness between craft and industrial unions—this time in Birmingham, Ala.

The building trades unions in that city have complained that members of the United Steelworkers of America chased them off a construction project at a United States Steel Corp. mill.

The conflict resulted in a one-day strike by the steel union, followed by a decision by the company to keep the building tradesmen off the project.

INDIRA GANDHI TAKES OFFICE

NEW DELHI, Feb. 9 (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru's daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, assumed office yesterday—her forty-second birthday—as president of the governing Congress party in a formal ceremony at the party office.

Nehru, seated on the floor cross-legged among the audience, was visibly moved as his daughter took over the office, which he and his father before him had held.

MALAY PRIME MINISTER QUILTS TO LEAD CAMPAIGN

KUALA LUMPUR, Feb. 9 (AP)—Prime Minister Rahman announced his resignation today to lead his party's campaign in the Federation of Malaya's first election of a Parliament since independence.

Rahman became the head of Malaya's first elected government in 1955, when it was still a British protectorate, and he continued in office after the southeast Asian country gained independence 18 months ago. Elections are scheduled to be held sometime this year.

Rahman's move was not expected to have any marked effect on the Malayan government's position as a loyal member of the British Commonwealth working closely with the West. The Deputy Prime Minister, Abdul Razak bin Hussein, is becoming Prime Minister.

on long distance... the secret is station-to-station*

The smart word is out. People everywhere are learning station-to-station Long Distance calls cost about 1/3 less than person-to-person service. It's like getting one call free for every two you pay for.

Here's proof: Three-minute night rate for a person-to-person call from St. Louis to Dallas is $1.60. It's $1.05 when you call station-to-station. You save 55 cents.

For big savings call station-to-station and talk longer for less.

Common cents makes them the best!

These wheels roll under Illinois Central freight cars.

We have made them look like pennies because they move more for a cent than any other form of transportation. Without them, you would pay more for almost everything you buy.

Every year we make these wheels do better. We make them roll faster; we make them more dependable; we make them work harder.

Why do we do it? Because we believe this railroad must earn its way by doing a better job each year for those it serves... by never being content with the best... by always making the best better!

Suggestions for Meatless Meals to Serve During Lenten Season

Tuna Spaghetti Cheese Broil

Spaghetti topped with broccoli, tuna and a creamy cheese sauce, sprinkled with Parmesan cheese and broiled to a turn, is a dish worth repeating frequently during the Lenten season.

By DOROTHY BRAINERD
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

DOES THE THOUGHT of planning Lenten meals fill you with dismay? Come now, it's not as bad as that. True, it is a challenge—but not really a problem. The conscientious homemaker, as guardian of her family's spiritual and physical welfare, will welcome this opportunity to serve those she loves.

Just think of all the good foods around which Lenten menus may be planned. Eggs, vegetables, cheese of all kinds, seafood, rice, the whole family of pasta products are available to keep meals interesting from now until Easter.

In this section you will find many ideas for meatless meals: the Monday and Thursday food pages of this newspaper will bring you others during the weeks ahead. So take heart, with a little careful planning your Lenten menus may be so successful that you will want to keep them on file to use throughout the year.

Fish is the first thing that comes to mind when one thinks of Lenten meals. A fish entree may be as simple as fish sticks served with a flavorful sauce, or as elegant as Seafood Newburg, taken from your home freezer.

Fish Sticks

With Bechamel Sauce. Prepare fish sticks according to the directions on the package.

Bechamel Sauce.

Four tablespoons butter or margarine.
Three tablespoons flour.
One-half cup fish broth. (Note see below.)
One cup milk.
Salt, pepper.
Nutmeg.

Melt the butter, add the flour and cook until slightly colored. Add the fish broth and stir until smooth. Gradually

Sauces Add Interest to Fish Sticks

Fish sticks are a natural for Lenten menus because they are convenient and economical. Experiment with various sauces to serve with them; suggestions for 10 variations of a basic sauce are given on this page.

Freeze Your Own Seafood Newburg

Seafood Newburg can be made at home and frozen for use during the Lenten season. Canned or cooked seafoods are added to an expertly seasoned rich egg and milk sauce. Recipe for the dish, including directions for freezing in individual containers, is given in the accompanying story.

available, substitute half cream and half milk for the one and one-half cups of fish broth and milk.

Sauce Variations.

Tomato Sauce: Add three tablespoons of tomato puree.

Tomato-Curry Sauce: To the tomato sauce add one to one and one-half teaspoons of curry powder.

Anchovy Sauce: Add two or more tablespoons of anchovy paste, one tablespoon butter or margarine and the juice of half a lemon.

Cheese Sauce: Add one cup of grated Cheddar or Gruyere cheese, a few grains of cayenne and one-half teaspoon of dry mustard.

Egg Sauce: Add three hard-cooked eggs, thinly sliced.

Parsley Sauce: Add one-third cup of finely chopped parsley. Flavor if desired with one tablespoon of onion juice.

Piquant Sauce: Add one tablespoon of finely chopped onion, one finely chopped hard-cooked egg, one finely chopped dill pickle and one tablespoon of finely chopped parsley.

Mustard Sauce: Add one tablespoon of French mustard and one teaspoon or more of dry mustard.

White Wine Sauce: Stir in one-half cup of white wine and two egg yolks. Heat through, stirring constantly, but do not let the sauce boil.

Dill Sauce: Add one teaspoon of chopped fresh dill.

Suggested Menu: Fish sticks, broiled tomatoes, whipped potatoes, carrot and pineapple salad, corn bread, brown Betty, coffee, tea or milk.

A rich seafood Newburg served piping hot on toast points is a real treat. You can economize as well as save precious time by making a batch and freezing it. Liquid red pepper seasoning is used to add zest; its spark will remain during freezing and still work its magic when the Newburg is heated for serving.

Seafood Newburg.

Four tablespoons butter or margarine.

One-half cup all-purpose flour.

Six cups homogenized milk. One and one-half teaspoons salt.

One-half teaspoon monosodium glutamate.

One-half teaspoon paprika.

Four egg yolks.

One-half teaspoon tabasco.

Four cups canned or cooked seafood (shelled shrimp, lobster, crabmeat or tuna, cut in pieces).

Melt butter; add flour and stir to a paste. Gradually add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add salt, monosodium glutamate and paprika. Quickly stir a small amount of the hot mixture into slightly beaten egg yolks; return to remaining sauce and cook three minutes longer. Remove from heat; stir in tabasco. Beat thoroughly with a rotary beater.

Stir in seafood. Cool quickly. Spoon into individual aluminum foilware containers leaving one-half inch headroom.

Seal tightly with aluminum foil. Freeze. To serve, thaw slightly to release from sides of container. Place in top of double boiler over boiling water to heat. If desired, just before serving stir in one tablespoon sherry. Serve on toast points.

Yield: eight servings.

Note: Do not keep in freezer longer than one month.

Suggested Menu: Tomato juice; cheese wafers, Seafood Newburg on toast points; buttered peas; citrus fruit cup with molasses chocolate cookies; coffee or tea.

Hot Sandwich Made With Cottage Cheese

Versatile cottage cheese can be used in countless ways morning, noon and night to add protein to meatless meals. Here it is combined with asparagus spears and seasonings to make a protein-packed hot sandwich called Asparagus Au Gratin Broil.

One-eighth teaspoon pepper. One-eighth teaspoon paprika. Two cups milk.

Six hard-cooked eggs, diced or quartered.

Four noodle nests.

Melt butter or margarine over low heat. Add flour and seasonings and blend well. Add milk all at once and cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until uniformly thickened. Add eggs to sauce, setting aside three yolks. Heat thoroughly.

Serve in the heated noodle nests. Garnish with remaining yolks rubbed through a sieve. Serve very hot.

Variations: Add one teaspoon worcestershire sauce or prepared mustard; or one tablespoon or more catsup, pimiento, chopped chives or parsley; or one cup grated Cheddar or Swiss cheese or cooked chopped fish or vegetable.

Suggested Menu: Eggs Goldenrod; stewed tomatoes; buttered asparagus; mixed green salad; Brownies a la mode.

fancy enough for company dinners.

Tuna Spaghetti.
Cheese Broil.

Two tablespoons salt.
Four to six quarts boiling water.

One pound spaghetti.
Cheese Sauce (recipe below).
Two six and one-half ounce cans chunk-style tuna, drained.

One cup sliced mushrooms.
One-half cup sliced pimiento-stuffed green olives.

Six to eight fresh or frozen broccoli spears, cooked.
One medium-sized tomato, cut in wedges.

One-fourth cup grated Parmesan cheese.
Add two tablespoons salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add spaghetti so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally until tender. Drain in colander.

Combine cheese sauce, tuna, mushrooms and olives; mix well. Arrange spaghetti, broccoli and tomato wedges in buttered shallow three-quart baking dish. Top with cheese sauce-tuna mixture. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Broil five to seven inches from source of heat 10 to 12 minutes, or until lightly browned.

Three-Minute Cheese Sauce:

One and two-thirds cups (large can) undiluted evaporated milk.

One-half teaspoon salt.

One and one-half teaspoons dry mustard.

One tablespoon steak sauce.

Two cups (about eight ounces) grated process-type American cheese.

Simmer evaporated milk, salt, mustard and steak sauce in saucepan over low heat to just below boiling (about two minutes). Add cheese; stir over low heat until cheese melts (about one minute longer).

Suggested Menu: Tuna Spaghetti Cheese Broil; tossed green salad; garlic French bread; coffee, tea or milk; ice cream with strawberry sauce.

Cottage cheese is one Lenten food upon which the home-maker can depend morning, noon and night. The protein content of cottage cheese is about the same, ounce for ounce, as that in lean beef; so half a cup of cottage cheese can substitute for a normal serving of lean meat in protein content.

For breakfast, add cottage cheese to scrambled eggs (just long enough before they are done to warm the cheese), or spread pancakes with cottage cheese, roll them up and top with sour cream.

Add cottage cheese to the usual filling for baked stuffed potatoes; try a cottage cheese fondue, or enhance a vegetable casserole by adding cottage cheese.

This Asparagus Au Gratin Broil is a sandwich nutritious enough to serve as the main dish for a luncheon or supper. It consists of a toasted and buttered slice of rye bread (Jewish rye is especially good). The toast is spread with a chili sauce-mustard base, then a cottage cheese layer. Asparagus spears top this, then butter-browned cracker crumbs and finally, a generous sprinkling of shredded cheddar cheese. The sandwich is placed under the broiler just long enough to melt the cheese, and is then served sizzling hot.

Friday supper or Saturday lunch are excellent times to treat the family to this protein-packed specialty. It also is a fine dish for a luncheon, served with suggested menu below.

Asparagus Au Gratin Broil.

Two tablespoons chili sauce.

One tablespoon prepared mustard.

Six slices rye toast, buttered.

Two cups cottage cheese, large curd.

One package frozen asparagus spears, cooked.

One-half cup crushed saltine crackers.

Three tablespoons butter or margarine, melted.

Three-fourths cup shredded Cheddar cheese.

Mix together chili sauce and mustard; spread on buttered toast. On each slice of bread spoon one-third cup of cottage cheese and top with four asparagus spears. Brown cracker crumbs in the melted butter and sprinkle four teaspoons over each sandwich. Finally, top each with one and one-half tablespoons of Cheddar cheese and place under the broiler just until cheese melts.

Suggested Luncheon Menu:

Frosted Fruit Shrub (chilled orange juice with a scoop of raspberry sherbet); Asparagus Au Gratin Broil; Shoestring Potatoes; Pickles, Olives, Carrot Curls; Hot Chocolate Milk with Cinnamon Stick Swirlers.

Butter Cookies with Help Yourself Fresh Fruit Bowl (Apples, Oranges, Pears, Bananas).

Savory Casserole

This pineapple-frank casserole is ideal to serve with baked beans. Cut one pound of frankfurters into one-inch lengths and combine with one cup of pineapple chunks or tidbits.

Mix one-half cup of sirup from pineapple with two tablespoons brown sugar and two teaspoons prepared mustard. Pour over franks and pineapple and bake until heated through—about 20 minutes in 350 degree oven.

Cream shortening and gradually stir in the sugar. Add beaten egg, fresh lemon juice and the peel.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together; gradually stir into the creamed mixture. Chill.

Shape into balls size of walnuts; mix three tablespoons sugar and cinnamon and roll cookies in mixture. Place on oiled baking sheet and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 12 to 15 minutes.

Yield: Four dozen cookies.

Fresh Grapefruit and Crab Salad

Here is a salad with a refreshing fresh flavor, thanks to the juicy grapefruit which is now so plentiful in St. Louis markets. It is a perfect complement to the crab meat.

Fresh Grapefruit and Crab Salad.

Two cups cold cooked crab meat.

One cup diced celery.

One teaspoon salt.

One-eighth teaspoon ground black pepper.

One-third cup mayonnaise.

One and one-half cups diced fresh grapefruit sections, drained.

Head lettuce.

Fresh grapefruit sections for garnish.

Combine first five ingredients. Add grapefruit sections and toss lightly. Serve on bed of lettuce. Garnish with fresh grapefruit sections.

Yield: six servings.

Potato Chowder

In large saucepan, cook three slices bacon. When crisp, remove from pan. Drain off all but one and one-half tablespoons bacon drippings. Add one-fourth cup chopped onion and one-fourth cup chopped green pepper; cook until just tender.

Add two cans (10 1/4 ounces each) frozen condensed cream of potato soup, two soup cans milk, one cup cream-style corn, dash whole thyme, dash pepper and few drops tabasco. Heat until soup thaws. Stir now and then. Serve garnished with bacon.

Banana Walnut Cornsticks

Only three ingredients are necessary to make these Banana Walnut Cornsticks, and scarcely more than three minutes are required to mix them. Any extras may be wrapped in foil, then toasted the next day. For variety, substitute pecans for the walnuts listed in the recipe.

Banana Walnut Cornsticks.
One-half cup chopped walnuts.

One package corn muffin mix.
One-half cup strained bananas (from the baby foods shelf).
Add walnuts to muffin mix and mix well. Follow regular picky directions for adding eggs and liquid to mix, using strained bananas as part of the liquid.
Bake in well-greased cornstick or muffin pans as directed.
Yield: about 12 cornsticks.

Scampi With Spaghetti

A favorite shrimp dish, Scampi, is served with spaghetti, tossed green salad, Italian bread and spumoni in this Lenten meal.

Bake Frozen Vegetables With Cheese

A frozen vegetable that is baked to that perfect "tender-crisp" stage in combination with cheese provides a nutritious Lenten entree. The vegetable cooks in the casserole; it is not cooked and drained before baking. Thus it maintains its bright color and delicate flavor while it blends with the cheese.

This frozen Asparagus Cheese Fondue combines the nutritive values of dairy foods with vitamins A, C and B.

Frozen Asparagus Cheese Fondue.
One package frozen asparagus cuts and tips, defrosted. Three slices toast, cut in cubes.
One-half cup grated sharp cheese.

One egg, slightly beaten.
One cup milk.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon pepper.
One teaspoon minced onion.
One tablespoon melted butter or margarine.
Defrost asparagus by allowing to stand in main part of refrigerator away from freezing element about two hours.

Prepare greased one-quart casserole. Arrange alternate layers of toast cubes, asparagus and grated cheese in casserole, reserving some toast cubes and cheese for the top.

Combine egg, milk, salt, pepper and onion. Pour over casserole ingredients. Sprinkle with melted butter or margarine. Do not cover. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 45 minutes, or until top is bubbly and lightly browned. Yield: Four servings. This recipe may be doubled and baked at the same temperature and time to serve eight persons.

Frozen brussels sprouts are combined with Parmesan cheese in this casserole. Frozen Brussels Sprouts Baked in Parmesan Cream Sauce. One package frozen brussels sprouts.
Three tablespoons butter or margarine.
Three tablespoons flour.
One cup milk.
One-third cup grated Parmesan cheese.
One teaspoon lemon juice.
One-half teaspoon worcestershire sauce.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Pepper to taste.

The brussels sprouts do not need to be defrosted. Turn them into greased one-quart casserole and let stand while making sauce.
Melt butter or margarine in saucepan and stir in the flour. Add the milk and cook while stirring until thickened. Melt cheese into hot sauce, then add lemon juice and remaining seasonings. Pour sauce over frozen brussels sprouts. Cover and bake 45 minutes in moderate oven at 350 degrees. Yield: Four servings.

Tuna-Noodle Bake for Lent
Tuna and noodles can be combined in a great variety of ways to make hearty supper dishes.

This version is a savory blend of mayonnaise, instant minced onion, tomato sauce, tuna and noodles baked briefly under a topping of buttered bread crumbs.

Serve with crisp cole slaw or a Waldorf salad.

Tuna-Noodle Bake.
Two cups noodles.
One eight-ounce can tomato sauce.
One-fourth cup mayonnaise.
One tablespoon instant minced onion or one-four cup finely chopped raw onion.
One six and one-half or seven ounce can tuna.
One-fourth cup buttered dry bread crumbs.

Cook noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Blend tomato sauce, mayonnaise and instant minced onion add noodles and coarsely flaked tuna and mix lightly.

Turn into one-quart baking dish and top with crumbs. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees) about 20 minutes, until thoroughly heated and lightly browned on top.

Yield: four to five servings.

Breakfast Tray
Cold weather brings on sniffles and colds. For Mother this often means providing breakfast in bed. Light, nourishing and warming to the spirit is a cup of hot consomme.

To round out the menu, try toast, fresh or stewed fruit, marmalade and a beverage.

The following menu is an example of the way in which "best buys" may be used in Lenten meals, thus taking advantage of the opportunity to save money by means of careful marketing.

MENU OF THE WEEK

Scampi with Spaghetti*

Tossed Green Salad

Italian Whole Wheat Bread

Spumoni or Favorite Ice Cream

Coffee or Milk

Scampi with Spaghetti*

One pound shrimp, fresh or frozen.

One eight-ounce package spaghetti.

Two cloves garlic.

One-half teaspoon salt.

One-half teaspoon oregano.

Pinch of basil (optional).

One-fourth cup (one-half stick) butter or margarine.

Three tablespoons olive oil (or other salad oil).

One-half cup coarsely chopped parsley.

Grated Parmesan cheese.

Freshly ground pepper.

Remove shells from shrimp. Butterfly the shrimp by cutting deeply along the backs of shrimp but not cutting all the way through. Remove or wash away the dark vein. Dry thoroughly.

Boil water and cook spaghetti following directions on the package. Drain. Meanwhile, mince garlic. Crush and blend with salt, oregano and basil.

Heat butter or margarine, olive oil, and garlic mixture in a frying pan. When very hot, add shrimp and cook, stirring constantly, until shrimp are firm and pink, about three minutes. Add parsley and toss well. Serve shrimp and sauce in pan on spaghetti; sprinkle with freshly ground pepper and Parmesan cheese.

Yield: Two to three servings.

TAVERN ROBBED OF $387

The Murphy tavern at 1330 North Eleventh street, East St. Louis, was entered early yesterday by burglars who took $387 from a metal box and an undetermined amount from a juke box and two pinball machines, police reported.

Entry was made through a coal chute at the north side of the building. The tavern is owned and operated by Ben A. Bailey of 37 Jonathan Lee drive, near Belleville.

Alton H. Keller Dies.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Alton H. Keller, chief of the exchange and gift division of the Library of Congress, died yesterday at George Washington University Hospital after a long illness. He was 46 years old. He was born in Lexington, Mo. He had been with the Library of Congress since 1933.

PRIEST SENTENCED BY POLISH COURT

WARSAW, Feb. 9 (AP)—A Polish court sentenced the Rev. Marian Pirozynski to two years in jail today on charges of violating censorship, bribing officials and black market dealings.

Of his 14 co-defendants, two were sentenced to jail terms and eight received suspended sentences. Three were acquitted and the case against one was dropped.

Court sources said the eight months the Roman Catholic priest spent in prison before trial will be deducted from his sentence and that he probably will receive a year off for good behavior. This would mean he would be out of jail in June.

Father Pirozynski, editor of the Roman Catholic semi-monthly Homo Dei (Man of God), told the court he would continue his efforts to propagate the word of God by every possible means "when I get out of jail."

The priest, a tall, white-haired man of 60, was the most prominent Catholic personality to be prosecuted in Communist Poland since the conclusion of a church-state agreement in December 1956. Besides the jail term, he was fined 4000 zlotys ($40 at the free market rate).

Father Pirozynski was convicted of four of the seven counts in the indictment. These were that he had published periodicals without authorization from the Office of Censorship, that he had illegal currency dealings, that he had bribed public officials to get paper for his publications and incited public officials to illegal acts with the same aim in mind.

The biggest sentence, 2½ years, went to Edward Zabrowski, director of a Warsaw printing plant who allegedly supplied paper illegally to the priest.

EAST ST. LOUISAN REPORTS THEFT OF WALLET, $460
Charles W. Gore, a storekeeper, 2906 Ohio avenue, East St. Louis, was robbed of his wallet containing $460 early today by two men who seized him as he stood beside his parked automobile in front of 6 South Fifteenth street, East St. Louis, police reported.

Another East St. Louisan, Paul Luster, 2011 North Thirtieth street, said he was robbed of $60 early yesterday when his automobile was forced to the curb at Exchange avenue and Second street, East St. Louis.

Luster, a tavern owner, said he was driving with a man he had met in a bar in Brooklyn, north of East St. Louis. Another man caused him to halt his machine and said he was a police officer, Luster reported. The second man displayed a knife and the passenger took Luster's money.

SALTONSTALL TO RUN AGAIN
WORCESTER, Mass., Feb. 9 (UPI)—Senator Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, has announced he will seek a fourth term next year. Saltonstall made the announcement late yesterday before addressing a Lincoln day dinner given by the Worcester County Republican Club.

There had been considerable speculation in Massachusetts political circles that Saltonstall would retire in 1960, after serving 22 years as governor and senator. He is 66 years old.

SURVEY AGENCY OPPOSES BOOST IN SCHOOL AID

By the Post-Dispatch Jefferson City Correspondent.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 9.—The Missouri Public Expenditures Survey, a privately supported agency, issued a report today saying "This is not a logical time for massive expansion of the state's foundation public school program."

Bills pending before the legislature would increase the state's contribution to the schools from $72,595,000 this fiscal year to $89,000,000 for the 1959-1960 fiscal school year, Edward Staples, director of the survey, estimated. The higher cost would be met by an increase of one half cent in the present 2-cent sales tax.

"State school aid costs which must be met each year under the state foundation plan already are up $26,000,000 from the level of the program when it was started four years ago," Staples said. When the 1959-1960 fiscal year begins on July 1 the general revenue fund, which heretofore has met the increased requirements of the foundation fund, "will fall $16,000,000 short of the requirements," Staples added.

BENSON TO STAY IN CABINET POST UNTIL END OF TERM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said yesterday he plans to continue in his Cabinet post for the remaining two years of President Eisenhower's term.

Benson said he is confident his controversial farm programs were not responsible for Democratic gains in last November's elections.

"I'm not in the habit of running away from a fight—a tough job," Benson told Senator Kenneth B. Keating (Rep.), New York, in a television interview filmed for New York stations.

TAXES ACCOMPANY EXPENDITURES

By J. A. Livingston

General Motors Corp. has rushed to the aid of the State of Michigan with an advance payment on this year's taxes. The state, bludgeoned by deficits, had run out of money.

In New York, Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller seeks a record rise of $277,000,000 in taxes to finance a $2,041,000,000 budget for the 1959-60 fiscal year. This is the first two-billion budget in New York history. Rockefeller says he's framing the two letters he got endorsing his plan.

In Pennsylvania, Governor David Lawrence is expected to call for higher levies to meet rising expenses and an accumulated deficit. In Minnesota, Governor Orville L. Freeman began his third term by asking for an increase in personal income taxes, higher levies on cigarettes, liquor, and tobacco, the elimination of corporate deductibility of federal income taxes, and a higher tax on iron ore. In New York City, there's talk of a sales tax.

President Sounds Theme Song. So it goes around the United States. State and local governments everywhere seek new facets of revenue—payrolls, excises, business gross receipts, soft drinks, tobacco, gasoline, ad infinitum. If you want to become a civic hero, find a substantial source of painless revenue.

The problem is endemic to progress. We aspire to better roads, hospitals, incinerator systems. We have to pay higher salaries to teachers, firemen, policemen, garbage collectors, etc. Governors and mayors, whether Republican or Democratic, are at one with President Eisenhower, who warned Congress: If you raise expenditures, raise also taxes.

During the 1930s and up to the end of the war, expenses of all state and local governments usually ranged between seven and nine billion dollars annually. The high was $9,550,000,000 in 1939. Receipts, except during the Great Depression (when some states and cities got into financial trouble), usually produced a surplus. In 1937, for example, revenues exceeded expenses by $7,000,000; in 1945, by $2,600,000,000.

Postwar Turnaround. But immediately after the war, when steel, lumber, and other materials became available, state and local governments began improving roads, schools, etc. Outlays reached eleven billion dollars in 1946, two years later $17,600,000,000, and in 1952 twenty-five billion dollars. Today, they exceed

U.S. TREASURY ISSUES DRIFT LOWER QUIETLY

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—United States Government and corporate bonds drifted lower in slow transactions late today.

Over-the-counter dealers quoted the Treasury's intermediate and long range bond off 2-32 to 4-32. Trading slowed to a crawl after the noon hour. Investment quality issues firmed among the corporates but industrials and utilities continued to decline. Rails were mixed while foreign bonds advanced fractions. Greek dollar bonds, ahead at the opening, turned soft late in the day. Greek 6s, up 1/2 at 32 1/2 earlier, slipped to 30 3/4, off 1/4 from last night's close.

EMERSON ELECTRIC QUARTER SALES, EARNINGS RECORDS

Emerson Electric Mfg. Co. reported net earnings for the first quarter of its fiscal year ended Dec. 31 of $834,894, equivalent to $1.16 a common share, compared with $678,000 or 85 cents a share for the like period last year. Net sales were $19,511,811, against $13,881,247. Both sales and earnings were the highest first quarter results for the company in any peace time year, it was said. Sales increases were in all divisions and the improvement in earnings were largely due to the increased volume, the company stated.

BANK OFFICERS NAMED

Walter J. Frintz, cashier of Northland Bank, was named vice president and cashier. Earl Horstman was made assistant vice president in charge of the installment loan department and Robert K. Smith was elected assistant cashier in charge of operations. The bank reported resources of $6,549,284 at the end of the year, compared with $4,404,358 at the end of 1957.

Odd-Lot Transactions.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange reported today these odd-lot transactions by principal dealers for Feb. 6. Purchases of 332,063 shares; sales of 283,359 shares including 2522 shares sold short.

U. S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT has become the nation's fastest growing news magazine. Why? What's so different about it?

Perhaps it's because the editors not only report everything you expect to find in a news magazine, but they go further and seek to answer the questions raised in your mind: "What does the news mean to me? My family? What caused it? Where is it leading?"

Here is a new dimension of news reporting, combining breadth of coverage with unusual depth of exploration and understanding. Here are just a few of the subjects on which readers have been briefed in recent weeks:

1. Where Business Goes from Here
2. What Experts Say About Investing in Today's Market
3. What the New Congress Will Do to You and for You
4. Russia's Sun Shot: Why Scientists Doubt Red Claims
5. Encouraging News for Heart Patients
6. What Krenlin Hopes to Gain from Mikoyan's Visit
7. Cuba: The Trouble That Still Lies Ahead

43. National Sales Tax Coming?

Every issue of U. S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT brings you news like this -- news you can use, news you didn't know and can't get anywhere else. Interviews with famous news-makers in the fields of politics, government, foreign affairs, labor, science, industry, health. Not one, but five newsletters (which many subscribers consider to be alone worth more than the magazine's cost). Special Reports based on weeks or months of study by experts. Historic speeches, press conferences, and other important documents of our time printed in full. Many picture-charts and other visual techniques for summarizing valuable facts quickly.

You get nearly twice as many pages of news as in other news magazines. And it's all "meat" -- all important, essential information that is of usable value to anyone occupying your position in life.

Why not try it? This special "get acquainted" offer will enable you to discover how much this new kind of magazine can help you in your daily business and personal life. You'll realize why each weekly issue is looked forward to by executives, legislators, merchants, educators, lawyers, and other key decision-makers.

And your Trial Subscription won't cost you a penny unless it convinces you that this is more than a news magazine -- that it's really a new kind of information service you can hardly afford to be without.

SEND NO MONEY: Just Mail Coupon -- We'll Bill You Later for Trial Subscription Price of $2.67

Simply mail the coupon. It will bring you the next 26 weekly issues of U. S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT, for the Trial Subscription price of only $2.67 (a substantial saving). And your money will be cheerfully refunded at any time during your Trial Subscription if the magazine does not live up to your highest expectations.

Thus you have nothing to lose by mailing the coupon -- and we sincerely believe you have a great deal to gain. But do mail the Trial Subscription coupon NOW -- every issue you miss may be costing you more than you realize.

☐ FOUR ADDITIONAL ISSUES AT NO EXTRA CHARGE -- Check here if you are enclosing your check for $2.67 WITH this coupon. This will save us considerable clerical and bookkeeping expense and will pass this saving on to you by sending you 4 additional issues, making it 30 issues instead of 26. Of course, the same money-back privilege mentioned above will apply.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—Steel production last week moved to the highest level in nearly 22 months and is scheduled to increase further this week, the American Iron and Steel Institute said.

Production last week totaled 2,288,000 tons as mills operated at 80.8 per cent of capacity. This was the top weekly operating rate since 1933.

2,513,000 tons were produced in the week starting April 15, 1937.

The operating rate this week is scheduled at 83.5 per cent of capacity, which would produce 2,363,000 tons. A month ago output amounted to 2,111,000 tons and a year ago to 1,445,000 tons.

IT'S SPRING-FRESH...AND READY TO SERVE!

SPRING GARDEN SALAD

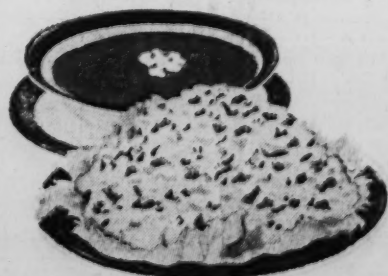

Sealtest
COTTAGE CHEESE

WHAT a wonderful salad Sealtest has made for you . . . a complete SPRING GARDEN COTTAGE CHEESE SALAD, tempting and tasty and fresh as Spring itself. Pure creamy-smooth Sealtest Cottage Cheese—with a delicious variety of tantalizing Spring Garden vegetables added...everything you'd put in your own favorite Spring Cottage Cheese Salad—except the work. It's all ready for you, now, at your store or delivered to your door.

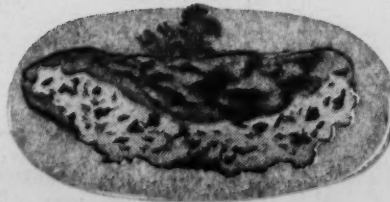

GREAT ALONE! AND A GREAT NEW TOUCH TO OLD LENTEN STANDBYS

SOUPER IDEA

Prepare your favorite tomato soup the usual way, but before you serve, mix in vigorously a quarter cup of Sealtest Spring Garden Salad Cottage Cheese for each cup of soup and heat only a minute more. Adds a zip and tang that turns even bland soups into real taste treats! Try it with plain bouillons, too.

SPRING GARDEN OMELET

Lenten favorite with a new lift! Beat two eggs, with fork or whisk, adding salt, pepper and 3 tablespoons of Sealtest Milk or Cream. Fry omelet over low heat. Turn, then spread a quarter cup of Sealtest Spring Garden Salad over half. Fold omelet quickly and serve.

Art Treasure From Ancient Shrine

Isolated monastery at left, within the shadow of Mount Sinai in Egypt, shelters mass of Byzantine art treasures which were studied in detail for the first time by an international research team last summer. Among treasures uncovered in the 1400-year-old shrine are the icons at right, including a representation of St. Peter in which he is depicted as a youthful figure holding the keys to heaven. Above him (from left) are an unidentified saint, Christ and Mary.

Overseas Replacement

Booster rocket leaves seething trail as Mace missile spurts from launcher in one of the tests which qualified it for service overseas. The Mace, which can carry a nuclear warhead and has a range of about 650 miles, is a surface-to-surface weapon which does its own map reading and travels near the speed of sound. It will go to United States troops in West Germany in the spring, replacing the Matador missile.

Art Buchwald Letters Columnist Never Answered

PARIS, Feb. 9.
DEAR SIR: I am a senior at Sarah Lawrence College and I was wondering if you would be able to tell me what the job opportunities are in Paris at the moment. I was editor of my high school paper and am now writing a column for my college newspaper. I have also done dramatics in college and appeared in school productions of "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "Dear Ruth" and three one-act plays by Tennessee Williams.

ART BUCHWALD

I would like to work on the European Edition of the Herald Tribune as a reporter, but would be willing to start as a secretary or a researcher. I don't speak any French but I've studied Spanish. I understand French is a lot like Spanish. Could you please advise me how I could get a job and how much it would pay. I am inclosing a list of people for references.

Sincerely yours, S.L.

Dear Mr. Buchwald:

THE ANDORRA-AMERICAN SOCIETY would like to have you as their guest speaker for lunch on Feb. 25. We will provide transportation and hotel accommodations.

We don't have a budget for speakers, but I understand you don't charge for speaking. All five members of the Andorra-American Society are ardent readers of the Herald Tribune and we're dying to meet you. If Feb. 25 is not acceptable to you, would you please give us a date in March. Sincerely, L.Z., Program Chairman.

Dear Buck:

I GUESS YOU'LL BE SURPRISED hearing from me after all these years, but I just thought I'd sit down and write old Buck a letter. I was in your algebra class at the annex of Jamaica high school, if you remember. Mr. Schmidt was the teacher and, boy, did we have a ball in those days.

I know we didn't hit it off too well, mostly because you were a pretty snotty kid and I had to give you a couple of good beatings before you saw the light, but I say let bygones be bygones (gee, did your nose bleed easily) and your childhood friends are the ones you remember the most.

To get to the point of this letter, a shoe buyer from Gimbel's is coming to Paris next month (I'm in the shoe business now), and I told him we grew up together, so he asked me to write you a letter telling you he was coming. I would appreciate it if you would see him and take him and his wife out a couple of nights on your swindle sheet (ha, ha). Perhaps your wife could take his wife shopping. This account means a lot to me, Buck, and I wouldn't ask you to do this except for the fact we were together at good old Jamaica high.

If your wife needs any shoes wholesale let me know. I don't read your column but I have some friends who do. Your pal, ZIGGY.

Dear Mr. Buchwald:

WHEN YOU MOVED OUT of my apartment two years ago and I took inventory I assumed that everything was in order. I have now discovered that the base of the lamp in the living room is broken and the present tenants say it was broken when they moved in. I think in all honesty you should have told me about it.

I would appreciate it if you sent me your check for 12,450 francs. Sincerely yours, MADAME H.

Dear Sir:

I AM WRITING a term paper on Napoleon and wood appreciate it if you would send me all the information you have on the subject. Could you also send me stamps of Napoleon as part of the paper is to dramatize this great man and what he did for France. I must have this term paper in by next Friday so I would appreciate your response as quickly as possible.

Yours truly, GEOFFREY JONES, Farmington Jr. High School.

Dear Mr. Buchwald:

COULD YOU PLEASE put me in contact with Mr. Paul Getty as I have a surefire system of beating the roulette wheel.

If you can make this contact for me, and Mr. Getty is willing to finance me, I will give you 10 per cent of my winnings. I assure you that you will be able to become a rich man. I need $1000 for the initial investment, but my system cannot lose. Please keep this in confidence as I don't want to be banned from the casinos.

Sincerely yours, C.K.

Youth Parade—Let's Have a Party

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

1. GIVE US some clues on party do—that's the topic most requested by teen-agers in Youth Parade mail. So-o-o up comes the rug, out come the records and on come the guests. JACKLYN O'DONNELL and TOMMY SANDS enjoy a spinning whirl courtesy of host DWAYNE HICKMAN, left. At right is MYRNA FAHEY. Party props include plenty of dance records and balloons containing fortunes and charade stunts.

2. RECORD 'N' RAID (refrigerator, that is) party theme was duplicated in centerpiece, designed by Jack Myers. As JACKLYN O'DONNELL discovered, buns were wrapped around cattails to resemble hot dogs, while toy instruments and records carried out the music motif.

3. A SURE-FIRE PARTY SPARKLER is an old-fashioned taffy pull with DWAYNE and TOMMY turning it into a tug of war, urged on by JACKLYN and MYRNA. The guests "fingerpinted" themselves in powdered sugar so chewy confection wouldn't stick to their hands when str-e-tch-ing started. Such participation stunts bring even the shyest partygoer into the fun spotlight. Party climaxed with group good naturedly forming a "furniture lift" and returning chairs and tables to original positions. Songs, gags, and tests of weight lifting prowess kept K.P. light-hearted fun.

New First Lady of France

By Paul Ghali

PARIS, Feb. 9.
IF THE WORLD fails to know and understand France's new president it is certainly not from lack of publicity.

It's a different story with France's new first lady.

Mme. Yvonne Vendroux de Gaulle shies from publicity today just as she has in the 38 years of her life with the general. Quiet, unassuming, without a vestige of those traits so often associated with the typical Frenchwoman—love of glamour, dress and admiration—she likes to stay in the shadow of her majestic husband.

Girlhood friends like to tell the story of the young Yvonne who had two dreams: To possess two cotton dresses, one to wear while the other was at the laundry; to marry anybody but a soldier.

Born of comparatively wealthy parents—she comes of a family of rich biscuit manufacturers of Calais in the extreme north of France—Yvonne always had plenty of dresses whether she wanted them or not.

As for marrying a soldier and having to move from one garrison to another, fate destined her to move more often than any other French woman of her rank.

When she was 21 a friend of her mother's introduced her to a brilliant young officer named Capt. Charles de Gaulle. It was love at first sight. Three months later they were married. And since then Yvonne has lived the life of her husband, following his political ascension as modestly and courageously as she followed his difficult steps during wartime.

She is the perfect mate for the general, perhaps one of the very few persons able to stand his taciturnity, his uneasy temper, his perpetual brooding over people and events.

She is his guardian angel as well as his shadow. He does not consult her about politics but he never takes a decision on family affairs without getting her intelligent and practical opinion.

The closest to politics Yvonne has ever come or wanted to come was listening to her husband read passages of his memoirs on long evenings at their country home.

Mme. De Gaulle dislikes everything—including political duties—that fatigues her husband or destroys the smooth rhythm of his daily life.

When Dr. Konrad Adenauer visited the De Gaullies at their country place at Colombey last fall for two days De Gaulle insisted that everything be done to give the German chancellor the best possible impression on his first trip to postwar France.

Mme. De Gaulle spent hours of preparation with her maids and her faithful cook, Philomene. And when the chancellor arrived she was there at the general's side to greet him, not a trace of fatigue on her regular-featured quiet face.

But Mme. De Gaulle has a grievance against the chancellor. She had to miss entertaining her grandchildren that weekend. They used to visit Colombey every Saturday. The De Gaullies have two children, Elizabeth and Philip. Philip is married to Mlle. De Montalembert and Elizabeth to Col. De Goissieu. They lost a third child, Ann, who died in 1948.

Yvonne de Gaulle did her own marketing every morning, winter and summer alike, until last June when she and the general moved to the Hotel Matignon in Paris. She started going to market during the hard London days.

Besides her household tasks she loves music, movies and knitting for the poor. She is very charitable. Most of her pin money went to helping the poorer families near their Colombey home.

Now that she will have a bigger charity purse the poor of Paris are certain to get a large share.

HERE ARE TWO bidding problems for you to consider. The suggested answers are presented below along with the defense of today's hand.

1. You are South and hold these cards:

♥ Q852
♦ AK7
♣ 104

North East South West
1♥ 2♠

What call do you make?

2. You are South and hold these cards:

♠ K1064
♥ A853
♦ Q862
♣ 103

West North East South
1♦ 1♠ 2♥ 3♦

What call do you make?

3. You are defending the East cards of today's four-spade hand and West opens the queen of clubs. Study only the North and East cards and the bidding, then plan your defense.

Neither Side Vulnerable.

South West North East
1♠ Pass 2♠ Pass
2♠ Pass 3♠ Pass
4♠ Pass Pass Pass Pass

ANSWERS TO QUIZ

1. South bids two hearts. Although he has fine trump support, his hand is not strong enough for a double raise. If North cannot rebid over South's free raise, there will probably be no game.

2. South makes a cue bid of four diamonds, telling North to pick his best suit. If South instead bids one of his four-card suits, North may raise him to game with only three trumps.

3. East defeats the four-spade contract by giving his partner a diamond ruff. He takes the club queen with the ace and sees that game can be saved only if West has a trump trick. It is unlikely that West will hold a heart trick in addition to a trick in trumps, but there is a chance that West may be able to ruff a diamond.

It is also unlikely that West holds a singleton diamond, for with a singleton and a high trump he would have led the singleton. But West should hold no more than two diamonds, since South showed at least three by raising. East therefore shifts to a low diamond at trick two. Now when West gets in with the ace of spades, he returns his last diamond and East takes the ace and gives his partner a diamond ruff for down one. South loses three aces and a ruff.

New Products for Home

By Lawrence Galton

Floor Covering: Made of foam rubber with a tread surface of tough patterned vinyl, a new type of floor covering should be especially useful for stairs, halls, entrances, other areas where durability and easy cleaning are important. Another possible use: As supplemental car floor and trunk covering.

Soft to the step, it's also said to be two to five times more wear resistant than many other coverings and also stain resistant. Since dirt does not penetrate the vinyl top side, it can be vacuumed, swept, wiped or washed clean.

Basement Dome: A Plexiglas "bubble canopy," similar to those used on military planes, has been developed as a protective cover for basement window wells. The transparent canopy lets full light through while keeping the window wells free from rain, snow, and leaves and paper that hold moisture and create stagnant odors. Easy to install yourself, it measures 44 inches wide, 22 inches deep, 11 inches high, is held in place by wire brackets. A plastic weather seal on back edge fits tightly against side of house. An air space under rim allows free ventilation of the well.

Varied Aids: For the car, a new strap holds the trunk lid when you want to carry oversized objects. It hooks quickly to any opening on the lid's underside, then to underside of the bumper. . . . For living room or den, a plastic-upholstered hassock, useful as TV bench or extra seat, holds more than 100 of your hi-fi records.

It has side door for access without disturbing anyone or anything on top, and partitions every four inches to hold records vertically and make them easy to put in and take out.

If you'd like further information on any of the above items, write Lawrence Galton in care of the Post-Dispatch, identifying them, giving date of appearance and inclosing stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Famous Fable

AILMENTS: Although his health was not robust, short story writer O. Henry paid no heed to his doctor, who urged him to be examined periodically.

Finally he was taken sick, and he did not have to be told that he was suffering from a variety of ills. After the physician had finished his examination, O. Henry turned to him and whispered urgently:

"Tell me, doctor, what's right with me?"

Revolutionary Fashion Idea: Women That Look Like Women

By Eddy Gilmore

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP).

EUROPE'S fashion masters have united on a revolutionary idea for 1959—they are making women look like women.

The bosom is just where Eve's bosom was—and almost as much of it showing.

The waist and the hips are where waists and hips are supposed to be.

Skirts are short enough to reveal women have legs.

Dresses are wide enough at the hem to allow women to walk.

First, it was the Italian designers who did it. Then came Paris. Now London rounds out the brilliant plan with its spring-summer fashion show just ended.

The luckiest women in the fashion world are those who bought no sacks. They can go right on wearing their old feminine frocks.

Even the old navy blue with white accessories is back in style.

No less an authority than Norman Hartnell, one of the Queen's two dressmakers, is featuring it.

In the bust department, John Cavanagh showed the latest cut evening dresses.

One of them plunged to such depths that he introduced a gadget called the over-bodice or, in plain language, something that looks like blinkers for the bust.

Suits and dress jackets are short, but no longer do they resemble maternity jackets.

In other words, girls—you can look like a woman this year and not be ashamed of it.

Bruce shines brighter!

■ New diamond-hard finish gives brighter, longer-lasting shine.

Fights germs, too! Contains Corobex®—famous germ fighter. Destroys the germs that touch the wax.

Hal Boyle Killing Time At the Office

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP).
ONE OF THE HARDEST THINGS to kill successfully is—time.

It is a particularly tough problem in the modern business office. There the average man or woman has to spend eight hours doing work he could actually do in three hours.

This leaves him the task of pretending to look busy for five hours. You think this is easy? Well, it isn't. What professional actor wouldn't be worn out by a five-hour performance?

Yet office employees have to do this day after day after day—all year long. No wonder they become neurotic. No wonder they acquire ulcers. No wonder they get old young.

They are trained workers, not trained actors. It isn't the three hours of daily work that makes them gray and feeble before their time. It's that five hours of daily acting—acting like they're busy when they aren't.

Some employees never learn the trick. Others give performances that would make John Barrymore in "Hamlet" look like a high school sophomore.

The chances are, however, that you will find at least some of the following typical examples of time-wasters in your own office:

▶ THE ENDLESS WANDERER. All day long he wanders from the desk to the water cooler to the rest room—then back to his desk for five minutes, and on to the water cooler again. At 40 he has kidney trouble and fallen arches.

▶ THE GROUNDHOG. He crawls into a tunnel in the pile of debris on his desk, and emerges only at lunch and quitting time.

▶ THE DUTCH WIFE. If cleanliness was godliness, this guy would sit at the right hand of the heavenly throne. He spends the day making everything neat as a pin. He cleans his desk, his telephone, his swivel chair, his memo-pad—and still has two hours left to devote to polishing his spectacles.

▶ THE HYPOCHONDRIAC. He wastes so much time taking pills to improve his health that he ends up too sick to be fired. If he runs out of his own medicine, he trots over to your desk to borrow a cup of yours, promising to return it later.

▶ THE OPEN-EYED SLOTH. He appears to be studying some office figures. Actually he is daydreaming, with his eyes wide open, of the girl he lost in kindergarten.

▶ THE POOR DECEIVER. This poor fellow is so dumb he can't think of anything to do except to make paper airplanes and sail them out the window. He is off the payroll in two weeks.

▶ THE SELF-IMPROVER. That looks like a company record he is studying so hard. In reality it is a volume of the Encyclopedia Britannica he is reading, page by page. His goal is to read the whole set on company time before he reaches retirement age.

▶ THE COFFEE BREAK ARTIST. He can make a 15-minute coffee break last longer than a Roman orgy, but somehow he never gets caught. He is the secret office hero, and everybody in the place is trying to take lessons from him.

▶ THE AUTHENTIC GENIUS. This mental giant figured out that if he ran in and asked the boss's advice every half hour, he could waste two people's time instead of one. But the boss, grateful at feeling useful too, has given him three raises in the last year. Everybody hates him for his brains. But he doesn't care. Who else is smart enough to get the boss to do his work for him?

Loafing for a living is the hardest kind of work. It can get you down if you let it worry you. The guy who gets ahead in the hard, competitive business world of today is the guy who can waste time busily—and still wind up at nightfall with his chin up and smiling, eager to face the same ordeal tomorrow.

Social Problems

DEAR MRS. POST: When a hostess gives a party and one of her guests seems to be drinking too much, can she refuse to serve him any more liquor? We live in the suburbs and many of our friends have to drive back to the city after a party and I feel it my responsibility that they get home safely. Is there a tactful way to handle this situation?

Answer: She certainly may! In this instance being a little rude to one who is going to drive his, or her, car home is infinitely better than being overhospitable and possibly contributing to a horrible accident.

DEAR MRS. POST: I am going to be married soon and as I am very active in my church, would like to invite the whole congregation (it is a small church) to my wedding without sending invitations. Would it be proper to have the clergyman announce this from the pulpit the Sunday preceding the wedding and say that all are invited to the wedding of Miss Mary Doe and Mr. Henry Smith, and also to the reception afterward in the church basement?

Answer: In a small church where the members of the congregation are all friends, such an invitation would be entirely practical, and therefore proper.

Daredevil Balloon Flight From St. Louis

The Atlantic Missed Its Destination a Century Ago but Set Record That Stood 50 Years

From the collection of the Library of Congress.

By James C. Millstone
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

BATTERED by a tropical storm, the four occupants of the balloon Small World drifted down into the churning Atlantic several weeks ago. Thus ended another fruitless attempt to cross the ocean in a balloon, a feat adventurers have been dreaming about for two centuries.

Many have dreamed of being the first to make it; few have dared try it.

One such daredevil was a scholarly resident of Lancaster, Pa., named John Wise. Wise was convinced he could float through the air to the Old World, and he sold his confidence to a wealthy promoter, O. A. Gager of Bennington, Vt. As a sort of preliminary, Gager agreed to finance a balloon trip from St. Louis to the east coast.

And that was how a balloon named the Atlantic happened to rise here from what was called Washington Square, at Clark avenue and Twelfth street, at a little after 6 p.m. on July 1, 1859. Aboard for what became known later as "the great balloon experiment" were Wise, Gager, John LaMountain of Troy, N.H., and William Hyde.

LaMountain was an experienced aeronaut of the day (aeronauts being men who made balloon ascensions) and Hyde was a reporter for the Daily Missouri Republican, St. Louis newspaper which he later edited. Hyde wrote a spirited account of the voyage, which set a distance record that stood for 50 years. In just under 20 hours, the intrepid crew breezed to a place called Henderson, N.Y., and covered between 900 and 1100 miles, all told.

At the voyage's end, a storm almost dumped the foursome into choppy Lake Ontario, and the passengers were astounded to find themselves not only alive but virtually unmarked. They were hailed as heroes of the day, a mantle they accepted with dignity and good grace, Hyde wrote.

Those were the days when St. Louis was a hub of ballooning activity. A huge crowd gathered at Washington Square to watch the ascension. The Missouri Republican reported:

"It was proposed to defray the expenses of the gas for inflation by the sale of tickets at the gate, but the inside paying spectators were scarcely a unit when compared to the hundreds without."

But there were enough paying customers to get in the way of the balloonists, Hyde wrote. "The good people, anxious to perform any kind of office, except to step a little to one side, delayed the ascension somewhat," he said.

Finally the Atlantic rose with its crew and cargo consisting of: 900 pounds of sand; quantities of cold chicken, tongue, potted meat, sandwiches; a bountiful supply of refreshments such as champagne, sherry, sparkling catawba, claret, madeira, brandy and porter; plenty of heavy clothing; a pail of iced lemonade and a bucket of water; a compass, barometer, thermometer and chart; bundles of St. Louis newspapers; cards of candidates for clerkships in some of the St. Louis courts, and an express package directed to New York City.

Wise, as head of the crew, rode in a wicker car dangling below the balloon. The other three men settled themselves in a boat that hung from the car.

Drifting off toward the east, Hyde observed, "The city of St. Louis was an imposing and magnificent spectacle, filled up with the most substantial evidences of commercial power and wealth. . . . I had not formed any adequate conception of her real greatness."

With St. Louis gone from sight, Hyde relaxed to the beauties of the upper reaches. "Twilight was on the earth, and gave to the color of the soil the appearance of frozen lakes," he wrote, and later "we were favored with a view of the sunset, such as no painter could depict, nor any enthusiast describe."

As the crew donned overcoats and gloves to cope with the colder weather, the first incident occurred. Wise "was paying his devotions to the 'drowsy god of sleep,'" as Hyde put it, and lying immediately under the mouth of the balloon. Gager called to him several times, receiving no answer. Alarmed, Gager climbed into the car and discovered that the expansion of gas had driven Hyde directly into Wise's face and knocked him out.

"As soon as the tube had been removed by Mr. Gager from its proximity to Wise's olfactory, and a few hearty shakes given him, the comatose man revived, rubbed his eyes, muttered a few incoherent syllables and inquired what was the matter," Hyde reported. "The proficient balloonist, who boasts of his 239 ascensions, took good care thereafter to keep the lower end of the gas bag out of the way of his sniffer."

As the balloon, caught in the wind currents, swept eastward, the passengers cracked open their liquid refreshment and began to sing. "Wise struck up the stirring national anthem, 'Hail Columbia,' in which we all joined and carried through with a great deal of vigor and very little tune," Hyde wrote.

As the hour grew late, one and then another of the crewmen became quiet and snatched a few moments of sleep. Hyde cogitated and decided to remain awake so as not to miss a moment of what might be an historic voyage.

From time to time, one of the four would shout at dogs on the ground. From the response, they would ascertain whether they were over a settlement or a lonely cabin in the woods.

Over Fort Wayne, Ind., the Atlantic's crew shouted down at the inhabitants and threw hotel bills of fare. When the sun came up, Hyde popped open an umbrella someone had left in the balloon at St. Louis and protected his head "from the heated yellow rays which were pouring in on us."

The balloon crew descended from a peak of two miles to a few hundred feet as Lake Erie came in sight. Hyde wrote:

"We were low enough to distinguish objects the size of men, and as the balloon darted above houses, we could plainly discern people and hear their voices. One apprehensive individual bellowed out, 'You'd better watch out, that's the lake.' While another contented himself with the exclamation, 'Hoo-ee!' A small propeller did the Atlantic the honor to blow her whistle as a salutation and immediately hoisted to, her commander doubtless imagining we were about to descend into the water where he would have to pick us out."

Wise and the captain struck up a conversation which went like this: Wise—"How do you do, Captain?" A fine morning for boating?" Captain—"Good morning, my brave fellows, but where in the heavens did you come from?" "From St. Louis, sir, last evening."

"And, pray, where are you going?" "Going eastward, Captain. First to Buffalo and thence to Europe, if we can."

By this time, the balloonists were so far away they could only imagine the incredulous look on the seaman's face. But the balloon sailed serenely on, skimming the shore, passing over Buffalo and Niagara Falls (which "were quite insignificant seen from our altitude") and headed toward Lake Ontario. The four men decided to descend rather than cross this lake, but the elements changed their plans. A storm suddenly caught them up and "like a bullet we shot out into the lake."

Everything that wasn't needed went overboard, but the balloon dangled perilously close to the violent lake, which reached for the adventurers with waves 10 feet high. The crash of waves filled their ears. "One moment more of life thought I," Hyde wrote later.

Wise hesitated before throwing overboard his last bit of ballast, several bottles of champagne which were meant to be drunk at journey's end. He took a long gulp and pitched them into the storm. Gager, in the wicker car with him, was too frightened to take a swallow.

Hyde, meanwhile, was frantically writing in the boat below. LaMountain began to chop the double bottom of the boat and throw the pieces overboard. Both men climbed into the car.

The winds finally blew the balloon beyond the lake into a new danger, a dense forest that "threatened to tear us limb from limb," Hyde reported.

"The balloon actually went through a mile of forest, tearing down trees, and breaking branches, dashing our party in the willow car to and fro against the trunks and limbs," Hyde wrote. Finally the car came to a jolting stop, suspended on a huge branch 20 feet above the ground. Miraculously the passengers suffered nothing worse than a bruised hip.

Whatever pains they felt soon disappeared as "about 20 women and young girls surrounded us, and had a million questions to propound relative to the extraordinary voyage." The balloon had come down near a small community, and the adventurers were greeted with awe and hero worship.

One of the welcoming party, an elderly lady, commented that she was surprised to see such sensible looking gentlemen in so outlandish a vehicle.

Everyone concerned looked on the voyage as a great success. Hyde wrote that Wise planned to try to travel across the ocean on his next trip and added that "I believe this undertaking can be accomplished."

His newspaper commented editorially that "no one will say that it is impracticable." But Wise never was able to get enough financial backing. He continued his continental flights, however, and made two others from St. Louis. On the second of these, he was blown over Lake Michigan and never was heard from again.

As for the Atlantic, John LaMountain bought the wreckage from Wise for $250, repaired it and went up from the fairgrounds at Watertown, N.Y., three months later. It was supposed to be a short trip, but a brisk wind scooped him far into the wilds of Canada, and he barely escaped with his life.

Louis IX Society To Give First Party

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

THE NEWEST LOCAL CLUB is the Louis IX Society, which gets its title from the French ruler for whom St. Louis was named. Still in its formative state, although its first party is scheduled for tomorrow night, the first members, self-styled the nucleus, comprise a group of unmarried Catholic men and women more than 24 years of age.

Last November the young women entertained a group of young men at the Junior League headquarters in the Frontenac and the club came into being. Seeking a theme for their first real event, the nucleus decided on a Mardi Gras evening, also at the Junior League rooms, although no special costumes are required and masks may be had at the door only in exchange for the entrance fee. About 200 young people, not necessarily Catholics, have been invited. Similar organizations function in other parts of the country, notably in Los Angeles and Boston.

There is to be dancing from 9 to 1 o'clock and an elaborate buffet featuring crab gumbo and hot French doughnuts and coffee.

If the initial effort is a success, the society will give four parties each year and eventually will branch out into civic work. Officers will then be elected and rules written.

The nucleus of members follows: Miss Sunie Cabanne Smith, Miss Kathleen Murphy, Miss Kathleen Fahey, Miss Katherine Homer, Miss Kathleen Vatterott, Miss Lucy Flavan, Miss Jayne Berry, Miss Mary Catherine Martin, Miss Anita Piccione, Miss Ann Colfer, Leo Murphy, William Murphy, Edward Brangle, James Pudowski, Wayne Stedelin, Donald Chappius, John Flavan, Patrick O'Meara and Boyd Fellows.

Mrs. C. Oscar Lamy will give a family cocktail supper tomorrow at her apartment in the Congress Hotel in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hollis Averill, who recently returned from their Florida honeymoon. The bride was Mrs. Stuart M. Butler, formerly Miss Mary Frances Harris. She and Mr. Averill are living at his home, 930 Cella road, Ladue.

Historical Society to Fete Drive Workers.

A COCKTAIL PARTY, called a "Paddle Wheel Pow-Wow," will be given from 5 to 7 o'clock the evening of Tuesday, Feb. 17, for workers in the current membership campaign of the Missouri Historical Society and their husbands. The party will be given in the display rooms of Furniture Exhibitors, 912 Lucas avenue.

Displays from the society's pictorial history gallery showing the city as it appeared a century ago will be arranged as a background for the party. The exhibit will include examples of the society's collection of prints, advertising posters of the 1870s, daguerreotypes of St. Louis in 1850 and architectural drawings of 100 years ago.

Mrs. John Brabson Trent and Mrs. Henry T. Schlapp, co-chairmen of the drive, will display the 35 donated prizes to be awarded to winners Feb. 27 at the campaign's conclusion. First prize will be two round-trip airline tickets to New Orleans, weekend accommodations at Maison de Ville in the French Quarter and meals at famous restaurants, all donated by Trips Unlimited, plus a traveling suit by John Radaelli. Second prize will be a pair of mahogany bachelor's chests from Furniture Exhibitors.

Additional prizes will include cashmere sweaters, radios, dinners and entertainment, power lawn mower, puppy and a year's supply of dog food, outdoor furniture, lamp, basket of food and wine, wearing apparel and a woodcut. Heading the 15-member prize committee are Mrs. Stuart M. Butler Jr., Mrs. James H. Howe III and Mrs. John Green.

Hostesses for the party will be Mrs. Eric P. Newman, Mrs. Richard C. Houser, Mrs. George McKay, Mrs. Foster W. Holmes, Mrs. J. John Brook and Mrs. John K. Nimock.

Annual Meeting and Tea Tomorrow.

THE WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION of the Historical Society will hold its annual meeting and tea at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Schultz, 11 Carrswold, Clayton.

Richard Byars and Gene Schneider will give an illustrated talk on buying antiques in Europe; the traditional Steamboat punch will be served by Mrs. McKay and her committee: Mrs. Elias S. Gatch II, Mrs. George E. Malinckrodt, Mrs. Nicholas V. V. Franchot III and Mrs. John R. Moulton.

The new members who join the society during the membership drive will be entertained March 7 at a reception or Red Carpet party to be given by the Women's Association at Jefferson Memorial. Working on details of the party are Mrs. Lynn E. Stuart, Mrs. McKay, Mrs. John B. Mitchell, Mrs. William D. DeWitt and Mr. and Mrs. Hamblett C. Grigg.

Miss Schrand Elected to Two Honoraries.

Miss Sandi Schrand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Schrand, 6040 Sutherland avenue, has been elected to Phi Theta Kappa, honor scholastic society for junior colleges, and Sigma Phi Gamma, modern language honorary, at Christian College, a junior college for women at Columbia, Mo.

Presentation of award was made by the college president and the dean of faculty at an honors assembly last Thursday. Students become eligible for membership in Phi Theta Kappa on the basis of scholarship and character. Members are elected by the faculty from the upper ten per cent of the student body. They are eligible for Sigma Phi Gamma when they have a "B" average in language courses.

Miss Schrand has also been named to the dean's honor roll for her first semester grades.

In Costumes for Ball

Trying on costumes they will wear tomorrow evening for the second annual Desloge Hospital Ball are MRS. FRISTOE MULLINS, left, as Pocahontas, MRS. WILLIAM B. LYTTON JR. as the Cowardly Lion and, kneeling, MRS. LEMOINE SKINNER JR. as Bambi. The ball will take place in the Khorassan Room of the Chase Hotel.

Webster Groves Activities in Early February

SPENDING TEN DAYS in San Francisco with her daughter, Miss Eleanor Rowland, is Mrs. Raymond E. Rowland, 22 Algonquin lane. She will return home next week.

Miss Nancy Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Green, 220 Bristol road, has returned to Hollins (Va.) College after spending the between-semester recess visiting friends in Bridgeport and New Haven, Conn., and in Washington. Miss Green will return here next month for the spring holiday.

Miss Anne Judell departed Tuesday night for Durham, N.C., where she is a senior at Duke University, after spending several days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Judell, 11 Mason avenue. The Judells also entertained Robert K. Thompson, of Chevy Chase, Md., a student at Duke, who also departed Tuesday night.

Miss Gail Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott S. Miller, 405 West Swon avenue, and a Duke freshman, spent her holiday visiting classmates at Montreat, N.C. Her brother, Elliott Miller, is back at the University of Oklahoma after being the guest of Robert Bowles of Tulsa last weekend.

Advertising Club Cites Mrs. McCabe

By Fay Profilet

MRS. IRENE McCABE has been chosen "St. Louis Advertising Woman of the Year," by the Advertising Club of St. Louis. She is director of public relations and advertising for Group Hospital Services, known as the St. Louis Blue Cross Plan. The club will give a dinner in her honor Feb. 17 in the Tiarra room of the Park Plaza Hotel at 6:30 p.m. Mrs. George Gelhorn, civic leader in St. Louis for more than 50 years, will be the speaker at the dinner, the fifth to be given by the club honoring its "Advertising Woman of the Year."

In recognizing her professional achievements, Mrs. McCabe was cited for her work with Blue Cross in "Creating a firm basis of understanding between hospitals, the medical profession and people who use their services."

After several years in the information department of the United Hospital Fund in New York, Mrs. McCabe came to St. Louis in 1940 in a similar capacity with the newly established Blue Cross Plan.

As a member of the Practical Nurse Educational Council, she has worked for better standards and training facilities for practical nurses. She was appointed to the advisory board on the licensing of nursing homes; worked for the passage of Missouri Hospital Licensing Act in 1955, and two years later was executive secretary to the committee which investigated St. Louis City Hospital.

Mrs. McCabe served as secretary for the following organizations: St. Louis Hospital Association, Missouri Hospital Association, Missouri Conference for Improvement of the Care of the Patient, and the Practical Nurses Education Council.

Mrs. McCabe has a 19-year-old son who is a sophomore at Kenyon College. They live at 1342 McCutcheon avenue.

A Father Fights Back

Dear Martha:

I AM WRITING this letter in the ultimate hope that some good will come of it. Other children are making our youngest child the butt of their persecution. He is far younger than his brothers and as a consequence he must ride the school bus by himself with, of course, some of the neighbors' older children along. They had been referring to my wife and me as liars. One day I talked to the father of one older boy who seemingly is the chief promoter of this slapping around. I called his attention to the fact that we were not liars and he denied calling us that. But I am of the opinion that he in an underhanded way has told his boy to pick on mine and has turned other boys to become abusive. I am asking how this situation could best be remedied.

WORRIED FATHER.

For your son's sake, tread softly. As angry and as frustrated as this stupid and juvenile "persecution" makes you, you risk making it worse by fighting back in your boy's behalf. Not that he doesn't need help—and I'm amazed that the bus driver wouldn't stop any actual abuse—but sometimes a boy inclined to pester others will cause even more trouble when he knows his barbs have struck home. My suggestion would be to go to the school authorities and ask for assistance. Be careful not to single out any one boy (I notice you say he "seemingly" is the most guilty and that you are "of the opinion" that his father has instigated much of this), but ask that something be done to protect the younger children from this abuse. On the other hand, your boy must fight his own battles all his life, and sometimes a would-be protector makes the defense more difficult. To cause a greater schism between the age groups, especially by carrying on the fight at a parental level, will only make it worse.

Dear Martha:

I'D LIKE TO RELAY our secret for a happy marriage. First and foremost is complete trust. Because of this there is no room for jealousy. Secondly, if and when we have a misunderstanding of any sort, we discuss it. That way it doesn't become deep-seated and all are happy. Thirdly, never go to bed angry. No matter who is at fault, always make up. Sometimes you have to swallow your pride but it's worth it. Because I know how to handle a check book, I pay the bills but he knows what comes in and what gets paid out each month. More than anything I love him more each day for what he is and what he has done for me.

CADA.

Thank you for not keeping it a "secret" any longer and letting me tell others how you solve your minor differences that could grow into big ones if left unattended. Do other readers have suggestions for a happy marriage? Let's hear them.

Dear Martha:

I KNOW FROM YOUR COLUMN that there are many young men and women in St. Louis who would enjoy the fun and new friends they would meet at any of the Downtown Y.M.C.A. social activities. There are a Chess Club and a Camera Club which meet regularly. The Outing Club, a group of young adults under 35, plans two trips or social events a month. There is a record dance every Friday night for those 25 and older. The YADS Club for those under 25 meets every Saturday night for informal games and dancing. The George Williams Players is a Little Theater group in which anyone who is interested in any phase of play production would feel at home. We hope your readers will drop in to these affairs or will inquire at the Downtown Y.M.C.A., 1528 Locust street, St. Louis 3, Central 1-1350, about the many activities waiting for them. JOHN C. WAKEFIELD, Program Director.

Violence on Television

ON FEB. 16, the P.T.A. Council of Beverly Hills, Calif., under the presidency of Mrs. Aubrey Schenck, will present a rather unusual panel on the subject of violence in TV programs shown to children. The panel is a cross-section of the entertainment industry and will include Bette Davis, Rod Serling, Alan Livingston, Hal Humphrey and Lewis Meltzer. The subject for discussion is: "Parents—Are You Aware of the TV Shows Your Children Are Viewing?"

Members of this P.T.A. group have been told that from 6 to 9 p.m. children view shows saturated with "sadism and brutality causing a tremendous increase in volume and violence in juvenile crime throughout the United States, according to the American Bar Association and American Medical Association." This group felt the need of more understanding on the part of parents and the public in general to bring about a change in the type of program shown at a time when many children are free to watch them.

Broadcasting companies put on what they think the public wants to see. It is therefore the responsibility of the public as to what they allow their children to watch, and what they themselves want to see. I think this P.T.A. council should be congratulated on what it is doing, and I hope many others will be encouraged to take similar action. We can have an effect on what is shown, both in films and on TV, if we act through our organizations and make our feelings known.

Teachers in New York City's evening high schools have resigned because their demands for a higher salary have not been met. They are now being paid $12.25 per night—which becomes only $9.75 after federal taxes are deducted—for four classes of teaching. In 1932 they received $10 a night, tax free. Obviously, their present scale would seem rather inadequate compensation, and it looks as though the superintendent of schools agrees with them. Nevertheless, the effort will have to be made to keep classes going. If these are permanently closed, some of the students would be unable to graduate. As usual, however, no money is available to meet the teachers' demands. Some time or other the question of adequate pay for teachers will have to be faced in every classroom, and I hope it will be faced soon.

That was an interesting statement made by Gen. Franco in reply to the monarchists who have been trying to persuade him to restore Don Juan to the Spanish throne. Franco stated Spain is a monarchy, that he is the ruler of the nation and will remain so until his death, when there will be either a king or a regent. This shows an amount of confidence in the unchangeable future which is rarely justified by the way things actually turn out in human affairs.

A Penny's Worth of Caramels

Richard Winkler of Kirkwood works for an advertising agency in St. Louis. His articles have appeared in American Mercury, Family Circle, Today's Health, Woman's Day and other magazines.

By Richard Winkler

SOMETIMES, as charity appeals seem increasingly impersonal, and a gift becomes a square hole in a punch card, I find myself thinking back to the days when giving was simpler, more intimate, and I recall my first attempt at community charity, when I was in the fourth grade.

At that, it was only a small canter across the somewhat barren, untitled field of social work, in which my stanch friend carried the lance and I merely ran at his stirrup. And though our hearts were good and our motives pure, it seems to me now that the results we got probably justify our more efficient charity distributions of today.

It was my older brother who had told me about the aged man cking out his miserable existence in his little store on a back street. He was a miserly old guy," my brother claimed. Lived in squalor and slept on a bare board placed across two chairs in the tiny back room of his store, because he could not afford to buy a bed.

When I told this story to my friend Chris he was touched deeply moved. It was that sleeping on a board that really got both of us, I think.

"We've got to do something for the poor old guy," Chris broke out. And so, at the noon hour, since we were freely allowed to wander anywhere within a mile or two of the school during this time, we set out for the poor man's store.

Chris always got a dime for his lunch. At the delicatessen near our school, this would buy two wholesome sandwiches loaded with thick sausage slices, or one sandwich and a piece of pie, or some other combination making a full lunch for any hungry boy.

I had no money, always brought my lunch from home, and with nine children in the family, I had scant knowledge of spending money. So I had furnished the impetus with my disquieting tale, but Chris was furnishing the solution.

Today we passed the delicatessen by, Chris clutching his dime and I my lunch wrapped in the Sunday comic section, and went on to the corner, where we turned and went on until we came to the narrow rutted road that led to the poor man's little store.

The store turned out to be a boxlike, but neat-looking structure of concrete block. We entered the door and, as the bell tinkled, looked around the cramped and dimly-lighted interior. We were two boys on a mission of charity.

The man who appeared behind the counter was eating a thick ham sandwich. He ham, from the spicy smell of it. It made us remember we had yet to eat our lunch.

A ruddy-faced fellow all of 50 years old, the storekeeper looked kind of plump and well-fed, we had to admit, and pretty well-rested, too, for a man who spent his nights on a board. In the small space before the counter where we regarded him with sad, large eyes, there drifted the tantalizing aroma of good coffee, fresh-made.

The tiny room in back was hidden by a curtain drawn over the doorway. We peered at it intently, hoping to see through a crack that cold, stiff, hard board which had really brought us here in mercy. We could not see a thing.

"Boys, what can I do for you?" said the man between bites.

We looked at him dolefully. The question was rather, we felt, what we could do for him. And yet, charity must be tempered with tact and discretion. We had talked over our procedure before deciding to visit the store.

"Do you have any caramels?" I asked politely. We had decided that, by buying caramels, we would run no risk of getting an unsanitary commodity, since these little squares of sticky candy came wrapped in wax paper.

He did have caramels. We said we wanted a penny's worth. That was three caramels, a fair, standard exchange everywhere in town. He gave us three. Chris gave him his dime, and we turned to go, walking fast.

"Wait a minute, boys!" the man said. "You gave me a dime!"

"Oh," said Chris, waving his hand airily. "That's all right. Just keep the change."

The man stared at us, and we were out the door.

"I bet nobody ever had that to him before!" said Chris as we walked up the road. I said I bet nobody ever had.

"I didn't get to see into that back room," said Chris. "to see the board he slept on. Did you?"

"No," I said. We were both, I think, a little disappointed at the way the thing had turned out. The place was not nearly as desolate and dreary as we had pictured it, nor the man quite as pauperized as he had been given to us, and certainly not as deserving of charity as I had given him to Chris.

Somehow, we felt vaguely, we had been had. On the whole, the interior of the little shop, and the manner of the man, seemed to exude a quiet aura of contentment and, in a very limited way, prosperity.

Chris turned to me, holding out the three caramels in the palm of his hand.

"We don't want these, do we?"

My mouth watered. They looked safely sanitary to me, those caramels, delicious, still inside their red-printed wax paper. Yet I sensed with Chris that in this final act we were attaining to the essence of charity in the grand manner.

"No," I said. I watched him throw the caramels into the ditch by the side of the road. On the way back to school, I urged Chris to take half of my lunch. Though I rarely had any money, I always had plenty of lunch, enough for two boys certainly, if not more.

But Chris said he didn't want any. He was still a little reluctant, I think, to surrender the nobility of our motives, and I couldn't blame him. After all, the magnificent gesture and the dime had both been his.

Vignettes of History

The brothers Le Moyne, Sieur d'Iberville and Sieur de Bienville, played an important role in the beginnings of Mississippi and Louisiana. The first white settlement in the lower Mississippi Valley was established by Iberville in 1699, when he founded Old Biloxi, now Ocean Springs. In 1701, Bienville became the leader of the colony. It was through his heroic efforts that the settlement was held together in the face of famine and hostility of the Indians and Spanish. New Orleans was founded in 1718 under Bienville's direction, and in 1722 it became the new capital of the vast colonial empire of Louisiana. (These vignettes do not necessarily pertain to the daily puzzles.)

SAMPLE PUZZLE

HOW TO PLAY:

In the Sample Puzzle, as in each of the 66 Official Puzzles, there are exactly enough letters contained within the square to spell correctly the name of a certain place in the United States. The object of the game is to untangle the letters and, using the clue as a guide, determine and spell out the name. IT IS NOT NECESSARY TO WRITE THE NAME OF THE STATE. The correct name of the city or town is all that is required.

WHO MAY PLAY:

U. S. Tangle Towns is open to almost everyone in the states of Missouri, Arkansas and Illinois (excluding Cook County). For the very few exceptions, see the Official Rules. A copy of the rules will be sent upon receipt of your request accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Uncle Ray's Column Facts About Meteors

By Ramon Coffman

METEORS lose speed when they enter the atmosphere around the earth. They come from outer space, then strike the cushion of air which surrounds us.

The depth of the earth's atmosphere amounts to a few hundred miles. The air is extremely thin, but the fast-moving meteors burn as they go through it at height of 300 miles.

Meteors slow down somewhat, but they continue to burn at lower levels where the air is thicker.

Q. What is the speed of meteors at the time they reach the air around the earth?

A. Astronomers have found that the speed ranges from a few miles a second to 40 or 50 miles a second when the atmosphere starts to slow their motion.

Q. Why is there such a difference in the speed of meteors?

A. The earth swings around the sun at an average speed of 18 and a half miles a second. Some meteors catch up with the earth and go through the air at only a few miles a second.

If a meteor comes toward the earth at a speed of 20 miles a second while the earth is going toward the meteor at 18 and a half miles a second, the contact speed is 38 and a half miles a second.

Meteors also strike the earth's air from various angles. Some travel into the atmosphere while on an elliptical path. Others strike while on a hyperbolic course.

Q. How do we know that meteors slow down?

A. This has been proved by observers working with fast-action cameras. The observers may be stationed at points more than 20 miles apart while they photograph the same meteor.

The meteors slow down a great deal. One which starts to go into the earth's air at 25 miles a second may lose speed to two miles a second, or less. When it travels at less than one mile a second, it stops burning.
